Whether or not the concessionaires have the consent of the Exposition management, the Trail will open tomorrow, Sunday. If the officials close the Trail tomorrow, it will remain closed permanently, so far as the concessionaires are concerned, say the members of the Trail Association. Yesterday afternoon, at a meeting of the members of the Trail Association, that stated specifically that the Trail will open for business Sunday.

An effort was made to see President Goode last night, but he could not be found, and the ultimatum will not be presented until this morning. Late yesterday afternoon President Goode was apprised of the fact that the concessionaires were determined to open Sunday, which was the first he had heard of their intentions. "We have been considering the feasibility of opening the Trail for some time, but as yet have not come to a definite decision," was all President Goode would say.

Concessionaires Are Determined.

Realizing that much of the success of the Exposition depends upon the amusement attractions, the members of the association are determined to have the Trail open on the Sabbath or quit business. They say that they are not solely for self-preservation, and that unless some efforts are made to popularize the Exposition, the concessionaires will be compelled to close, as they are approaching when they will have exhausted their ready money.

They point to the extremely liberal patronage the Exposition has received since the public on Sunday. This and the fact that all the theaters and places of amusement that are open do a thriving business on Sunday, they say, is conclusive evidence that the public is hungry for entertainment. They also lay stress on the laboring people, who are unable to attend the Exposition on week days without interfering with their work, desiring that the Fair be open as a whole and not as a part on Sunday. They state that the attendance at the Exposition on Sunday is the highest of the week, and that it is simply because the people are in search of excitement and enjoyment.

On Verge of Bankruptcy.

Several of the principal attractions on the Trail are on the verge of bankruptcy, and the assertion is freely made by the concessionaires themselves that many of the shows would have closed had it not been for the big business done on the Fourth of July. They say that the Fourth will only enable them to stem the tide of the inevitable for only a few days unless immediate action is taken by the Exposition management. They also vigorously indorse the movement for the inauguration of a 5-cent rate admission to the grounds at night.

"You see those three concessions," said George E. Jabour last night, standing on the Trail in front of his Animal Show, "Parce and restaurant. If the Exposition officials close us up Sunday we will nail up the doors for good. There is absolutely no other way out of our predicament. We have to take drastic measures to protect our interests. We are all losing money every day, and the sooner we close the better it is for us. With Sunday we might be able to pay expenses and make good enough. If the rest of the Trail will be a total financial failure."

Want Sunday Privileges.

"In all the cities of the West and nearly all of the great nations, theaters and other places of amusement are allowed to be open on Sunday, and I cannot understand why we should be denied that privilege," said Boosy Kralofy, of the "Carnival of Venice," last night. "We must have it; that is all there is to it. It is unfair to us to have the Trail closed on Sunday when all other outside attractions are drawing immense crowds. If the Exposition officials think there are any objectionable concessions, let them close them up for all time and open the rest of the Trail on Sunday. Our attractions are just as high-class and respectable as those down town."

"What people do come out to the Exposition on Sunday go to sleep under the trees because of the lack of excitement," said George L. Baker, who has been deputized by the concessionaires to present the ultimatum to President Goode. "If they want to let the Ministerial Association conduct the Exposition on Sunday-school principles, why, good enough. If the rest of the attractions go, you will see the old Plantation and Davenport's Farm trailing right along with them."

close their doors within a very few days unless they were allowed Sunday opening.

Message to Goode.

The following is the notice, in part, signed by all the concessionaires, which will be presented to President H. W. Goode this morning:

H. W. Goode, President and Director-General, as the Board of Directors of the Lewis and Clark Centennial Exposition, Portland, Oregon—Gentlemen: The Trail Association, through their committee, called on you the first of this week in reference to allowing the Trail to open on Sunday, and you advised them that you would take the matter up and give them an answer immediately. Five days have gone by, and no action has been taken. Therefore, we have to advise you that the concessionaires will open their concessions on Sunday, July 8, and we trust that the Exposition management, through the various departments, will not offer any interference.

We find the Exposition with working exhibits and Government building and Trail attractions closed and only exhibit palaces and hand concerts and divine services (which one can obtain about without payment of money to the profit of a corporation) is not and will not be sufficient to attract the masses.

We have been appealed to by the laboring classes to open our shows and attractions on Sunday, and we have no other time to visit us with their families and friends, and we have felt the world driven away from the Exposition grounds, and we are interested in the public has been being wide open.

We have paid a big price toward making this Fair a success and we have given our best efforts and skill.

We have offered a half million of dollars to make the Trail of your Exposition the most inviting, instructive and enjoyable attraction in the world.

On the other hand we find that the individual concessionaire has reaped no reward for his investment nor his labor.

In this Northwest country the population is not large enough to justify the Exposition management in keeping concessions closed on Sunday. There are about 100,000 people living in Portland, and less than 1,000,000 within a radius of 500 miles, and the concessionaires depend on this class of the local attendance. Two-thirds of the population of Portland is the working element, who labor hard all week and have but Sunday for recreation. This statement is proved when over 20,000 attend the six days of the Exposition, and it is reported that 30,000 people attend the "Coke," a little resort on the Willamette River, who labor hard all week and have but Sunday for recreation. ROB A BURNING HOUSE

WHILE FLAMES ARE UNDER WAY PILFERING GOES ON.

Portland Consolidated Street-Car Cuts Hose and Impedes Work of the Firemen.

Wholesale robbery occurred in broad daylight, while firemen hustled through the halls of the Belmont house and while policemen stood guard, as flames ate their way through rooms, working great damage about 8 o'clock yesterday morning. The building is situated at 2494 Fourth street, between the streets of Belmont and Yamhill.

Damage to the extent of about 2000 was wrought before the fire was extinguished. Great difficulty was encountered by the firemen in getting the streams turned on, as a second hose was laid and the stream turned on by a Southern Pacific passenger train for five minutes.

When the train moved on, and a hose was laid in from Fifth and Yamhill, a Portland Consolidated car ran into it and severed the hose. This created great annoyance and before a second hose was laid and the stream turned on by a Southern Pacific passenger train for five minutes.

Firemen severely condemned the crew of the passenger train, but the mere bitterly arraigned the careless crew of the Portland Consolidated car for running over a hose. There could be found no excuse for such a trick, the firemen said, when the passenger car is in the street, and the train is waiting at the Fourth and Yamhill station before the fire broke out. It moved soon after the alarm came in.

Mrs. Belmont discovered the fire and rushed to a telephone. "Central" disconnected a nickel and dropped in the slot before she would connect with fire headquarters, and a man finally ran to deliver the alarm.

While the fire was in progress, rooms were entered and the apartments of the Belmonts were literally pilfered, everything of value that could be carried off being taken. The police were given a detailed report of the things stolen, and Detectives Carpenter and Reeling were assigned on the case.

Many guests were sleeping when the flames burst out, and but for the promptness of the firemen, who were notified of the danger it seems probable there would have been deaths and severe injuries. As it was, all escaped, although some got out with minor burnings.

A spark from the chimney of a Chinese laundry is said to have caused the fire.
