PRAISES JOB'S WIFE

Rev. R. D. Grant Says Her Advice Roused Job's Fighting Spirit.

COMPARES BOOK TO DRAMA

Dr. Hoadley's Talk on Holmes Magic by-Professor Carter and Ball Game Complete Chautauqua Programme.

GLADSTONE PARK, July 20 .- (Special.)-Job's wife, who has been thoroughly criticised for centuries for the advice she gave her husband while he was suffering from boils, was vindi-cated this afternoon at Gladstone Park by Rev. Roland Dwight Grant. Her admonition to "curse God and die," said the speaker, was the best advice that could have been given, as it roused the fighting spirit of the sufferer and caused him to place still greater faith in the Almighty.

Rev. Mr. Grant's presentation of the book of Job was novel. He likened it to a drama, surpassing the works of Shakespeare, and in presenting it to his hearers he divided the principal parts of the book into acts, presenting the picture of the meeting of the devil with the Lord, and the subsequent suf-fering of Job. His descriptions were vividly presented, especially the part where the sufferer gave way under his filictions and curred the day he was Little reference was made to the part Job's wife took in the drama, but all through the presentation of the tale the speaker showed the contrariness of human nature in believing the opposite from that which was told, and claimed that believing the worst had happened suffering was alleviated. In this way he asserted that the consolution offered by Mrs. Job vindicated her in the light of the present day.

Rev. Mr. Grant defined the Bible as a snap shot of human affairs, saying that Aside from the lecture by Rev. Mr.

Grant, the feature of the programme was the exhibition of magic by Professor Carter, who mystified his audience for two hours with Oriental exhibitions. His sleight-of-hand performances drew a crowd that filled the auditorium.

crowd that filled the auditorium.

Dr. B. J. Hondley, before his class in American literature, speaking of Holmes, said that "Old Ironsides" and "The Chambered Nautilus" would remain immortal verse, but that the prose writings of Holmes indicated his willingness to say "I." However, he had the ability to utter the right word to express his meaning. to express his meaning.
