She has aiready secured the permanent attention of all parts of our own great country and rapidly are these good people coming to be sons of the South. They well know that, in addition to all material advantage for all kinds of development, there resides in the South that spirit of true and correct interpretation of the constitution of the United States, by which, free from anarchy or plutocracy and all such evils, the South shall be looked to for the preservation and the maintenance of the supremacy of that constitution.

In the afternoon he gave a ringing appeal for Canby, was, totally destroyed by fire early this morning, together with a considerable quantity of manufactured lumber. There was no insurance and the loss will approximate $3000.

Speaking of the Esch-Townsend bill, he said the proposed legislation was con-sidered most harmful to the whole country and especially to the South. On this point Mr. Hardwick said in part: This rate-making power by a bureau of the Government would affect our whole bussed land. But I consider, as a business proposition, it must affect the South at this time more than any other section because the South possesses such limities, undersloped propurers of such other section can much longer have the advantage, if the South is given a fair showing and a reasonable opportunity. Now, at this critical juncture, if left free, she will soon equal, aye, even surpass, all other sections in her triumphant

Now, at this critical juncture, it left free, she will soon equal, aye, even surpass, all other sections in her triumphant development.

Then let us do nothing to hamper or hinder that progress of the South. Let us not be disturbed by the envying of other sections, but let us emulate the progress of other sections of our great country. Let our watchword ever be that the South hath need of her sous. Not in narrowness nor in selfishness, but in a spirit of the broadest patriotism, let us remember that here is our home and this is our immediate responsibility, indeed, our giorious heritage. Our responsibility is to advance the progress of the South and not to permit such automal legislation, nor any other legislation, to cast us back 19, 30, 30 years and all the hard work of those years to be done over again, with increasing burden and diminishing encouragement.

Think of the tremendous array of laboring people who are dependent upon railroads, directly or collaterally, for a livelihood, numbering in this country from 10,000,000 to 15,000,000 all spending their carnings with the tradesmen, storekepers, with the professional men, the pressert, and think what they contribute to religious and charitable work, what good citizens they are, and shall their needs have no hearing nor influence? Shall they be beset with calamitous conditions by having their forces reduced and the wages of the remaining ones cut down. Has the Esch-Townsend bill a right to disregard all these conditions and consequences?

Railroads must keep their expenses wo...in their income; so they must curtail, or mayhap finally close, their operations. But it is in no selfish way that I appeal to you and all our brethren of the South, but I repeat I am come to ask you to do nothing to enthrall the South to any other section in this present progress of her development, but let her be forever unshackled, free to obtain the best terms for herself; free to deal with her own railroads, to be able to go to her own railroads, to be able to go to her own railr Let us reason together about our mon needs. You surely must have
