ome Good Races Are Run on the Irvington Tracks Which Good-Sized Crowd Watches With Interest.

A fair lot of seiling platers furnished the amusement for the crowd at Irving-ton yesterday afternoon, and as an extra measure thrown in on the side, a right lively selling war was started. Tobe Ramsey was the first of the owners to appear in the selling ring. The owner of Judge. Horatius and several other good ones was suddenly seized with the "boosting" habit when I. Brown's Cascade of Diamonds wen the third race. Brown protected his bread-winner until Ramsey overbid his pile, and he let him go for $700. Ramsey. ought a clever colt and a very cheap

Holmes was the next man that had W. Holmes was the next man that had a halter concealed about his person. He waited until Follow Me won the last race of the day, and then he began slinging hundreds at Presiding Judge Skinner until that official grey diray. Holmes must have wanted Follow Me very badly, for he never stopped bidding until the figures stood an even $1000. L. C. Williams also wanted his nag to follow him back to his own little bed of straw, and he bid the customary $5 and retained his horse. Williams had his horse entered for $300, and it cost him $765 to keep the horse.

Jackfull a Bad Actor.

There was a large Monday crowd on hand, and the only thing that marred the day's racing was when Jackfull, a notoriously bad actor, was left at the post. When Starter Mulhollad had them all in line, he sprung the barrier. Jackfull, the even-money favorite, jumped up in the air and jackknifed like a balky mule. The here was unable to get him turned around. air and jackknifes his a bank more he boy was unable to get him turned around, even when the field had passed the first bend. This is not the first time that Jackfull has turned this trick. The most of those who had taken a chance on him knew that they might expect him to do this trick, so they found no fault with the start.

The first race on the card was a cake-walk for Birdle. P. J. Clark took her to the front in the five-eighths, and after that there was nothing behind her that could have caught her with an automobile. The race was just a nice work-out for her, and all the boy had to do was to sit still and let the rest of the field race their heads off for the short ends of the purse. Chabils was the second choice. She got off in front, but there was a bit too much early speed, and the boy took her back. He made his ride after they were straightened away for the wire, and she closed stoutly. Tramway, a nice price on the limb, ran a clever race, and beat Penance for the show money by a length. Evermore was messed about a little, but made up considerable ground at the end,

Dr. Sherman came to life in the second race and won easily. The Doctor broke away flying, but Graham, who was one of ccessful riders at the Denver meettook him back and waited. This was his first race at the meeting, and the ride he gave the Doctor showed that he had a good head, and he made his move with good head, and he made his move with Sherman just at the right time. Many had figured Abydos the best, but Graham, when he started to let the Doctor down, kept after him until he was under the wire, winner by a length. Abydos ran his race, so did Charles Lamar, who cut out the running throughout most of the jour-ney, but he tired badly when the final struggle came. Happy dogged it.

Cascade of Diamonds' Race.

Cascade of Diamonds made the rest that were running behind him look cheap. He was the pony express of the party, and when he got the right of way he simply tow-roped his field and won as he pleased by three lengths. The bulk of the play went in on Bellona, but the filling was hed and after lending Diamonds for went in on Bellona, but the filling was had, and after leading Diamonds for a part of the route, she faded away and was beaton by Syphon Girl by a neck for the place. Syphon Girl was away all in a tangle, or she might have given the chestnut son of Horatio a better race. The rest of them had no chance. Tobe Ramsey ran Diamonds up to $500 and took him to his stable.

Jingler was there with tinkling bells in the fourth race. B. Bowell took the shortest way home, and by hugging the shortest way home, and by hugging the

Calculate hung on gamely, and had to stave off the belated rush that Anirad

Follow Me's Great Work.

Little Graham gave Libble Candid a great ride. He had a nice-hold of her all the way, and had several notches left to stall off the rush that Hobart maße on Fille d'Or at the end. Hobart waited too Fille d'Or at the end. Hobart waited too long, and Graham put it all over him at the finish. Moor took the fockpile route for his, and his Journey was a rough one, and the boy on Capable rode all over the track. El Veracco, who was fancied by many, was done for after racing six furlangs. Bert Davis showed that he had some speed, but that was all. Foxy Grandpa stopped to read the comic papers at the last quarter.

grandpa stopped to read the comic papers at the last quarter.

The last race was a gallop for Follow Me. He was rightly named yesterday, and the best that those racing behind him could do was to follow on. The boy on him could have won by a city block. Isabellita, after dropping back in the early running, came on with a spectacular rush and was going great guns at the end. Hoffman put up a weak ride on The Lieutenant, or he might have been closer up. Gentle Harry propped as the barrier went up, and was practically left.

Tournament produced some very good matches and gave evidence of the large games throughout the week. Comparing the attendance of last week, at the In ternational and the Lewis and Clark tournaments, with that at yesterday's events, one is forced to the conclusion that the lady players are the ones who bring out the crowds. Their tennis may not be so vigorous or of so high a class as that of the men, but they are cer-tainly more graceful and make a much better appearance on the courts. And best of all, their friends are all loyal and best of all, their friends are all loyal and come out to see them play.

The most notable feature of the day was the appearance of Mr. Takaki, of Tokio, on the courts. Much speculation was indulged in as regards what kind of game he would play, and everyone eagerly looked forward to his match with Durham. It was well known that since he ham. It was well known that, since he had represented the University of Penn-sylvania against Yale, he must be able to sylvania against Yale, he must be able to play good dennis. But everyone was sur-prised at the quality of his play, so far above expectations was it. Durham played a good game, but Takaki was at no time forced to extend himself and easily won in two straight sets. His strokes are clean and executed with good form. Especially is this true of his back-hand returns which by some are consid-hand returns which by some are considhand returns, which by some are considered equal to Freeman's.

Miss Debevoise won from Miss Schnefer 5-1, 5-1, Miss Sutherland had little trouble in winning from Miss Lamberson, 5-2, 6-1. Only one match was played in the ladies' doubles. Miss Heitshu and Miss Josephi were pitted against Mrs. Kerr and Miss King. The former team put up its usual strong game and won in two straight sets. This match was observed by probably the largest crowd of the day, and the many good plays were liberally applauded. Miss Heltshu's cut stroke proved very effective, and time after time deceived the opposing players completely.

Results of the Matches.

Ladles' doubles—Miss Heitshu and Miss Losenhi beat Mrs. Kerr, and Miss King.

Ladies' doubles—Miss Heltshu and Miss Josephi beat Mrs. Kerr and Miss King. 6-1, 6-2.

The refreshment table was presided over by Mrs. W. K. Scott, assisted by Miss Chamberlain, Miss Schaefer, Miss Sutherland, Miss Grace Lamberson and Miss Katherine Lamberson. The heat of the day made the lemonade and sherbet very welcome, and the ladies were kept busy serving the hot and thirsty patrons.

Today Mrs. J. K. Kollock will preside over the table. The matches arranged for tomorrow promise good sport, and a large crowd will doubtless be in attendance.
