

BURIED IN PRISON AND FORGOTTEN

John Gales Spends Twenty-Three Years Awaiting Summons to Gallows.

EXPECTED IT EVERY DAY

Liberty Claimed for Illinois Murderer Whom Law Sentenced, Then Overlooked—Sisters Reveal Secret.

CHICAGO, July 21.—For twenty-three years John Gales, a murderer from Cook County, has been practically buried in the State Penitentiary in Joliet, wondering each day if the next was to be the day of his execution.

All these years he was afraid to ask about the day of his doom lest he should betray to the ears of the authorities and cause the imprisoned brother his life on the scaffold.

Sisters Break Long Silence.

For twenty-three years they observed silence and could stand the strain no longer. Kate Gales, one of the sisters, told the strange story to members of the Luxemburg Independent Club.

They carried the matter to an attorney, who declared that the law had forfeited its right to hang Gales because the execution was not carried out to the letter of the court's order.

Is He Legally Dead?

There then arises the question, Is Gales legally dead? Has the law lost its power to deal with him for a cold-blooded murder, on the charge of which he was legally tried and found guilty by a jury properly constituted and qualified?

Warrant Found, but Not Executed.

The order for the hanging on March 24, 1882, was issued by Judge William H. Barron in the presence of the then State's Attorney Luther Laflin Mills.

Judge Kersten, from whom the writ of habeas corpus has been asked, is in doubt whether he should grant a hearing for release for a man doomed to the scaffold, and he has referred the case to the State's Attorney for investigation of the records.

INDICTS MORE GRAFTERS

Milwaukee Grand Jury Returns Batch Against Public Officials.

MILWAUKEE, July 21.—Twenty-four true bills against 14 individuals were today returned by the grand jury, which has been investigating alleged "grafting."

Tonight's list contains seven new names, the most prominent being Thomas A. Clancy, chief of the Fire Department, who is indicted on one count, the charge being perjury.

Will Oust Treasurer Kelly.

TOPEKA, Kan., July 21.—Governor Hoch announced this afternoon that he would declare the office of State Treasurer, now held by T. T. Kelly, vacant because of Kelly's refusal to give a new bond, his old bond having been involved in the recent failure of C. J. Devlin.

The Bones of Jones vs. Early Saturday Closing

Few people deny the fact that the bones soon to arrive, and obtained at an expenditure of much time and a tidy sum of money, in this country from France, are those of the famous American Admiral, John Paul Jones. Most folk are willing and glad to concede that they are. It makes little difference to Jones—or, for that part, to anyone else—whether they be or not.

This store closes on Saturday—as on all days—at 6 P. M.

Brilliant Bargains Abound in Millinery Salons
