ESSICK HOLDS SIWASHES DOWN

Miserable Support Is Given Fitzpatrick, the Twirler for the Indians.

PORTLAND 8. SEATTLE 1

Dashwood, Behind the Bat, Makes a Number of Dummy Plays. Other Errors Prove Very Costly.

SEATTLE, Wash., July 9.-(Special.)-Essick went back in again today, and he held Seattle sufe all the way, with the exception of the seventh inning, when McHale hit for two bases and scored on Hall's single. The support given Flizpat-rick was weird. In the ninth liming four runs were scored off one hit. Dashwood stopped thinking altogether, and after he had fielded Corbett's bunt he heaved the hall into the tall grass back of the right-field bleachers, and Corbett came all the way home. Corbett had the lift beaten not when Dashwood threw. A moment later Johnny Kane threw to the bleachers, trying to head off Van Buren, and Van went to third on the play. The score does not begin to tell of Dashwood's poor work, for his heaves at the bases were fearfully wild and uncertain. He had the whole team up in the sir.

A summary of Dashwood's performances shows these as his most glaring misplays: He made one throw that was good for a home run; he stood with the ball in his hand and allowed a man to steal second; he had a man caught off the place a city block on a squeeze play and lost him, and he had two passed balls at critical

Fitzpatrick pitched good enough ball to win had he been given the right kind of support, but he was thresome in his deliberateness. The game was a joke, accentuated by Bray's uncertainties. When the Big McLean stood up in front of him Bray on tiptees could not tell the ball had been delivered until he heard it sound in McLean's glove. The score:
