RESISTED TAKING GOODS Second Wife Finally Allows Execution in Favor of First.

Wife number 2 of William Goldie, a contractor, resisted the attempted yester-day of Jessie L. Goldie, wife num-ber 1, to collect a judgment of $1090 against Goldle for breach of promise. The first partner for the affections of Goldle was assisted by Deputy Sheriff Downey, who was armed with an execution issued in the State Circuit Court. Mr. Downey tried to take possession of a plano Turkish rugs and valuable articles of fur-niture in the residence occupied by the inst Mrs. William Golde, at 335 North Twenty-third street. She protested and refused to permit the goods to be taken and loaded on a truck which the Deputy Sheriff had in waiting. Mr. Downey tele-phoned to the office for advice, and Deputies John Grusst and Dode Parrott, two well-known diplomats, were sent to his assistance. By the time they arrived upon the scene, Mrs. Goldie the Second had concluded no longer to oppose the servants of the law, but to let them have their own way and remove the plano and other things. It is stated that C. E. S. Wood, attorney for Goldie, advised him to pay the judgment, but Goldie did not heed the advice. Jessie L. Goldie and William Goldie were married and divorced in the East. She said he promised to marry her over again, and instead, went to St. Louis, and married another. She followed him to Portland and sued him for breach of mise, and the jury returned a verdict her favor for $1000
