Yesterday was Schoolteachers' day at the Massachusetts building, and impressive ceremonies were held in honor of the 20 women who have been sent to see the Exposition by the Boston Herald. the day, with an informal reception and refreshments for the guests. The 30 teachers came West over the Canadian Pacific, as guests of the Her-sid, which held a voting contest during the Spring for the purpose of picking the ones. They had a please across the continent, and arrived in Portland tired but happy.

Immediately after their arrival, Senator K. Fairbank, of the Massachusetts Commission, planned an entertainment in their honor. Invitations were sent out to the members of the New England Society. which gathered in large numbers yester-day afternoon to listen to the speeches.

Presides at Meeting.

Portland gave the largest private picnic in its annals yesterday when the doctors entertained the visiting delegates to the American Medical Convention with a boat ride up the river and a planked salmon dinner at Bonneville. Four river steamers, the Gatzert, Spencer, Potter and Un-dine, pulled out from the Ash-street dock Fourth United States Cavalry have are at 9 o'clock, loaded to the water's edge rived at the Exposition, and during the mith their lively freight, the perfect day next month will give concerts twice a and the good nature of the crowd making day in the portico of the Government the occasion a most enjoyable one. There was a good-natured rivalry among the hoats as to speed, and much waving and rying prominent physicians and their friends, including Dr. K. A. J: Macken-zle's party, arrived shortly after the boats, and in returning, this party took the boat ride and about 235 of the boat the boat ride and about 215 of the boat passengers returned by train. The task of handling a crowd of 3000 people and serving them an outdoor luncheon was a difficult one, but the committee in charge arranged matters so perfectly that everything worked with greatest smoothness and there was not an incident to mar the success of the day. The delegates are unanimous in declaring that they have never been treated so royally at any convention as in Portland, and that the fame of Western hospitality is no myth. Some of Western hospitality is no myth. Some of them left the city on evening trains, and many more went this morning, all completely tired out after the round of social events which the Oregon doctors planned for their entertainment and which they so thoroughly enjoyed, .

EXPOSITION NOTES.

Tournament games will begin Monday and continue until July 21. The club has extended to fair visitors an invitation attend the matches.

This tournament is open to members of ennis associations from all parts of the United States and Canada, and a large number of entries have been received. The reception to Joaquin Miller in the Oregon building today is a public affair, no special invitations, having been extended. The famous American poet will recite several of his poems and will de-liver an address. In the evening he will be the guest of honor at a smoker and banquet at the American Inn, for which invitations have been issued to about 40 Exposition, Government and state offi-

During the progress of the annual session there will be several sectional meetings and visits to the state institutions at Salem. Delegates will visit the Centennial and make side trips to points of interest near the city.

PROBLEMS OF CHILD LIFE

Noted Speakers Discuss That and Immigration Question.

In her address at Temple Beth Israel last evening upon the subject, "The Child and Problems of Child-Life," Mrs. Florence Kelley, of New York, told some in-teresting stories of the struggles of the children of the poor in the great metropolis, and of their education, successes, hardships and failures. She also spoke of philanthropic work done in their be half. She told of the burdens caused by heavy immigration and the attempts m to distribute some of the newcomers elsewhere, and said that 8000 families were scattered throughout the county in a year, the arrivals in a week being sometimes that many. The landing of immore congenial, less populated parts of the country, was advised,

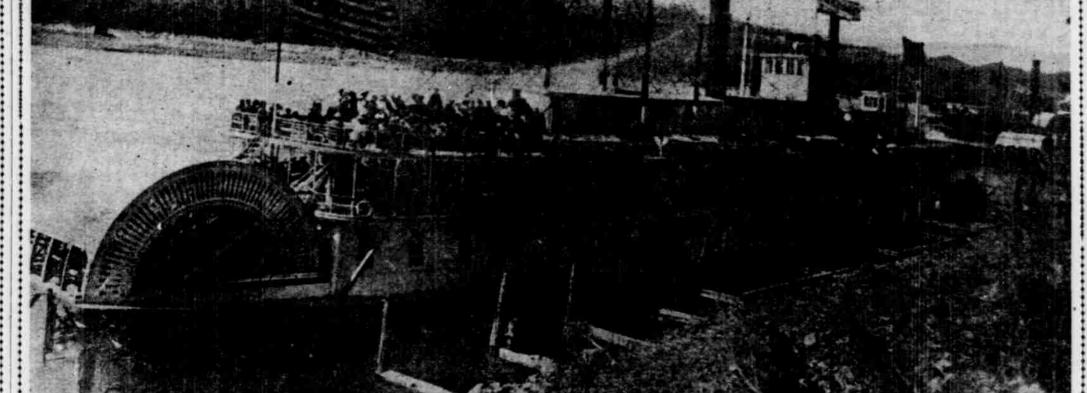

Rabbi P. D. Coffee, late superintendent of the Hebrew Orphan Asylum in New York, spoke concerning its work. Corporal punishment, he said, was never re-sorted to, but instead the children were controlled through moral sussion. ## Celebrate Full of Bastile

In commemoration of the fall of the Bastile, yesterday was made a French fete day at the Exposition, and four bands filled the air with patriotic relec-tions. "Le Marseillaise" counded from every bandstand on the grounds, and brought tender recollections to the minds of French sightseers at the Fair. July 14 is in a measure a "Fourth of July" in France, and is always celebrat-ed in a fitting manner. The day is feted in Europe and America, in memory of the birth of liberty in Paris. Four hands played patriotic music among the numbers on the programme. Liberati's musicians in the bandstand, DeCaprio's Administration Band at the Oregon building, the Sherman Indians and the Fourth Cavalry Band were those which entertained visitors.

Last year an attempt was made at the convention held in St. Louis, to adopt certain food standards, foreign to those of the Department of Agriculture, but the Government forces were too strong and the resolution presented for this purpose failed to pass.

New Food Standards.

The adoption of new food standards by the National Association of State Dairy and Food Departments is an open critic-ism of those of the Department of Agriulture and cannot be interpreted in any other way. The members of the associa-tion, and many of them in Portland attending the convention, are among the foremost chemists in the United States, and are not satisfied with the methods of the Department of Agriculture, pertaining to pure food, and believe they can body, not hampered by the Government

Ever since the opening of the convention at the Exposition, the pure food advocates, who do not inforse the standards of the Department of Agriculture, have been marshalling their forces for the es-tablishment of new standards. The climax came yesterday morning when Dr. E. N. Exton, Illinois State Chemist, delivered an address on "State versus Naional Standards." Dr. Eaton was loudly applauded again and again as he told of the insufficiency of the food standards set by the Department of Agriculture and how the work of the National Asso-ciation of State Dairy and Food Departments had been hindered by the Governent officials. He criticised and ridiculed the standards of the Department of Agri culture, and his statements were heartily approved by nearly all of the members of the association present at the morning

"The agricultural standards are not practical standards," said Dr. Eaton in the course of his address. "The men having most to do in preparing them are not familiar either with the manufacturing side or the food control side and consequently make curious mistakes and blunders—and this notwithstanding the snail-like progress and the advantage of ice and personal meetings acturers. These blunders in with manufacturers. standards are especially noticeable in the schedules for flavoring extracts where unusual strength preparations are advocated end some, such as almond extract of such a strength as would be actually poison ous when used as a food. They have recommended the medicinal strength.

Standards Must Be Elastic.

"The agricultural standards do not provide for any improvement. As I have be-fore observed, to this association, standards must be elastic. They must keep pace with the progress of science. The no tion that standards once made are sacred, that they are above facts and criticism, is bigotory, and we are living in too enlightened an age to confuse opinion with truth or credit the fiction that kings can o no wrong

Critchfield Leaves Convention. Yesterday afternoon Mr. Critchfield in-

uired as to the investigation, demanding that it be made to erase the stain from the association. President W. W. P. Mc-Connell, of Minnesota, stated that he had never heard of it, and Secretary R. M. Allen, of Kentucky, said the matter had been neglected. H. B. Myers, who has had the contract for the publishing of the records of the proceedings, took the floor and announced that all money obtained through advertising had been turned into treasury of the association, that there was absolutely no truth in the allegations of the manufacturers. Mr. Critchfield thought the receiving of the money and the laxity of the investigation of the charges were reflections on the in-tegrity of the association, as it might be construed to be indicative of the food in terests having a control in the affairs the association, and withdrew.

Hot words were spoken by the mem-bers of the association, who took sides in the controversy, and it looked for a time as though the meeting would break up in disorder. The withdrawal of Mr. Critchfield ended the discussion. Various members apologized to Mr. Critchfield, but he refused to rescind his withdrawal. Resolutions were adopted immediately afterward, prohibiting advertisements in the official publications of the proceedings of the organization. Another resolution was adopted forbidding members of the association, allied with any food or liquor interests, to hold office in the organiza-Officers Are Chosen.
