

RACES WILL BE RACED

Portland Oarsmen Criticize Victoria Regatta.

FOULING IN SEVERAL RACES

Luders' Opponents Boat Upset—Victoria and Vancouver Foul in Senior Fours and Handicap Multnomah Crew.

About all the members of the Portland Rowing Club who went to Victoria, B. C., for the purpose of participating in the regatta races there, returned home last night, and the general expression among them seems to indicate that their trip was anything but satisfactory.

It is charged that the course was exceedingly poor in the first place, the water being rough at all times, and in the race for junior singles the victory of George Luders was greatly marred on this account by the upsetting of his opponent's boat while Luders was several lengths ahead.

In the race for senior fours, Portland had a slight advantage, but when more than half the course had been sailed the Victoria and Vancouver crews fouled each other, and under the rules all were recalled and the race rowed over. By this time the Portland crew had been exhausted itself in the effort to retain the lead at the start, so that it was badly handicapped in the second attempt. It is claimed by some of those present that had a fair show of winning even under such adverse circumstances, but that representatives of the Victoria crew were aboard the judges' boat, and signaled the winners as to the best course to take, and that they availed themselves of this advantage.

It is explained also that Desbrosses was not more than half a length ahead of Gloss when the Vancouver oarsman fouled the latter, forcing them all back for another start, which Desbrosses declined to adhere to, and rowed home alone after the mix-up. In the row off, Gloss was an easy winner from the Vancouver man.

The boys intimate that the arrangements were very imperfect, and the general management of the races of the "punk" order.

AGNES WAS HIS WIFE

COLLINS SAYS HE NEVER MARRIED CHARLOTTE NEWMAN.

San Francisco Lawyer Is Vehement in His Protests at Extradition Trial at Victoria.

VICTORIA, B. C., Aug. 14.—After giving expert evidence on California law, disputing the evidence of R. N. Whiting, Assistant District Attorney of San Francisco, regarding his application to perjury, George D. Collins, being tried for extradition for perjury before Judge Lammann, gave sensational evidence under cross-examination by Frank Higgins, representing the State of California. He said the evidence given of a marriage between himself and Charlotte Newman, of San Francisco, was utterly false and was part of a conspiracy framed to persecute him.

Collins stated he had never married Charlotte Newman, now styling herself Charlotte Collins, in whose suit for maintenance against him at San Francisco the affidavit was made upon which the perjury charge against him is based, but had married her sister, Agnes M. Newman. His marriage with Agnes M. Newman had been contracted in his office, witnessed by Dr. Sutton and his daughter, Jennie Easton, whose present whereabouts he did not know.

Collins had written the contract, which he, Agnes M. Newman and the witness, had given it to her and had not seen it. She had continually urged him to go through a ceremony of marriage, and he yielded on May 1, 1885, when the ceremony was performed by Father Connelly at St. John's Church in San Francisco.

Collins had drawn $1000, which she had deposited in the Iberian Bank in her maiden name, as she had assigned it to him prior to her death. She was always acknowledged and was buried publicly as his wife.

Mr. Higgins produced the license and certificate of marriage, in which it was written that the marriage was between Charlotte Newman and George D. Collins.

Collins said he had signed the application for a license before it was filed out, and left a client, James Mulcahey, since deceased, to get it and give it to Agnes Newman. The name of Charlotte Newman must have been placed in it by error. The placing of the name of Charlotte Newman in the marriage certificate was also a mistake. He denied it was in his handwriting, and said if Mr. Groom, Court Clerk, had so sworn, he was mistaken.

The testimony of Thomas Curran and William Newman as to the wedding with Charlotte Newman was absolutely false, Curran did not know whom he married and Newman was falsely trying, being eager to do anything criminal, mean or diabolical, to further the conspiracy against him.

Collins further stated that the deposition of Charlotte Collins, who he said had no right to so style herself, was false. The three children in her custody were the children of her sister, Agnes, the issue of her marriage with him. He had not sent any money to provide for them, but would look after them as soon as he was freed from the conspiracy launched at San Francisco which now engulfed him.

Mr. Higgins will continue the cross-examination of Collins tomorrow.
