Restraining Influence at Work in Stock Exchange.

FURTHER RECOVERY NO

Careful Inquiry Throws Doubt on Authority for Rumors of Dividend Increases, Circulated on the Previous Day.

NEW YORK, July 13.-The vigorous recovery of yesterday from the effects of the sharp speculative liquidation of the day before aroused brilliant hopes in the minds of a professional element that the stock market was to feel the benefit of the improved technical position resulting from the digestion of profits and would be prepared to renew the advance without serious obstacles. The results, however, disappointed these hopes and offered an admonition that some restraining force exists upon any immediate renewal of immeasured speculative operations. What the restraining force may be does not appear on the face of developments, but it is conjectured in the neighborhood of the flock Exchange that the banking authorities would be willing to secure a restriction on the amount of funds borrowed for the purof speculative commitments in stocks antil other Autumn requirements on the toney market are better defined. The market started off with something like a rus htoday in continuation of the husyant movement at the close yesterday. The strength thus shown was promptly taken advantage of to realize profits by professional traders who secured holdings on the decline of Tuca-

of an extended recovery. More careful inquiry served to throw doubts on the authority for some of the excited rumore circulated late yesterday as to an intended large distribution of surplus assets to Northern Pacific and Great Northern stockholders, although it was sought in connection with those rumors to revive the whole series of rumors regarding plans for a readjustment of Northern Securities holdings. The most effective response today was in St. Paul and Archison. The response of Baltimore & Onlo to the Increase in its dividend rate was also a disappointment to the followers of the mar-ket. It is, to be sure, according to nu-merous precedents for a stock to react or the publication of the news which was the motive for its advance, but the immediate precedent of the uninterrupted advance of Reading after its dividend increase had aroused hopes of a new order of things. The effect of the dividend action on Baltimore & Ohlo was seen, however, in Pennsylvania and Norfolk & Western, which enjoyed a season of strength.

season of strength. The July fron statistics failed to show any of the revival of which there has been talk in stock market circles, in connection with the recent strength of the steel industrials, but the contemplation of prodigious figures of the half year's production and consumption made an impreferive lesson of the vast expansion in this industry and of the far-reaching influence of this fact on the industry of the
