SHIP CRUSHED IN ICE-FLOE

Loss of Stores Forced Retreat to Get Baldwin's Supply-Open Water Prevented Explorers From Reaching the Pole.

TROMSOE, Norway, Aug. II.-The relief steamer Terra Novo, which rescued Anthony Finla and the other members of the Ziegler Polar expedition, arrived here today. She sailed from Tromsoe June 14 last, shaping her course direct for the icefields, which were encountered June 25 in latitude 75:97 north; longitude 28:6 east. The condition of the ice favored the ship and she proceeded eastward along the edge of the field until June 27, when she commenced to force her way through the floes and on July 25 struck open water. Thick ice was again encountered the following day, but on July 28 Palmi Island was sighted and on July 29 the Terra Novo reached Cape Dillon, where she found six members of the expedition safe and well. From this outpost men were dispatched to notify Fiala at the headquarters camp of the arrival of the

Could Not Have Lasted Long.

The Terra Novo reached Cape Flora July 30 and found nine members of the expedition. These had become weakened by the hardships they endured and some of them were so ill that they could not have held out for another Winter. Returning to Cape Dillon, Mr. Champ, who commanded the relief expedition, organized a party and started for the headquarters camp, from which he brough back Mr. Finls and his comrades.

The Terra Novo sailed for home Au-She got out of the ice-pack August 6 and returned in excellent condi-

The members of the Ziegler expedition tell a stirring story of the vain efforts to reach the pole. In the severe weather in November, 1905, the ship America, which carried the expedition, broke up and the provisions and coal were lost. Part of the wreckage remained until January 22, 1904, when it disappeared during a strom. The loss of the provisions was seriously felt and, but for the stores left by the Baldwin-Ziegler expedition in Teplitz Bay, the men would have been in bad straits. Vain Effort to Reach Pole.

In the following Spring continued attempts were made to the eastward to force a passage to the pole. The conditions, however, were insurmountable. The expedition met with much open water and day after day encountered fresh dangers and difficulties. Ultimately, the supply of provisions began to give out and painful journey southward was begun, the members of the expedition finally reaching the depots at Cape Flora, Cape Dilion and Camp Ziegler, among which iner were distributed, and where they managed to eke out the limited supplies with catches of walrus and bear.

FIALA WILL SOON BE WEDDED

Arctic Explorer Became Engaged on Day He Satted.

NEW YORK, Aug. II.—News of the res-cue of Anthony Flala, head of the second Ziegler expedition in search of the North Ziegler expedition in search of the North Pole, yesterday, caused the announcement by his family in Brooklyn of his engage-ment to Miss Clara Puryear, of Nash-ville, Tenn. The Southern girl promised on the day Flala's expedition sailed to be his bride, but the engagement was kept a secret pending news of his return.

The explorer first met Miss Puryear eight years ago when he visited Nashville with a troop of Brooklyn cavalry, which took part in the New York day ceremonies at the Tennessee Exposition.

Announcement was made yesterday at the office of the late William H. Ziegler in this city that the members of the Flaia party will be brought back to this coun-try and sent to their homes. When that has been done no further attempts backed by the Ziegler estate will be made to reach the North Pole, as the executors have no desire to continue the work of Arctic exploration Arctic exploration

Visitors Cordially Welcome

A WARNING!

An amusing incident happened at "THE OAKS" the other day: A party, evidently strangers in the city, were immensely enjoying the sports at Portland's favorite resort. Among them was a middle-aged gentleman, with his wife and six children. The gentleman was very busy explaining things as they took in the sights, and was constantly looking 'round for something new to amuse the children, and evidently thought he had found it when he espied a rather attractive entrance with the sign "EXIT." Taking his wife's arm and burriedly "shooing" the children ahead, he exclaimed: "Come on, Jane, we'll see what's in the "Exit." It may be hardly worth while to mention the fact that the over-curious gentleman was compelled to pay 10c a head to get into the grounds again. We want to warn our young friends who go up to "THE OAKS" today as the guests of the store not to "take in" the "Exit" till the

Our trimmers have been very busy for the past week in the workrooms of the Millinery Section, engaged in trimming a lot of the prettiest and daintiest Sumatra Straw Shapes ever conjured for misses and children's wear. Our buyers, now in New York, took advantage of an opportunity offered them to close from a leading manufacturer about 59) of the most fetciling shapes designed this season for young folk's wearing at a ridiculously low figure. The shapes came overland by fast express and were sent immediately to the trimming rooms. Here a bit of chiffon was added a bunch of pretty flowers or a spray of foliage called into service, and when our Jeft artists had finished, the results of their work formed the prettiest picture of fascinatingly beautiful Hats for young misses and children we've ever shown in the salons. There are pokes, broad-brim shapes and such a variety as defies description. Sweet Marguerites, lillles of the valley, forget-me-nots and a host of garden beauties vie with each other for favor in the trimming effects, combined with soft, pretty chiffons.
