Portland made it three straight from the Angels by batting Spider Baum at opportune times and maintained third ice in the pennant race of the second half. Yesterday's game was a battle between Baum and Garvin during the early stages, and remained so until the locals innded on the Angel slab artist for Boston four hits in the seventh inning, which netted them two runs and the lead. It was a splendid game from a spectator's point of view, for the contest witnessed four double plays, two by each team, and many pretty fielding stunts back of both pitchers.

Each club secured ten hits, several of which were of the extra-base variety. Of phia-Cleveland games postponed; rain. the latter, Spider Baum distinguished himself by landing a hit inside the park that netted him the circuit of the paths. A peculiar feature of the game was the fact that the Angels landed all their extra base hits, a home run, a triple and a double, in one inning, and yet only scored one run. This is a remarkable prevented the visitors from scoring three Spider Baum forced in the first run for Portiand when, with two out in the sec-ond inning and two men on bases, he forced Householder home by walking Hoffman and Garvin.

The Angels tied up the score in the third on hits by Baum, Bernard and Flood, which filled the bags, and Smith's long fly to Van Buren gave Baum an opportunity to cross the pan.

Honors remained about even until the seventh, when Baum's homer gave the Angels a temporary lead. The Angel twirier hit the ball to center, and as both Van Buren and Fleming were playing in, the sphere went to the fence and before either early retires it. before either could retrieve it Baum had crossed the pan for the circuit.

Portland more than evened matters up in their half, for McLean started off with a neat drive to left, which was followed by Hoffman's twobagger. of the eighth, and, aside from a pass to first in the last two sessions.

Portland made it four to two by annexing another in their half of the eighth. Schiafly was safe on an error by Brashear, and was advanced to second by Householder's neat sacrifice. Schlaffy then startled the spectators and the Angels by a daring steal of third while Baum was winding up, and crossed the pan when Young Slash laced out his three-ply awat.

Jones wound up the contest by striking the ninth, and the home guard rushed to the clubhouse congratulating themsel on the third straight win of the series. The local team seems to be going at a good pace now and it is not that they will trim the present contending club for the balance of the series. McCredie's men are putting up a splen-did fielding game, and besides there are several of the locals who are hitting at a terrific pace; in this last instance the batting of McLean is especially a feature, for in ten times at bat in the past three games the big catcher has made eight hits, or an average of .800 since his return

Today is ladies' day, and the fair sex are expected to turn out in force as usual. Teddy Corbett is slated to pitch for Portland and Emmet Tozier will twirl for Los Angeles in today's contest. The score of yesterday's game follows: PORTLAND.

NORTH POLE'S CONQUEST

Peary Hopes for Success in His New Ship Roosevelt.

Review of Reviews. Last, but not least, comes Peary, with his new ship, the Roosevelt, essaying another venture from the Greenland zone. There is not in Arctic history any more striking figure than that of Peary, the embodiment of the resolute, masterly American spirit now revolutionizing the world. He has spent over a decade warring with the forces of Nature in that desolate solitude, and a peculiar touch of brightness is added to the otherwise gloomy picture by the fact that his cour-ageous and devoted wife has braved his loneliness with him, enduring the terrible winters there, and seeing their baby girl draw its first breath in their Far North-ern home. Peary has made Greenland his theater of operations; exploration there has, by common consent, been left to him alone. Almost every Summer since 189 has seen him invade the frozen wastes on new discoveries bent. Eight long Winters, too, without a glimpse of the sun for six months each time, has he labored in the land of the ice.

He is 48 years old, and has given his prime to this work. He has spent his own private means, and his wife has given here; and they have both taken to the lecture platform to raise funds to help him on, while once he had to exhibit his ship in Atlantic seaports to obtain enough mander, has granted him the leave of absence necessary to pursue his researches; but he has enjoyed no financial aid from the Gogernment. He has had to plan his expeditions, finance them and then carry them out Latterly, however, some wealthy friends have undertaken the fiscal part, thus relieving him of one of the greatest worries that must vex an enthusinstic soul.

For Peary is an enthusiast, though his enthusiasm is tempered with sagacity and prudence. He feels that he can win, and is undismayed by obstacles. He has lived among the Eskimos, adapted himself to their primitive conditions, subsisted on walrus blubber and other "delicacies," and faced every discomfort the givilized being finds associated with his human antithesis. Nor is this the worst-Peary has endured rigorous hardships, physical torture and serious disablement

THE SCALP CAN'T BREATHE

When the scalp is covered with dead cuticle (dandruff) it cannot breathe. The natural functions are choked. The supply of blood does not reach the roots, and the hair dies from lack of air and nourishment.

Removes this unhealthful condition by dissolving the dead tissue, invigorating the roots of the hair, and allowing the pores of the scalp to resume their natural functions.

You'll be surprised at the agreeable sensution to the scalp after the first application.

If rubbed gently into the scalp with the tips of the fingers until absorbed, you will experience a novel sensation-a delightful glowa sense of refreshing cleanliness
