CHURCH RECEIVED INTO FELLOWSHIP.
The St. John's Episcopal Church, recently organized with Rev. W. J. Upham as pastor, was last night received into the fellowship of the Congregational Churches of Portland. The council of recognition met yesterday afternoon, with Rev. J. J. Staub as moderator and Rev. A. M. Rockwood as clerk. Examination of the creed and general condition of the new church, a candidate for fellowship, was favorable, and at the meeting in the evening Rev. A. M. Rockwood reported the Council had admitted the church. The council was composed of Rev. J. J. Staub, Rev. E. J. House, Rev. A. M. Rockwood, Rev. D. B. Gray, Rev. H. N. Smith, Rev. C. F. Clapp, Rev. C. E. Chase and lay delegates. At the meeting last night, fellowship was extended to the new church by Rev. J. J. Staub, who acted as moderator. The new church was admitted last night. It owns a quarter-block on Richmond street, and plans are now being considered for the erection of a chapel to be completed this summer. The council is expected to meet during the afternoon at the tabernacle, in which the meetings were held.

LEE CHAPEL DISAPPEARS.—Lee Chapel, a pioneer landmark that stood on the corner of Powell and Milwaukee streets for the past 60 years or more, has been torn down. This building was erected by "Father" Clinton Kelly first as a Methodist Church, and later as a Presbyterian Chapel. In this old building such dignitaries as Bishop Jesse Peck, Rev. Thomas Parne, Rev. Mr. Roberts and all the prominent preachers of the city were wont to preach in the early days. Nearly every Methodist bishop who visited Portland was entertained at the hospitable home of Clinton Kelly, and preached in Lee Chapel. After it ceased to be church it became the schoolhouse, for a time, of District No. 2, and afterwards was used by the city schools for the overflow from Brooklyn and Clinton Kelly schoolhouses. There are many memories of Lee Chapel held in the minds of the old residents, and by its destruction are reminded of the progress of Portland from pioneer days.

CROSSING POLICEMEN.—Chief of Police Gritzenbacher will today issue an order changing the hours of the crossing patrolmen, so that they will go on duty at 5 A. M. and work a shift of eight hours. This will make it possible to have policemen on crowded corners in the business districts during the moon hours of the evening rush. The regular day patrol works from 7 A. M. until the new order of things, but the great necessity for crossing policemen during the rush hours of the day caused the Chief to change the crossing squad.

ARRESTED FOR EMBROIDERY.—A. R. Schiltman, who has been passing here under several aliases, was arrested yesterday by Detectives Day and Vaughn, on a charge of embezzlement. He is wanted in Kentucky. Under the name of Brown, he was arrested at the Municipal Court officials last week and caused the arrest of R. F. King, charging assault and battery. Yesterday the case was taken to court, and after it was settled, the arrest of R. F. King.

FUNERAL OF MISS ROSE M. RYAN.—The funeral of Miss Rose M. Ryan was held yesterday morning at the St. Francis church, East Eleventh street, at 10 A. M. Rev. J. H. Black conducted the services. At the conclusion of the services in the church the interment took place in the Riverside cemetery. Miss Ryan was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Ryan, and was 21 years old.

MEETING OF CLACKAMAS POMONA GRANGE.—Pomona Grange of Clackamas County, representing its subordinate Granges, met yesterday in an all-day session with Milwaukie Grange in Woodmen of the World Hall, William Grinstead, master, presided, and there were present about 20 representatives. Milwaukie Grange entertained its guests in a royal manner.

THE SAVINGS HABIT, once acquired, becomes an easy and natural one, and your watch at night. You cannot do a wiser, more prudent or better thing than to begin now to save money systematically. It surely will go to you, and the Oregon Savings Bank, Sixth and Morrison streets, offers you every opportunity to acquire this habit.

JOINT INSTALLATION.—Royal Circle, Women of Woodmen of the World, and Camp Woodmen of the Royal, will hold a joint installation this evening in Catholic Foresters Hall, on Sixth and Washington streets, at 8:30 P. M. An interesting program has been arranged for the occasion, and will be followed by dancing.

DR. JOHN WELCH'S FUNERAL.—The funeral of Dr. John Welch will take place this morning at his late home, 30 East Sixteenth street North, at 11 o'clock. Services will be under the auspices of the Odd-fellows' order, of which he was a member.

WILL HAVE COLONIAL DAY.—This year Oswego Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, will not hold its usual Fair, owing to the Lewis and Clark Exposition, but at the last meeting arranged to have Colonial Day the latter part of October.

HELD TO GRAND JURY.—Frank Eastman was held to the grand jury yesterday by Municipal Judge Cameron, the charge being a serious one, referred by Floyd Walker. Bail was fixed in the sum of $150.

DEBATE AT Y. M. C. A.—An interesting debate occurred last night in the auditorium of the Y. M. C. A., between John Z. White, of Chicago, an eloquent advocate of single-tax ideas, and A. Marrow Lewis, of Portland, representing the theories of Socialism. Ex-Mayor Williams presided at the meeting, which was packed by the adherents of both sides, and considerable enthusiasm prevailed in consequence, each claiming to have a shade the better of the argument. White, who is distinguished in his calling, will speak tonight at the People's Institute, Fourth and Burnside streets, on "The Right to Work."

REDONDO PROPERTY SOLD.—J. C. Airau, president of the United States National Bank, said yesterday that the Redondo properties of the Airauworth estate of Portland had been purchased by H. E. Huntington, of Los Angeles. The price paid is about $2,000. The properties consist of the Redondo townsite and 25 miles of electric railway connecting Redondo with Los Angeles.

SHOOTING AT SEASIDE.—George Sullivan, a plumber, shot at A. Biemel, a sailor, at 11 o'clock last night, at Third and Stark streets. The sailor drew a revolver in turn, but did not shoot, because the injured. The cause of the trouble is believed to be a woman whom Sullivan was with at the time of the row.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.—If you have been your Administration to the relations between the Board of Directors of the Chamber, through President Wheelwright, has sent an address to the President setting out the arguments of the Chamber, which are given as those of a great majority of the progressive citizens of the West, and urging upon the President some action at an early date. In opening his address Mr. Wheelwright says:

T. DANIEL FRAWLEY IS IN TOWN

Started Blanche Bates on Road to Fame and Has Starred Around the World

AT LAST a voice is raised in defense of Richard Harding Davis, one of the "steeplechase" writers of the world. The voice is that of T. Daniel Frawley, actor, manager, raconteur, traveler, citizen of California and in almost equal degree of the known globe. He says that Richard Harding Davis is greatly abused.

Frawley is as well satisfied with things at Shepard's Hotel, at Cairo, as at the Portland, and just as much at home. He used to know Gungu Ding, and has drunk from his canteen; they even tell it that he was on speaking terms with Mogli. He is the man who started Blanche Bates on the road to fame, the person who looks like Richard Harding Davis, and now at last the champion of that marvelous and much maligned Philadelphia personage.

WHO APPEARS TONIGHT AT THE MARQUAM GRAND IN RANSON'S POLLY.

I had never seen Frawley before, when I first looked upon him last night I wondered why "Dickie" had left off his medals, and what kind of a concession he had taken on the trail.

He is the man who started Blanche Bates on the road to fame, the person who looks like Richard Harding Davis, and now at last the champion of that marvelous and much maligned Philadelphia personage.

He has been spent in the Orient and other uttermost portions. He has been around the world more times than most of us have been to Salem, and is well known and very popular in a dozen foreign lands.

Next Fall he will produce a new play, "The Garden of Lilies," by Justus Miles Foreman, at Broadway theater, and promises to stay in his own country and stop gadding off abroad for awhile.

He has been around the world more times than most of us have been to Salem, and is well known and very popular in a dozen foreign lands.

SENDS LETTER TO PRESIDENT

Wheelwright Reveals Western Idea of the Chinese Question.

WOULD THROW DOORS OPEN Deems It Satisfactory to Admit Chinese Laborers Under Certain Restrictions—Present Law Fits Old Conditions.

The Portland Chamber of Commerce is in favor of the opening of the Western gate to the Chinese, of admitting laborers to the country under reasonable restrictions, and by these means overcoming the opposition to American institutions and American citizens that is arising in China not only in a commercial way but in other directions. In following this opinion the Board of Directors of the Chamber, through President Wheelwright, has sent an address to the President setting out the arguments of the Chamber, which are given as those of a great majority of the progressive citizens of the West, and urging upon the President some action at an early date.

The writer contends further that the Chinese exclusion act grew out of the new conditions of California and the West in which a blind fear raged that the overwhelming millions of the Orient might sweep the civilization of the West out of existence. This had been disproved as a theory and the change in conditions has educated the Western mind until exclusion is no more demanded here now than in the Middle West or in the East. It is not contended that the old spirit of intolerance is entirely dead, but that the time for the progressive ideas of the administration to open the door has come.

While the country appreciates the efforts that the government has recently made to insure better treatment of the few Chinese that come here, we are convinced that these efforts will not touch the root of the difficulty, and that the negotiation of a new treaty is necessary to the maintenance of the principles of humanity on which this government is founded and the establishment of harmonious relations between the United States and China. It is not only necessary that the laws by Congress here should be humane and fairly treated, and that all who have a right under existing treaties to admission shall be admitted without subject to harsh and humiliating treatment, and that registration papers issued to the Chinese by the American Consuls shall be accepted as final, but we believe it to be imperative that privileges similar to those enjoyed by the subjects of other nations shall be extended, under suitable restrictions, to the Chinese.

It is further contended that the immigration of the Chinese holds no more menace to the United States in general or to the West in particular than does the immigration daily pouring through the ports of the Atlantic seaboard. Vast areas of country are yet undeveloped in the West and will remain so under present labor conditions until some form of cheap labor is brought into the country, or is provided, to build the foundation for higher development. The work that is to be done by the Chinaman, in the event of his coming here, would not be a hindrance to the American labor, but by its accomplishment would open still wider and broader fields to it.

The effect of the exclusion of the Chinaman has upon Western commerce is treated at length by Mr. Wheelwright, who maintains that if the laws are not changed, the government of China will retaliate by opposition to American commerce, which will rob the Pacific Coast of its share of the bounty of 5 per cent of the total importations of China held by the entire United States. In concluding Mr. Wheelwright says:

It can readily be seen a very trifling increase in that proportion to American products which has already been in China owing to the unfriendly attitude of the United States toward the country and its subjects, will divert other nations the trifling percentage of her trade that we now control.
