Thirty New England schoolteachers reached the Exposition yesterday morning, after a journey across the continent as the guests of the Boston Herald. There is but one lone, solitary, unprotected man in the entire party, and he is a reporter sent out by his paper on the expedition. He reports a most pleasant and agreeable journey.

There are several well-known teachers in the party. Some are veterans and some beginners. Their trip across the country has been productive of many odd incidents.

The first night out from Boston brought the most exciting adventure of the tour. One of the members occupying an upper berth was puzzled how to get out in the morning, finally solving her troubles by grasping the berth firmly, and reached the floor, all unconscious that she had stopped the train. The engineer was having a fit in the engine cab, for the call to stop was premature. The conductor went through the train on the run and located the trouble. He would not trust himself to express his opinion till he was on the platform.

Has Taught Fifty Years.

Miss Underwood, the veteran of the party, celebrated her fiftieth anniversary in one school, in Coddington, Quincy, Mass., last April. A remarkable circumstance is that she received her own elementary education in the very school where she was afterward to teach for such a long term. She has lost, during the period, only two days on account of sickness, and in all only two more days on account of funerals in the family. She teaches the 8 and 9-year-old grade, and though often tempted by higher salaries to take other grades and go to other schools, she has held this position throughout. She is probably the best known woman in Quincy, receiving at her anniversary a purse of $500 in gold, subscribed in small amounts by Quincy citizens.

Thirty-Nine Years in High School.

Miss Leonard has taught for 39 years, always in high schools, and Miss McGraw has only six months less of service. Miss Leonard's birthday, number unknown, was celebrated by the party on the prairies coming out, a token of esteem being provided out of the fine fund, an improvised detail of the trip, any attempt of a teacher to talk shop entailing a fine of a nickel. An interesting incident coming out was that the Indian Head headquarters of the famous Northwest Mounted Police. The striking uniforms of the police created havoc with the camera films of the party, and at Medicine Hat a raid was made on the town for camera films for use in the mountains.

Mock Trial in Special Car.

Yesterday there was a mock trial in their special car, the sedatest member of the party being on trial for filching, found guilty and fined a box of chocolates, to be given the judge. Both attorneys appealed the case, to be retried on the prairie going home. During a stop at a station south of Seattle, the merriment of the trial was taken to indicate a wedding party, several fellow-passengers and Oregonians from the platform coming in to tender congratulations, but stayed for a while to follow the legal travesty.

The members of the party are charmed with Oregon scenery, being particularly struck by the small fruit found everywhere of a quality never found at home. The height of cultivation in the Valley of the Cowlitz was a revelation to the visitors, who, like many Easterners looked upon the West as more or less of a wilderness.

ON THE FIRST CALM DAY

Captain Baldwin Will Make Flight in Airship Angelus.

Upon the first calm afternoon Captain T. S. Baldwin, the aeronaut, will make an ascent in his airship, the "Angelus," at the Exposition. He will ascend several hundred feet in the air and then make a circle of the Exposition grounds, returning to the aeronautic concourse.

For the last two days Captain Baldwin has been in readiness to make an ascent in the airship, but it has been deferred, owing to the high wind. Captain Baldwin says that if he desired he could have made the ascent in the face of the high wind, but he is anxious to have his initial trip at the Exposition attended with success. The airship can be guided without difficulty in heavy winds, but during a blow it is hard to effect a successful landing. The "Angelus" is resting in its immense shed at the Exposition, and can be prepared to ascend in a few minutes' time.

While on his first ascent Captain Baldwin does not intend to make a long trip, later in the season he will fly over the City of Portland, circling around the Oregonian tower. He will make the trip in the afternoon, so that his flight around the Oregonian building can be witnessed by thousands of people. After circling the tower, Captain Baldwin will return to the Exposition. The date of his flight over Portland has not been decided upon.

FOR JOAQUIN MILLER DAY

Reception in Oregon Building and a Bohemian Smoker.

Tomorrow will be Joaquin Miller day at the Exposition. The famous poet of the Sierras will be the guest of honor at a public reception in the Oregon building during the afternoon and at a Bohemian smoker and luncheon in the evening.

At the afternoon reception Mr. Miller will recite several of his best poems. He will also speak of early pioneer days in Oregon.

Scandinavian Day at the Fair.

July 19 has been selected as Scandinavian day at the Exposition, and the people of North European lineage now residing on the Pacific Coast intend to make a big demonstration on that date. San Francisco will send a large delegation, together with the Swedish Singing Society, who will get here next week and remain about ten days. Seattle, Tacoma and other Puget Sound cities will contribute large excursions and singing clubs, and the musical exercises planned for the Auditorium will be on a large scale. Among the soloists who will take part are: Mrs. Lund, of Rockford, Ill.; Miss Elsie Larson, Miss Lillian Elsen and Mrs. O. M. Jensen, of Portland; Mrs. F. Hansen, of Tacoma; Professors Lovegreen and Lindberg, of Bethany College. Addresses will be made by Governor Chamberlain, who will extend a welcome to the visitors; J. N. Kihlback, Professor Ernest Philblad, Elfred Salin, of Seattle, and others, who are yet to be placed on the programme of the day.

Take Excursion to Astoria.

The members of the National Association of Food and Dairy Departments, who are holding a convention at the Lewis and Clark Exposition, adjourned yesterday and took a trip to Astoria. They convene again at 10 o'clock this morning in the Auditorium. In Astoria the pure-food advocates made a visit to all the salmon canneries. They were greatly interested in the modern methods of canning salmon, and spent several hours in visiting the different establishments. Every possible courtesy was extended them by the people of Astoria.

Governor Brooks Goes to Seashore.

Governor B. R. Brooks, of Wyoming, left yesterday morning for Astoria and Seaside, where he will spend the next three or four days quietly. He is accompanied by his staff.

Nebraska Exhibit.

Free moving picture exhibitions. Nebraska Pavilion, Agricultural Palace.

NORTH DAKOTA DAY JULY 18

North Dakota day will be celebrated at the Lewis and Clark Exposition on July 18 and the North Dakota Commission attends a cordial invitation to all former North Dakota people who are now living on the Coast to be present on that occasion. The Governor of North Dakota will be present at the state headquarters in the Agricultural building in the afternoon.

MAZAMAS' DAY AT EXPOSITION

Mountain-Climbing Clubs Have a Glorious Day at the Centennial.

FAIR GIVES WARM WELCOME

Members of Sierra and Appalachian
Clubs Join With the Portland Organization for Gathering at Centennial.

EXPOSITION ATTENDANCE, 16,391.
Attendance at the Exposition yesterday numbered 16,391.

Rejoicing in their common brotherhood, members of mountain-climbing clubs gathered at the Exposition yesterday in honor of the Mazamas day exercises in the Auditorium. Enthusiastic mountaineers from the East and West spent the afternoon recounting to each other their experiences in the wilds of New England, among the giant trees of California, and on the snow-clad slopes of the white peaks of the Pacific Northwest.

Never before in the history of American mountain-climbing have there been representatives of so many parts of the United States present in a single meeting. Big delegations from the Appalachian and Sierra Clubs, combined with the Mazamas to make the day a memorable one.

For many weeks Mazamas have been making active preparations for a making programme for their day at the Exposition. When it was finally known that, beside their own members, there would also be present delegations from the Appalachian and Sierra Clubs, it was seen that the meeting of mountain-climbers would be a most representative one.

Exercises in Auditorium.

Shortly before 3 o'clock the mountaineers began filing into the Auditorium. All were furnished with little badges bearing the club emblem and the word "Mazama" in big type. The hall was well filled by the time the exercises began.

A majority of those present were members of the recent automobile excursion to Mount Hood, and those who were not accustomed to climbing snow-capped peaks showed it. Some were sunburned almost beyond recognition, but all were happy. The ruddy glow on every cheek showed those who had taken nature's outdoor remedy for human ills.

H. H. Northup, good Mazama of long standing and president of the club, presided over the exercises of the afternoon. De Caprio's Administration Band furnished several musical numbers, which were loudly applauded.

Mr. Northup introduced President Goode, of the Exposition Corporation. During the course of his welcoming address, Mr. Goode said:

"Members of the Sierra, Appalachian and Mazama Clubs, I hereby tender you an official welcome to the Exposition. I assure you that we are under deep obligations to you for turning out to these exercises so generously.

"I am ashamed to say that I have never climbed any of these high mountains, so I cannot talk with you on many topics which are doubtless of great interest to you.

"It is our scenery that attracts Eastern people. Many have seen larger positions than this one in commemoration of Lewis and Clark, but there has never been a Fair with such beautiful surroundings. Great credit is due the Mazamas for bringing the mountains of our Northwest states into favorable notice. It is due largely to the members of that organization that the people of the East know about our snow-capped peaks."

In the name of the Mazamas, Mr. Northup welcomed the visiting mountaineers to the exercises. He spoke a few words on the history of the Mazamas, how the club was founded on Mount Hood 14 years ago, and how the membership was limited to persons who had climbed to the top of a mountain upon whose sides existed everlasting glaciers. His remarks were heartily applauded by the audience.

William E. Colby, of Berkeley, Cal., represented the Sierra Club. Mr. Colby said that the Sierra Club stood for

A FINE PROGRAM

Mid-Summer Series of Morning
Pianola Recitals.

Below is today's programme for the series of Pianola and Orchestral recitals given daily, except Saturday, by Portland's leading piano house. These concerts are extremely entertaining. They are entirely a complimentary function, to which the people of Portland and Fair visitors are cordially invited. Musicians, music students and music lovers alike will find them extremely interesting. Concerts are given between the hours of 10:30 and 11:30 A. M. at Ellers Piano House, 321 Washington street.

PROGRAMME
Orchestral—"Tannhauser" Overture.... Wagner
Pianola—(a) Moonlight Sonata, Beethoven
(b) Revue Etude, Chopin
Orchestral—Vorspell..... Wagner
Pianola—(a) Scherzo, B. Min. Chopin
(b) Rhapsodie Hongroise, No. 1, Liszt

In addition, three request numbers will be given by the Ellers Piano House, at the address, Ellers Piano House, 321 Washington, corner Park (Eighty) street.

everything that pertained to the out of doors.

"We find that we must get back to the mountains again now and then, and this time we have come a long way from California to do so. We are all like the giant that had to remain in touch with Mother Earth or he would lose all his strength. We have to keep in touch with nature."

The last speaker of the day was William A. Brooks, of the Appalachian Club of the Atlantic Coast. Mr. Brooks lives in the Wellesley Hills, near Boston, and is an enthusiastic mountaineer. He spoke of the difference that existed between Eastern and Western mountains, and that perpetual snow and ice were strange things to many members of his club.

"There is something about the mountains that raises our ideas and our morals," said Mr. Brooks. Immediately after the exercises in the Auditorium, the Mazamas held an informal reception in the Forestry building in honor of the visitors. The time was spent swapping tales and stories of experiences. Out on the north steps of the building a picture of the mountaineers was taken, including members of the three different clubs that participated in yesterday's exercises.

Today the visitors will be taken up the Columbia River on the steamer Ione, probably as far as Cascade Locks. The boat will leave at 7 o'clock. This evening a large excursion of more than 200 will leave over the Northern Pacific at 11 o'clock for Tacoma, where the party will travel by the Tacoma & Eastern to Ashford. Here the climbers will hit the trail for Longmire Springs, on the Upper Nisqually, and finally Paradise Valley, on the south side of the mountain. This will be the main camp for two weeks, during which time the mountaineers will explore Mount Rainier.

First to Climb Rainier.

This ascent of Rainier will be honored by the presence of General Hazard Stevens, of Boston, who made the first ascent of Rainier in 1870, with F. B. Van Trump and General Stetson. Stevens will lead the party, and will carry with him on the climb the identical alpenstock that he used on that occasion 35 years ago, the first alpenstock that was ever carried to the summit of Mount Rainier. The first ascent was made by way of Longmire's Springs, Paradise Park and Gibraltar, which is practically the same route that will be followed this year. As many of the rocks and what are now notable and familiar landmarks were named by General Stevens, the presence of this explorer at Mazama campfires will add an unusual interest to the starting outing.

Starting before daylight, August 17, 1870, the two young athletes reached the summit at 5 P. M. after 12 hours of hard, unrelenting toil. They had expected to return the same day, and had, therefore, left behind them in camp their coats and blankets, which they left entirely unprotected from the icy blasts that swept the summit. Finding that it was necessary to remain all night on the peak they sought one of the three craters and warming themselves by the jets of steam that issued from the rocks, they built themselves a wall of stones to shelter them from the wintry hurricane. But the smell of the sulphur, as well as the whistling winds that froze their steaming, saturated clothing, made the night anything but comfortable. But in spite of this unusual exposure to the elements on the summit of the snow-peaked they were able to make the slow and dangerous descent of the mountain in safety the following day.

TWO-BIT RATE IS POPULAR

Trail Feels Effect of the Reduction in Admission.

The inauguration of the 25-cent rate has done more to popularize the Exposition at night than any other action taken by the management to increase the attendance. The results were immediate, the increased attendance being noticeable Tuesday night, when the reduced rate went into effect.

Liberator's band, which has always been successful in drawing many people, is attracting even larger crowds. Hundreds of people assemble every night to hear the concerts which are steadily growing more popular.

The concessionaires are delighted, and instead of the rank pessimism with which they were afflicted only a few days ago, they are now taking a more cheerful view of their prospects, and very few expressions of dissatisfaction are heard among them. The crowds at night have more than doubled since the night rate went into effect.

predict that they will have it before many weeks are past.

Last night the Trail was thronged with people until the gates were closed, and all of the shows were liberally patronized. More local persons are attending the Exposition at night and visiting the Trail than at any time since the Fair has been open. The concessionaires say that until recently they have experienced great difficulty in securing the patronage of the Portland people, even when there were large crowds on the Trail. Now they say that the public seems to have more confidence in the attractions and that the visitors spend their money without hesitation.

The concessionaires say they are going to stretch a canvas from one end of the Trail to the other to shade the amusement street from the hot sun during the middle of the day. In the daytime, except late in the afternoon, very few people visit the Trail, as there is no protection from the sun. They stay in the buildings and under the trees as much as possible. The stretching of a canvas would make the Trail cool and comfortable all day.
