

PEOPLE WILL PICK

Legislators Must Pledge Support to Choice for Senator.

DECIDED AT THE PRIMARIES

Oregon Expected to Send Men Back to Washington Who Will Redeem Her Record Before Her Sister States.

SALEM, Or., July 5.—(Special.)—The end of the trial of Senator John H. Mitchell gives fresh impetus to political discussion, and men who take an interest in public affairs are trying to size up the situation as it will exist when the campaign opens about six months hence.

Under the plan of the direct primary law, the next United States Senator from Oregon may be, in effect, chosen by the people. The law provides that candidates for the Senate may be voted for in the primaries and that candidates for the Legislature may state on the ballot whether or not they will be guided by the voice of the people when they vote for the United States Senator. Inquiry made among prominent men here shows that the opinion is practically unanimous that candidates for a seat in the United States Senate will make the run in the primaries and that nearly all the candidates for the Legislature will pledge themselves on the ballot to support the man who wins in the primaries.

There are a few who do not take a favorable view of the idea of pledging a candidate for the Legislature to vote for the man who receives the largest popular vote. Prominent residents of Salem, sitting in a group, discussed the direct-primary law a few days since.

"If I were a candidate for the Legislature," said one, "I would not pledge myself on the ballot, but would tell the people that I would act on my best judgment when the time comes."

"Then you would not go to the Legislature," declared another, who has a state-wide reputation for political sagacity. "When any man asks the people to vote for him for the Legislature and says he is not willing to pledge himself to vote for the people's choice for Senator, he will be left at home. The people will say to him: 'If you are not willing to trust us we will not trust you.' The man who asks for the support of the people must give the people credit for having enough intelligence to elect a Senator."

The pledging, if any, will be done before the primaries and consequently before a man has been nominated. The direct-primary law provides that a candidate for the nomination for a seat in the Legislature may declare upon the ballot whether he will vote for the people's choice for Senator. If, therefore, there are two State Senators to elect from a county, and there are four candidates for the nomination, two of whom refuse to pledge themselves to vote for the man for United States Senator who has the endorsement of the members of his party, it is the generally accepted opinion that the two who do pledge themselves will stand by far the best chance of winning.

It is believed here that there will be few candidates for the United States Senate—probably one or two from Portland and perhaps one or two from the outside. T. B. Wilcox, W. D. Fenton, A. L. Mills and W. B. Ayer are the Portland Republicans most frequently mentioned here as good material for the making of a Senator. T. T. Geer, of Marion; M. A. Moody, of Wasco, and S. A. Lowell, of Umatilla, are the outside men whose names are heard in this connection.

The opinion is frequently expressed that if Multnomah County can agree on a man of recognized ability and absolutely clean record, and if only one candidate on the ticket, the Multnomah man would win against all or any outsiders. If, however, Multnomah should have two candidates and there should be two outside aspirants, the view generally taken is that the latter would win. The feeling is widespread that it is up to Oregon to redeem her reputation by sending to the United States Senate in the near future a man of high character, an avowed and avowed supporter of the principles of the National Association, and whose private life, shall be above reproach or even suspicion.

TWO CONVICTS LEAVE TRAIL

One Was Stark Naked, the Other Dressed in Rags.

TACOMA, Wash., July 5.—Ed Stickey, one of the escaped convicts who have been seen near Higgins Beach, a few miles from Steilacoom. The man was naked, and said he had fallen into the water and was drying his clothes.

J. H. Malone, another of the escaped convicts, called at Seabeck, on Hood's Canal, last night, and asked to be rowed across the canal by Charles G. and D. J. Hall, of Seattle, who are camped at that place. At the time they had not learned of the jailbreak, but have since identified Malone from a newspaper picture. Seabeck, where Malone was identified, is but six miles from Silverdale, where it was said this morning that some of the convicts had been seen.

Deputy Marshals have gone to Seabeck and have learned that the Hall brothers refused to row Malone across the canal. The man then went back into the woods. Indications are many that the officers are gathering for a sharp hunt along Hood's Canal.

Malone wore old, rat-eaten clothing, evidently stolen from some barn. He tried to borrow money, and said he was seeking work in a sawmill.

Washington State Auditor Makes Report for the Month.

OLYMPIA, Wash., July 5.—(Special.)—The monthly statement of receipts and expenditures issued by the Auditor today shows a total of receipts in all funds of $227,283.17, and expenditures from all funds of $120,217.75 in the month of June. Of these amounts, the receipts to the general fund were $123,233.29, and expenditures $134,054.74. Of the expenditures from the general fund, $21,448.67 was made up of matters outside the general running expenses of the state, including a loan to the oyster fund, the payment of various relief appropriations and a part of the Lewis and Clark Fair appropriation, leaving $101,805.07 to represent the actual running expenses of the state government for the month.

The running expenses for May were only $74,800. The increase in June is in the large expenditures by the Washington State College and State University, due

THROWN FROM AUTOMOBILE

Mrs. John H. Albert, of Salem, Is Seriously Injured.

SALEM, Or., July 5.—(Special.)—Mrs. John H. Albert was seriously injured in an automobile accident this evening, while riding with her husband and Mrs. Harry E. Albert, in Polk County. Her left lower jaw, her right collar-bone and three ribs were broken, and she sustained severe bruises on the face. Though an elderly person, it is thought she will recover.

Mr. Albert went out this evening to try his automobile on a steep hill, just across the river from Salem. When near the top of the hill the engine ran out of steam, and Mr. Albert applied the emergency brake. The brake would not work, and the machine ran back down hill, and tipped over, throwing the occupants into the road. Mr. Albert and Mrs. Harry Albert escaped without serious injury.

DONNELLY UNDER ARREST

Men Were Fast Friends and Had Been Giving Exhibitions in Different Parts of the Country. Not in Condition.

ABERDEEN, Wash., July 5.—(Special.)—Fred Ross, who fell unconscious in the death of Ross will probably put an end to boxing and sparring matches here for some time to come, as the state law is far-reaching and affects even patrons of these exhibitions.

Commissioner Ross will not insist on His Yakima Project.

NORTH YAKIMA, Wash., July 5.—(Special.)—At a meeting held here this afternoon between representatives of the different commercial bodies of the Yakima Valley and State Land Commissioner E. W. Ross and Governor A. E. Mead, the state officials decided for the present to withdraw from the field in the matter of the state's selection of lands under the Carey act.

A resolution was passed by the delegation, in which the Secretary of the interior is asked to withhold his approval of the state's selections in the lower valley until the Government reclamation investigations are completed, and to reject them in case it should be found necessary so to do to enable the reclamation service to enter in the valley. Mr. Ross and Governor Mead both stated that they would inform the Secretary of the interior of the result of the meeting.

Peace Celebration at Newberg.

NEWBERG, Or., July 5.—(Special.)—Newberg's "peace celebration" brought a big crowd from this end of Yamhill County. Rev. Ray Palmer, of Portland, delivered the address. On a white throne on the speakers' platform sat the Goddess of Peace, Miss Sarah Knight, surrounded by her six maids of honor—Misses Myrtle Gagne, Amy Heater, Bernice Woodward, Florence Hase, Mabel Paulson and Elsie Mackie.

In the afternoon various sports were given, and a beautiful wash drill by the young women of Newburg was presented. A good display of fireworks rounded off the day's pleasure.

His face was badly burned, one eye probably ruined and the other badly injured.

PACIFIC COAST DEAD.

James R. Wicks.

COLEFAK, Wash., July 5.—(Special.)—James R. Wicks, one of the best-known farmers and stockmen of this section, and a pioneer of the coast, died at his home, 12 miles south of here, today, of tuberculosis, aged 68 years. Mr. Wicks came to the coast in 1862, locating in California. Ten years later he came to what is now Whitman County, Washington, and took a homestead. He lived here for 23 years. He acquired a snug fortune in lands and blooded stock, and was the proprietor of the "Oneho" herd of thoroughbred Hereford cattle, which took many premiums in the Northwest. He was one of the leading populists during the reign of that party, and later became a Socialist.

Mr. Wicks leaves a widow, two sons and a daughter, all of whom were with him when he died. In compliance with his request, no sermon will be preached at his funeral, but Thomas Neill, a leading Socialist, and J. Perkins, a lifelong friend, will each deliver an address over the remains.
