WINNERS ON THE TENNIS COURTS

Portland Loses All Chance of Championship in the International.

GAMES ARE HARD FOUGHT

Both Tournaments Are Now Brought Close to the Finals With Some Interesting Events to Be Played Off.

THE TENNIS PROGRAMME. The programme for teday's tennis tournament follows:

B A. M.-Court 1, McBurney vs. Armstrong (International). 10 A. M.-Court 2, McBurney and

Walker vs. Armstrong and Benham (International). 2 P. M .- Court 1, finals international singles, Schwengers vs. Armstrong or McBurney.

4 P. M.-Court 1, finals Lewis and Clark doubles, Hunter and Macrae vs.

The results in the tennis matches yes tefday brought both the Lewis and Clark and the International tournament down close to the finals. As the tournament progresses, the best men are naturally left and the consequence is that the quality of the tennis improves greatly. Yesterday some of the best men came to gether in matches that attracted much applause from the spectators. Contrary to the experience of Wednesday, the singles proved to be of greater interest than the doubles in yesterday's contests Some extremely good battles took place during the day.

Chief among these were the matche between Wickersham and McBurney, of between Wickersham and McBurney, of Spokane, in which McBurney won after two hard sets. Armstrong, of Tacoma and Hunter, of Victoria, had a four-set match, which Armstrong succeeded in winning by the acore of 6-1, 5-7, 6-1, 6-6. Gorham, of Los Angeles, proved the predictions of his friends to be true by winning from McAlpine 6-1, 6-1. Gorham has some difficult strokes to return, and in addition he is active and has a good eye. But best of all he has the ability to deceive his opponent regarding what he intends to do with the ball. Armstrong won his second match of the day by deends to do with the ball.

on his second match of the day by defeating Hudman in decisive style. But when he met MacRae, of Victoria, he en-countered a man-more than his equal. facRae is somewhat weak on his backpancieus is somewhat weak on his back-hand, but he managed to overcome this handicap by the vigor and accuracy of his forehand strokes and by the swiftness of his service. Swengers, of Victoria, had an easy match when he met Paschall, of Seattle, and won in three straight sets 6-0, 6-2, 6-1. Walker, of Spokane, defeated Rohr, 6-2, 6-4.

Best Match of the Day.

The best match of the day, however, was that between Goss, of Portland, and McBurney, of Spokane. Goss won the first set rather easily, but McBurney had the strength and the strokes to win the next three. The defeat of Goss took away all chance of any Portlander winning the championship in the international, as his defeat by Schwengers yesterday did in the Lewis and Clark. The excellent points in McBurney's game is the lent points in McBurney's game is the great depth he has to his returns and the hard, quick cross-court returns, particularly on the backhand volleys. His cond, Edith James third; time, 1:134-5.

Mile and one-sixteenth—Chinney Sweep Mile and one-sixteenth—Chinney Sweep Canton third; time, return of any of the many good players in the tournaments. In his overhead work, he can hardly be beaten. In fact, the only way Goes was able to win points from him was by keeping his returns low. McBurney, if he keeps at the game and has strong competition, will be heard from many times in the future.

Results of the Doubles.

In the doubles, Hudman and Ewing started the day by winning from Busch, of San Francisco, and Durham, of Irvington, in two sets out of three in the Lewis and Clark. Considering that this is only the second match that Busch and Durham have played together, they did remarkably well. McBurney and Walker defeated Remington and Paschall, of Olympia, in the straight sets in the international, and thus wou into the semi-finals. Later in thus won into the semi-finals. Later in the day they won from Hudman and Ewing in straight sets, stnd thus earned the right to play in the finals, Prince and Fenton went to defeat before Hunter and MacRae, who won another match also, by default, from Schwengers and Dewdney,

Fine Games Played.

Taking it all in all, the 15 matches that Taking it all in all, the li matches that were played, represented a fine exhibition of the greatest of the truly amateur game, and brought the schedule down to where it will be possible to play off the remaining matches today and tomorrow without giving anyone more work than he can stand. The fact of the matter is that a man who goes through two such large tournaments as these may as well make up his mind to do a terrific amount of work. The more he wins the oftener he will have to play, and the nearer he approaches to the finals the harder his work will be. To the credit of the contestants in the international and the Lewis and Cark, he it said, they have accepted with good grace the schedule which the committee has made up after hours of work, and have borne the heavy work without complaint.

Today's and tomorrow's schedule present some great matches, including as they do some of the finals. The matches will all be played on the two new upper courts, which are in fine condition, and where there are shady accommodations

Athlete. .

The last day of the Lewis and Clark and diving championship passed off without a hitch, proving to be the greatest aquatic sport of the kind ever held in the Northwest. Once more young Handy, the Chicago Y. M. C. A. boy, proved too much for his opponents, and demonstrated to the large crowd and demonstrated to the large crowd that had gathered on the Bridge of Nations that he was a finished awimmer, having speed and wonderful endurance. Three men, Handy, of Chicago; Galley, of San Francisco, and Mackie, of the Portland Rowing Club, started in the race, but Mackie dropped out after the first 220 yards. The race then lay between Handy and Galley. For the first quarter it was nip and tuck and seemed to be either's race. They both turned and started on the second quarter together, but it was not very long until Handy began pulling away from Galley. At the end of the half mile Handy was about a minute ahead of Galley, slowly increasing this lead to the finish, coming in more than two minutes ahead of Galley.

Withal it was a pretty race to watch and the spectators followed every stroke of the swimmers with great interest, Handy certifulty made a great his with team yesterday for what they had done to him on the previous day. The young Tiger star had everything and dished it up to McCredie's giants in such a mystifying fashion that they were unable to negotiate the platter in more than one instance, and on this occasion the run was the result of a long triple by Eddie Householder and a timely single on the part of Larry McLean Keefe was found safely for seven bingoes but they were kept widely scattered except in the instance named, while on the other hand a couple of safe hits, together with two bases on balls, were secured off Adelbert Jones in the aixtn chapter, which resulted in three tigers planting their tootsies on the pan after making the circuit, and chas-ing visions of another local victory to the tall and uncut timber.

Jonesy started this inning by pass-ing Doyle and Tommy Sheehan sin-gled. Nordyke went out at first, and Truck Eagan was passed, filling the bags. McLaughlin's hit scored two and a long fly to McCredie gave the other. A two-bagger by McLaughlin other. A two-bagger by McLaughlin and Lynch's single waich went through Householder and rolled clear to the scoreboard allowed both these worthles to score in the ninth.

Umpire. Davis was confined to his room yesterday with a severe cold and Happy Hogan and Teddy Corbett acted in his stead. They performed in a creditable manner, for the only dispute that occurred during the matinee came in the ninth inning, when Hogan called Householder out on strikes.

The fielding of Atr. Schiafly and Ea-gan was excellent, for this trio did some very clever stunts in the game. The two shortstops each came to the relief of the two pitchers by pulling off a fast double play at a critical time. Emerson and French will probably be the opposing twirlers in today's con-

McIntosh took the boy to Oakland, but there he rode in hard luck and it was not until he began riding at Seattle that he began to attract attention. There he rode 152 horses that were in the money and closed the meeting the winning lockey of the season. Logue won the Seattle Derby with Gioomy Gus. He is a well-mannered and molest boy and one that bids fair to be as much in the public eye as Hildebrand, who also began his successful turf career at the Mendows.
