That Portland has developed into a manufacturing city of importance will be indelibly impressed upon the minds of the visitors to the Lewis and Clark Exposition tomorrow. This acquaintance to be formed will be of the most agreeable nature, as representatives of the visitor at the Exposition tomorrow who do not procure some valuable sample of the many diversified products manufactured in Portland.

Products Are Contributed.

The different firms in the Manufacturers' Association were asked to contribute their products for the distribution, and they responded right heartily. As a result, large quantities of manufactured products, of all descriptions, have been accumulated. On Saturday they will be scattered among thousands of people. The distribution will take place at 4 o'clock in the afternoon in the Auditorium at the Exposition. All visitors to the Fair will be given an equal opportunity to secure the articles which will be distributed.

Besides furnishing valuable articles to be distributed, many of the firms of the Manufacturers' Association have made arrangements to give their employees time to visit the Exposition. The manufacturers intend to do things up right, and thousands of people are awaiting tomorrow in much anticipation. They have also provided a special exhibit of home manufactures, which can be found in the booth of the Portland Cordage Company, in the south end of the Manufacturers' building. In the afternoon, at the Auditorium, the Pacific Coast Biscuit Company will give away packages of chocolate chips, fancy candies, cookies and crackers.

THOMAS DOLBER ON FAIR

BOSTON MANUFACTURER COMMENDS EXPOSITION.

Is Greatly Pleased With Portland and Marvels at Development and Resources of City.

Thomas Dolber, president and treasurer of Mellin's Food Company, of Boston, accompanied by his daughter, Miss Dolber, Miss Heath, a niece, and Franklin O. Whitney, a Boston business man, are visiting the Exposition. The company of which Mr. Dolber is the head has a splendid exhibition at the Exposition in charge of C. H. Robbins, who is the Chicago representative of the firm. Mr. Dolber's visit to the Coast at this time is a combination of business and pleasure. By easy stages the party made the trip via the Canadian Pacific and Mr. Dolber states that the trip has been one of pleasure and enjoyment. "Portland people should be justly proud of their city," said Mr. Dolber last night at the Portland Hotel, "and the more I see of this magnificent country the more greatly I am impressed. The Exposition is itself a beautiful thing. I met Colonel Doeh last year at the St. Louis Fair. He told me of the splendid thing I should prepare myself to see when I visited Portland and I found that he was modest when he pictured the picturesque spot upon which the Exposition was built. Portland has impressed me wonderfully. There is nothing of the newness which characterizes most of your Western cities. It has the appearance of having been here for almost an age and has the earmarks of being progressive and thoroughly up to date.

"As a side trip to the Exposition, we visited Astoria and Seaside. We visited the fishing grounds in a launch and saw your great Columbia salmon caught. It was a sight that I shall never tire of talking about. Why, we of the East have no idea of the extent of this wonderful industry. In one of the canneries we saw a fish that measured 46 inches, and when it was placed on the scales it weighed 40 pounds. Now this is not a fish story, for there would be no reason for my telling it, because I did not catch him, as much as I would have liked to. A fisherman did give up two and we packed them on ice and brought them to Portland. One of them we had for our dinner tonight, and I am going to confess that it is a better salmon than we have in Portland, Me."

Mr. Dolber was the first to introduce Mellin's food in America. This was 20 odd years ago. At that time he was connected with a drug house in Boston and the first demand he had for the food, which by the way, is an English production, came from a woman who had used it abroad. In order to get the food for his customer, Mr. Dolber called upon him for it. The demand for it grew and later he visited England and obtained the American right to its manufacture and has been making it ever since.

Elks' Day Made Memorable.

Elks' day, August 16, will be made memorable by the greatest gathering of the tame and wild birds parading Portland streets in variegated uniforms, since the grand lodge session at Cincinnati. A circuit issued by officers of the B. P. O. E. all citizens are warned to take to the timber while the Elks take possession of the city. All peaceful citizens, though, will be allowed to stand on the walks and view the parade as it passes over the main thoroughfares. The parade will begin at 10:30 o'clock, and will be followed by exercises at the Fair. Governor Chamberlain, President H. W. Goode and others will make addresses.

Sunday Schools Well Represented.

Children were very much in evidence at the Lewis and Clark Exposition yesterday, which was due to the fact that it was Congressional Sunday school day. About 100 members of the Sunday schools of Congregational churches were admitted to the grounds on the reduced rate from 25 cents to 10 cents. Of these, 100 of the children were from the Congregational Sunday school of Astoria, Ore. The grown people who accompanied the children were admitted to the grounds for 25 cents. Today the children of the Presbyterian Sunday schools hold forth at the Exposition.

Fish Dying at Exposition.

Owing to the continued hot weather, fish in the Government exhibit at the Exposition have been dying rapidly. The trouble is confined mostly to the fish common to cold-water streams, such as the trout, grayling and salmon. In one night recently, 90 albino salmon, one of the rarest species of fish known, died, and none of the entire exhibit of 70 of these fish, not one is alive. The prevailing heat caused the water supplying the fish to rise to a temperature of 65 degrees, which is too warm for species accustomed to the cold mountain streams.

At N. C. R. Tonight.

Another exhibition of beautiful stereopticon and motion picture views will be given at the National Cash Register Auditorium, Fair grounds, tonight at 8 o'clock. These exhibitions are given daily and Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings.

IRRIGATORS ARE READY TO COME

State Irrigation Association Will Help Entertain National Body.

CONGRESS BENEFITS STATE

Those Interested in Irrigation Alive to Opportunity Presented for Gaining Aid in Projects Entitled to Attention.

In the reception and entertainment of the National Irrigation Association, which convenes August 21 at the Exposition, the entire state will probably be more generally represented than in previous gatherings of large bodies, with the possible exception of the Trans-Mississippi Commercial Congress, which is held this year for the first time jointly with the other chief organization that stands for Western development.

Stephen A. Lowell, acting president of the Oregon Irrigation Association, and A. King Wilson, secretary, have addressed a letter to members of that organization requesting co-operation, and appointed to serve on the reception committee many prominent citizens. In the letter is contained reference to reasons why Oregon should exert lively interest in the proceedings, and in part the letter says:

Largest Contributor to Fund.

"The State of Oregon is especially honored by the assemblage within her borders of the National Irrigation Congress at a time when the subject of irrigation is receiving continent-wide attention. It is fitting that this state, most liberal contributor to the irrigation fund of the na-

GUBERNATORIAL POSSIBILITIES

NO. 2. THEODORE THURSTON GEE By Harry Murphy, Artist and Biographer.

T. GEE'S first utterance upon reaching this mundane sphere was: "I am not a miscellaneous candidate." He has carefully lived up to this spirited declaration ever since by confining his attention to the United States Senatorship in general and the Governorship of Oregon in particular.

It was a momentous day that our embryonic statesman, like a certain gentleman of classic antiquity, was first called from the plow to assume the burdensome duties of state and learn the melancholy truth that whoever sprang the apostrophe, "Republicans are ungrateful," was speaking by the card. Just what he called "T. T." away from the above-named agricultural implement I haven't been able to ascertain. It is rumored, however, that he called himself.

A contemplation of Mr. Geer's career suggests that of Governor LaFollette, of Wisconsin—it is so different. The latter took two offices at once, viz., the Governorship and the United States Senatorship, while the former holds neither. Barkie is still doing business at the old stand, though.

It is as a writer that my distinguished subject will clinch his claims to immortality. Especially as a letter-writer. If Lord Chesterfield, who was an epistolary sharp of renown, could be communicated with regarding the ex-Governor's performances, I have no doubt that he would do several revolutions in his grave through envy.

When the "tail scymore of the Waldo Hills" takes his pen in hand, his political adversaries sink into the tail timber and irretrievably lose themselves.

He is the author of "What Oregon Should Do to Be Saved" and "The Ready Letter-Writer." His favorite picture is the "Man With the Hoe Press."

tion, shall be the scene of the most important session which the National Association has held, or is likely to hold.

"The State Irrigation Association will hold no distinctive meeting, but will co-operate with the Lewis and Clark Exposition management and the city of Portland in welcoming the National organization, and furthering its work.

"As acting president I hereby appoint the following named citizens to represent the state society upon the reception committee, and express the hope that all will arrange to be in attendance during the four days of Congress. Hon. E. L. Smith, of Hood River, is one of the National vice-presidents, and this committee will report to him for duty.

To Serve on Committee.

"The appointees are: E. B. Tongue, Hillsboro; Walter Lyons, Independence; G. B. Dimeck, Oregon City; N. L. Butler, Monmouth; Frank Williams, Ashland; L. E. Eddy, Tillamook; Richard Scott, Milwaukie; W. L. Toon, Woodburn; M. D. L. Rhodes, McMinnville; J. Taylor, Astoria; W. H. Hollis, Forest Grove; T. R. Kay, Salem; J. K. Weatherford, Albany; E. E. Wilson, Corvallis; Schiller Herman, Roseburg; P. L. Campbell, Eugene; A. A. Jayne, Hood River; M. A. Moody, The Dalles; A. Smythe, Arlington; Jay Bowserman, Clifton; J. A. Woolery, Elsie; Frank G. Jones, Clatskanie; W. T. Shaw, Freewater; D. C. Brownell, Umatilla; Jay Bobbys, Enterprise; Frank McCully, Joseph; Robert Eakin, La Grande; George Benson, Union; J. H. Eakin, Huntington; George Chandler, Baker City; Charles Hilton, Clarno; J. A. Collier, Fossil; I. W. Hope, Vale; C. W. Wallcut, Ontario; Fred Haines, Harney; C. F. McKinney, Burns; A. D. Leedy, Canyon City; J. A. Laycock, John Day; Frank Hurlbut, Shaniko; W. H. Ragsdale, Moro; W. M. Colvig, Jacksonville; R. G. Smith, Grant; F. H. White, Head, Medford; T. K. Campbell, Cottage Grove; R. E. L. Steiner, Lakeview; J. A. Sherwood, Coquille City; H. L. Benson, Clatskanie; H. H. Curtis, Madras; and George W. McBride, St. Helens."

Try Hypnotism on the Trail.

One of the entertainment features for next Friday at the Exposition will be a hypnotic demonstration by Professor McEwan, a noted mindreader who will visit the city. A committee was named yesterday by the Exposition to secure a door key on the Trail. Professor McEwan says he will read the minds of the committee and go direct to the hiding place of the key. The committee is composed of F. L. Merrick, D. C. Freeman and A. A. Schell and they expect to swamp the professor.

Announcement was made yesterday morning of the completed and revised programme for the Lewis and Clark Exposition on Monday. The conference will bring America's greatest thinkers, speakers and writers on that subject to Portland. It will open Monday afternoon in the Auditorium and will continue each afternoon of next week.

No such assemblage of eminent men has ever been held west of the Mississippi River. Each speaker is a recognized authority of national reputation on the particular subject assigned to him. The list of speakers includes A. W. Cooley, United States Civil Service Commissioner; Amos Parker Wilder, John DeWitt Warner, Charles Zuehl, Clinton Rogers Woodruff, Josiah Strong, John Brooks and Frank J. Goodnow.

Interest is widespread in this conference which is throughout of the greatest importance. Subjects to be discussed deal with social problems in city life and with all phases of civic improvement and advancement. Thursday's session will see the organization of a league of Northwest cities and plans for its active operations for city betterment and advancement. The completed programme for the conference as announced yesterday morning, is as follows:

Monday, August 14—The "Battle Against Corruption," A. W. Cooley, United States Civil Service Commissioner.

Tuesday, August 15—Discussion of social betterment work in cities; address, "The Problem of the City," by Josiah Strong; address, "Vice and the Liquor Traffic in Small Cities," by Amos Parker Wilder.

Wednesday, August 16—Discussion on municipal improvement; address, "Municipal Art," by John DeWitt Warner; address, "Practical Municipal Improvements," by Charles Zuehl.

Thursday, August 17—Organizations and plans of league of Northwest cities; address, "Municipal Progress and Ways and Means of its Accomplishment," by Clinton Rogers Woodruff.

Friday, August 18—Address, "Problems of Municipal Administration and Organization," by Frank J. Goodnow. Discussion of this subject will be participated in by Mr. Wilder, Professor Zuehl and Mr. Warner.

Saturday, August 19—Discussion on municipal control of corporations; address, "Reasons for and Against Municipal Ownership," by John Graham Brooks. Discussion will be participated in by Professor Goodnow and others named above.

PLAN THREE BIG EVENTS

MARS WILL REIGN ON THREE DAYS AT FAIR.

Reproduction of Second Fort Sumpter Battle, Naval Conflict, and Custer Massacre.

Profiting by the experiences of the recent sham battle and the mimic naval engagement, which was not regarded by the exposition officials as entirely satisfactory but attracted large crowds to the Lewis and Clark Exposition, the management is arranging for three great spectacular events, all of which will be on a larger, more extensive and grander scale than the two that were produced.

The first will be a naval sham battle, to be held on Guild's Lake on the night of August 24. The second will be the reproduction of the Custer Massacre on August 29, and on the night of September 6 a sham battle will be produced.

The naval sham battle will be under the direction of Capt. Huber, director of works. The first naval engagement, presented some days since, was the first attempt of the management to produce a large, more extensive and grander scale than the two that were produced.

duction of the Custer Massacre, so as to make it as realistic as possible.

September 4, the date the sham battle to be presented in the stadium, is Spanish War Veterans' Day. It will begin about 8 o'clock at night. As many Spanish War Veterans as can be gathered together will take part in it. The first scene of the sham battle will be the soldiers going into camp. They will pitch their tents, cook and eat, and then for the night in full view of the audience. Another force will make a night attack on them. There will be several batteries of artillery in the battle. It is planned to have the Spanish War veterans form the force that will be attacked in the dead of night when the soldiers, with the exception of the sentries, are all asleep.

KANSAS EDITORS DEPART.

Formed Favorable Impression of Portland and Oregon.

Last evening the Kansas Editorial Association concluded their visit to Portland and departed for the East via the Oregon Railroad & Navigation line, the same route they traveled in coming to the Lewis and Clark Exposition. Occupying three Pullman cars, they were very comfortable, and enjoyed the trip. The cars their headquarters while in Portland. It was an interesting party and included some of the interesting members of the editorial profession in the Sunflower State.

Ed M. Moore, of the Hutchinson News, had the distinction of being the only representative of an Associated Press daily in the lot, the remainder being the editors of strictly country newspapers that find entrance to the homes of their respective communities and wield influence in shaping of public sentiment. Mr. Moore is business manager of the News and was enthusiastic over the business energy and charms of Portland as a residence.

J. H. Stewart, of Goodland, was the champion of the party. He is the publisher of the two newspapers of his town, which happen to be the only newspapers in the county, one Democratic in its doctrines and the other Republican, preaching the gospel of protection. Incidentally he is a Methodist Episcopal clergyman, but finds little opportunity to preach sermons except through the columns of his rival organs.

M. F. Amrine is editor of the Guard, at Mankato, Minn. He has been in the editorial office of the state, when the young couple came aboard the train. He was to find their berth decorated in ribbons and flowers, with garlands prominently displayed intended to be appropriate or humorous according to the point of view. Altogether the bridal couple were royally remembered at every feature of the trip and their recollection will be of a unique tour in celebration of the nuptials that united their lives.

R. M. Hall, advertising agent of the O. R. & N., escorted the party on the return trip across Oregon, and devoted his attention to their wants during the stay, leading them with information concerning resources of the state.
