They are to be blamed for it all, and should be treated accordingly. But I am pleased to say that there is wide difference in the conduct of toughs now compared with what it was when I took charge of that beat. The improvement in the light service is also great. Where formerly there were 10 and 15 lights out every night, and the whole circuit out for hours and often all night, there are now few lights out, and the service is very satisfactory. And this is due to re-porting the lights out, as well as the protests made by good citizens, through the mass meetings, etc. The mills of the gods grind slow, but sure." DECRIES CRITICS' CLAIMS

Pastor Second Baptist Church Declares Rockefeller Can Only Be Charged With Motives That Actuate Others.

Rev. S. C. Lapham, pastor of the Second Baptist Church, East Seventh and Ankeny streets, last night spoke on the topic "The Crime of Being Rich," and took occasion to make a defense of John D. Rockefeller and his methods, Mr. Laphan and the second street of the

"Rev. H. S. Johnson, a Elaptist pastor, of Boston, has edified the Elaptist brotherhood and the people of Oregon by the assertion that John D. Rockefeller is the most dangerous man out of prison in the United States, both to Christian religion and to Republican government; the big-gest load the Baptist denomination is care rying today, and the greatest obstacle to our religious influence. I am not an apol-ogist for Mr. Bockefeller or his business, and I realize how difficult it is to treat the problem of the rich and the poor fairly and impartially without being mis-judged and criticised, but I wish to enter my protest against a criminal villifying of any man's character by a man who claims to be a follower and teacher of the Christ. The Christian minister the Christ. The Christian minister rught not to stoop to the level of the sensational mudslinger and to assert that a man is a criminal and the greatest foe to all that men hold dear in government and religion; he should be compelled to prove, or suffer for such unwarranted attack upon his fellow man. "So far as I have heard, no one has ever accused Mr. Rockefeller of lying, stealing or cheating. It is certain that he did not make his millions by a protective legalized piracy through a high tariff, or by bribe-gotten franchises, or through vast public domains given to, or stolen by him. His principal crime seems to be that he is the richest man in the United States; that he has given away $40,000,000; that he has outsold, outbought and outgenerated his competitors, and continues to do so. Selfishness Dominates Humanity. "You preachers who are glad to ride upon half-rate rebates over the railroads and buy at 10 per cent discount, get out of your glass houses; there may be such a thing as tainted railroad passes and tainted discount privileges. How much of self is dominating you? How long would you continue to preach the ever-lasting gospel of the Son of God if you could not make a living out of it? The farmer is not raising wheat for the good of humanity, or because men must starve without it, but for the money in the business, and the difference between a man who raises a thousand bushels of wheat at a cost of thirty cents per bushel and the man who raises a million bushels of the man who raises a million bushels of wheat at a cost of twelve cents per bushel is not the difference between an honest man and the man who ought to be in the penitentiary. A character study of humanity in its self-interest; the motives which actuate in business; that un-derile the formation of government; that dominate an invention, and even art, literature, fraternalism and unionism, will not cast a very dark shadow on the busi-ness character of Mr. Rockefeller or his Benefits to Public Misconstrued. "What is a Christian rate of interest? How much profit can a man take without its becoming tainted? If a thousand con-sumers are benefited by the failure of five small profit-mongers in competition with one great department store, does that make the profits of the big concern tainted, and the owner a criminal? What of the small shoemaker-shops, grist mills, cloth factories and iron foundries, which have been rendered unprofitable by great have been rendered unpromision by great inorganizations of capital? The general inierests of the people are subserved by the elimination of the small profit-monger,

in being brought about have proven disasthe managemental competitor. Solety is not going back to the stage-coach the hand-loom or the spinning-wheel for the production and distribution of the world's needs. Mr. Rockefeller is not filling the poor-houses, the asylums or the prisons with his victims, and if his profits are at the price of blood and life, what shall we say of every business of any con-siderable extent in the land. There are good trusts and bad trusts, and the bad trust is the other fellow's trust. Perterprise is the great need. The Golder Rule works both ways, and is possibly observed in spirit and deed by Mr. Rockefeller, as by those who purchase from him or compete with him." QUESTION, VITAL ONE.

Rev. J. E. H. Simpson Declares Belief in Miracles

At St. Mark's Church the Rev. J. E. H. Simpson preached on the text: "For what shall it profit a man if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul? or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?" In part he said:
"In these modern times one of the most vital as well as interesting questions is that of the possibility of miracles. This question lies at the basis of the dif-ferences between belief and unbelief; between Christianity and agnosticism, and were it capable of being definitely and positively settled on either side, would solve all other questions in the contro-versy. We do not consider this question now. We simply assert that as Christians we believe, not only in the pos-sibility, but in the fact of miracles.

"In connection with the subject there is one point to consider now; that is that within the sphere of nature, events happen which are as truly inexplicable and as truly mysterious, as any miracle that was ever claimed for supernatural power; that facts exist and things take piace from year to year and century to century, for which no known law can ac count, and are included as taking place under the ordinary laws of nature only because they happen. They are simply natural to us because they undentably and persistently occur,
"Greater than all the miracles of scrip ture is the miracle of life. Who knows whence it is, what it is, or all the laws that govern it? Who can define life? Who can define matter? Who can define wind?

Who can define consciousness?
"The thought is in the mind to bend your finger. You put the thought into action. You may trace the muscular, nerve and brain connections, but how mind acts on matter you cannot dis-cover. The subtle something underlying volition which animates idea into action forever eludes you. The action of mind on matter is of all experiences the most frequent, yet it utterly transcends knowl-

ality cogito ergo sum. Each individual is a great thought center, round which, in a true sense, the universe revolves, and to which all else is related; each with unfathomed capacities of feeling, emotion, aspiration, desire; each with endless possibilities of ambition, real, love and goodness; each holding in that consciousness God, man, the world, the universe, and all that is, and making them realities, "Existence, life, thought, conscio individuality, nature, law, death; all these are facts of our experience, but facts inexplicable and mysterious. Science recognizes but cannot explain them. But all these facts are related to man, and man in his complex being is the greatest of all miracles, unexplained, and unexplain able, in that he transcends the laws o nature; no known laws account for his existence or powers.

"In the light of nature man is a marvel ous and wonderful being. In the light of the gospel he is a son of God, partak-ing of the nature of God, destined to exist forever, with powers, capacities and possibilities which are infinite. Having absolute freedom of choice to identify himself with good or evil; the tremendous responsibility rests upon him to choose the good, and in life and through eternity, employ that wonderful and mysterious nature with which God has gifted him in being good and in doing good.

"What shall it profit a man with such a nature as man really possesses, to gain the sensuous pleasures, and material pos-sessions of this fleeting world, and lose his own soul, falling to live out the des-tiny which God has intended for him, or attain the splendid character which is set before him as his goal.

Barber Company Bids Thus Characterized.

INTEREST IN PAVING WORK

Manager Hoyt, of Warren Construc tion Company, Says Barber Asphalt Company Enjoyed Portland Monopoly.

Publication of the facts in connection with the street-paving war that has been inaugurated between the Warren Construction Company and the Barber Asphalt Paving Company, created widespread local interest, and the question naturally uppermost in the minds of those who are keeping in touch with the situation concerns the likelihood of the Barber people getting away with any of the profitable street contracts that are known to be on the market now and prospectively.

Manager J. O. Hoyt, of the Warren Construction Company, did not appear to be at all disturbed by the turn of events. He holds that there is no possible chance for the Barber Company, which he char-acterises as an offshoot of the Trinity Asphalt Trust, gaining a local foothold, for the reason, he says, that up to three years ago, when the Warren Construction Company entered this field, the Trinidad mpany enjoyed a monopoly of stree paving in Portland upon a more exten-sive scale than anything that has since grown up in that respect. In his opinion they have been tried and found wanting, and he looks upon their present attitude in bidding for contract work, as a gigantic bluff of the first water.

According to Hoyt, the Warren Con-struction Company has a standard price of $2 a square yard for laying all bitu-lithic pavements in this city. There are branches of the corporation, he says, in other Coast cities, and the charge street work in the different places regulated entirely by surrounding condi-tions, although it has a rule not to de-viate from any established price. Their bids upon work of this kind are therefore merely of a perfunctory character, be-cause property-owners know what their prices are, know what kind of pavements they put down, and are governed ac-cordingly when they indicate in the peti-tion for street work that it must be Warren's bitulithic pavement, and the speci-fications are prepared upon this basis. Hoyt states further that his company in no way connected with the firm of arren Brothers, of Boston, which owns the patent right of the paving materials under that name, but adopted the term simply for commercial purposes, with the idea of letting the public know in this manner that it handles the Warren paving materials exclusively. He says his company is composed of shareholders from all over the Coast, some of whom are local people, and that they are in-corporated under the laws of the State of Washington.

Asphalt Trust is behind the Barber peo ple in its present move, and is part of an organized campaign against the Warren Brothers, of Boston, the trust having long ago declared war, and is fighting them in every city of the country where their materials are handled, not with any marticular object of securing conany particular object of securing contracts, but for the purpose harassing them and holding up street work. He claims that the Trinidad trust does not operate in the open, but acts through a separate company unider a different name in each municipality, the main idea being to injure the Warren Brothers and their patented product as much as possible. This being uppermost in their minds, he alleges that they have, through their literary bureau, flooded the whole country with printed matter reflecting upo the Warrens' materials, and that there is hardly an important contracting center in the land that is without its educa-tional features in this respect. It was easy enough, said Hoyt, for the Barber people to underbid the Warren Construction Company, and he is sur-prised that they went under them to such an extent unless it was to gull the pub-lic and excite the cupidity of property-owners, because they were well aware of the standard nature of the bids always submitted, and in this connection it was thought that their achievement in bidding for the work on Second and Couch streets was on a par with the action of a pokerplayer in offering to make a wagafter seeing his opponent's hand.
