BOYCOTT OF CHINA

CHINESE GIVE THEIR VIEWS

No Other Method, They Say, Can Be Used to Call Attention to Injustice Done Merchants and Students.

SEATTLE, July 31.—(Special).—The Pacific Coast must pay the price of the Chinese boycott against American wares. This is the opinion expressed today by two of the largest Chinese importing and exporting firms in all the steamship companies interested in the Oriental trade.

Incidental to this summing up of the fight for changes in the exclusion laws, two Seattle Chinese figures summed up the situation in a new and hitherto scarcely appreciated manner.

"The boycott," said Chin Kay, of the Quong Truck Co., "is inaugurated because no other method served to call attention to the injustice shown Chinese merchants and students. China and America are friendly; China has not forgotten how President Roosevelt's note at the beginning of the Japanese-Russian war saved Manchuria. Nor has China forgotten all that America has done for that country. But there is simply no other means of forcibly impressing the Chinese side of the exclusion act upon Americans."

Louis Kay—not related in any manner to Chin Kay—of the Man Hop Company, pointed out another interesting phase of the fight. Said he: "So far as the cotton goods and flour exports of this country are concerned, America will simply find another market. Possibly the market that China must pay more for her supplies than would have been paid if trading with this country continued. The world's supply of cotton and wheat is limited, and if a surplus elsewhere is wiped out by China's demand, America will supply that surplus.

"The cotton and wheat-growers will not lose anything. But the manufacturers of all factory products will lose, for the factories of other countries can handle the additional trade without leaving a pin for America to sell her surplus. The labor unions which have provoked this fight will be the losers."

These are the views of two of the shrewdest Chinese of the coast, and they are emphasized by figures prepared by the steamship companies interested in the Oriental trade. These figures show that the cotton goods trade has been diverted from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and the boycott threatens to undo all that the transcontinental railroads have spent years to accomplish in diverting the trade by way of coast seaports.

Here are figures that show the gains of this coast and the fact that during the first six months of the present year the cotton goods exports from this coast exceed the volume of business for all of 1904. The figures by ports are:

SEATTLE, Wash., July 31.—(Special).—A G. Learnedson, until a few weeks ago postal clerk on the United Electric Railway at Uintah, Colo., was quietly arrested in Portland Saturday by postoffice inspectors. Stewart is in Seattle tonight for the purpose of conferring with Postmaster Stewart, and tells the story, having kept it a secret until the present time.

DRIVE STAGE IN EARLY DAY

L. C. SCOVELL DIES IN SALEM
AT AGE OF 70.

Familiar Figure on the Box When
There Was No Railroad on the Coast.

SALEM, Or., July 31.—(Special).—After a very eventful career, L. C. Scovell, well known on the coast, between Corvallis and Oregon City, a year later. In 1860 the California Stage Company was organized and a line established between Portland and Lew Angeles.

Scovell drove the first stage of this line out of Portland. He continued driving until the abandonment of the service, 1882, when the Oregon & California Railroad was built. He carried mail for the Government until a few months previous to his death, on stage lines and between the postoffice and depot here.

Scovell was recognized as one of the best of the pioneer stage-drivers and was a familiar figure among the pioneers. It was he who drove the stage from Corvallis to Salem the time of a daring hold-up on Jackson's Hill, north of Jefferson.

The stage was loaded with passengers and carried a considerable sum of money. At the crest of the long hill, down which the road winds, two robbers sprang from the brush, leveled revolvers at the driver's head and commanded, "Hands up."

Scovell swung his long whip and cut the leaders a stinging blow that sent the four horses galloping down the hill, while bullets flew thick behind. The stage was overturned, and Scovell, who had been on one side, but righted himself and brought its load safely to Salem.

At the beginning of an exciting legislative session, before trains were running to Salem, Scovell's skill as a driver brought H. W. Corbett and his friends to Salem ahead of their opponents and thus secured for them a material advantage in the election.

The entire half-century of his life in Oregon was spent by Scovell in carrying the United States mail. During the last few months of his life he was engaged in the rural free delivery service. Always accommodating to patrons, faithful to employers and kind to his horses, "Cal" Scovell was loved and trusted by all.

Mr. Henning had been suffering from some affection of the throat, which was thought to be trivial, but last Monday he came to Eugene for treatment. He grew worse, and was not considered dangerous until shortly before his death, which came quite suddenly.

OREGON SUPREME COURT DECIDES AGAINST CASTO.

KADDERLY LOSES HIS SUIT

Published Notice Is Declared Sufficient in Assessment for Improvement of East Burnside, in Portland.

Title to personal property is in abeyance after the death of the owner until the appointment of an administrator. Where objections to the character of street improvements have been heard before a City Council, the question of appeal pending the appointment of an administrator is not a suit unless it be alleged that the City Council was party to the fraud.

SALEM, Or., July 31.—(Special).—Mrs. Emma Murray, of Santa Rosa, Cal., won in the Supreme Court today in the suit brought against her by Sam Casto for the possession of the racing stallion Diablo. Casto claimed the right to possession of the horse under a contract of employment with William Murray, the owner, and under a contract with Mrs. Murray, after her husband's death.

DOCUMENTARY EVIDENCE TO BE ADMITTED AGAINST COLLINS.

Convincing Showing Is Made by the San Francisco Law Agent Before the British Columbia Justice at Victoria.

VICTORIA, B. C., July 31.—Judge Lampman today after a long session decided against the objections raised by George D. Collins in the extradition case proceeding here as to the admissibility of documentary evidence sent from San Francisco. Collins contended at length that the evidence sent from San Francisco which included depositions and records in the suit brought against him by Charlotte Collins for maintenance, in which the perjury alleged against him was said to have been made, was immaterial, irrelevant and not properly authenticated.

OLD SORES OFFENSIVE DANGEROUS

Nothing is more offensive than an old sore. It refuses to heal. Patiently, day after day, it is treated and nursed, every salve, powder, etc., that is heard of is tried, but does no good, until the very sight of it grows offensive to the sufferer and he becomes disgusted and morbid. They are not only offensive, but dangerous, because the same germ that produces cancerous ulcers is back of every old sore. The cause is in the blood and as long as it remains the sore will grow and continue to grow worse and more destructive. The fact that thousands of old sores have been cut out and even the bones scraped, and yet they returned, is indisputable evidence that the blood is diseased and responsible for the sore or ulcer. Valuable time is lost in experimenting with external treatments, such as salves, powders, washes, etc., because the germs and poisons in the blood must be removed before a cure can be effected. S. S. S. cleanses and purifies the circulation so that it carries rich, new blood to the parts and the sore or ulcer heals permanently. S. S. S. not only removes the germs and poisons, but strengthens the blood and builds up the entire system by stimulating the organs, increasing the appetite and giving energy to the weak, wasted constitution. It is an exhilarating tonic, aids the digestion and puts every part of the body in good healthy condition. Book on the blood, with any medical advice wished, without charge.
