X. MATTHEE IS HERE-F. X. Matthieu, of Butteville, sole survivor of the historical convention of May 2, 1843, is visiting his daughter on the East Side. Mr. Matthieu is pleased with the sug-gestion that the event, in which he took so prominent a part in the long ago, is to be celebrated with a special day at the celebrated with a special day at the Exposition. He feels that, while he will be the central figure on that occasion, being the only survivor of the 52 who then decided the destiny of the "Oregon Country," that it will be a celebration of the event that saved the country to the United States rather than in his personal honor. Mr. Matthieu is in good health and will remain in the city until Friday. Joseph Buchtel, who has the celebration in hand, is working on the programme. On the suggestion of Mr. Matthleu the celebration will be after the middle of September, when the hoppickers are through their work. There is a Native Son's Cabin at Butteville which desires to take part in the ceremonica. Mr. Buchtel said that as far as possible the programme will be made up of native on talent, and he has already in mind one who will be invited to participate in the exercises. STOCK AGAIN RUNS AT LARGE.-Stock is again running at large at Mount Tabor both inside and outside the annexed por-tion. For a time owners of cows and horses looked after them, but now, according to reports, no care is exercised. The vote of two years ago that all stock in that precinct must be kept up is daily being violated. Mount Tabor was expected to enforce the law, but the constable and Justice of the Peace tell the people that they must make complaints before they can take any action towards enforcing the law. Some time ago H. W. Hodges took up some stock he found running at large, put them in an enclo-sure, but in the morning they were gonethe owner having come during the night and took them away. "I have received no information from Washington," remarked Senator Pulton last night, "as to who will be the Federal District Judge."

The Senator had just arrived from Asto receive the appointment. In answer to the query whether Judge Bean was likely to be the appointee, the Senator more than 24 hours, and then turned her out milked dry. In some way not explained Mr. Nelson says his cow broke favorably on Bean's candidacy. The tenor of his remarks indicated that Bean was strong with the appointing powers at Washington.

> "When do you think the appointment will be made?" was asked.

then or in the Autumn, and I signified a desire on my part to see the selection deferred. But I was informed that the Department of Justice wished the new judge chosen speedily. Proposed City Law Receives Some Revisions.

BOATMEN OFFER OBJECTION

Suggestions Made as to How Public Safety May Be Conserved Without Adding Difficulties to Navigation on River.

Rushlight's ordinance for the protection f life on boats plying the waters of the Williamette River, was amended very materially yesterday by the Health and olice Committee of the City Council, and likely to pass in its modified form. Quite a number of boatsmen were on hand to offer reasons why the original measure should not become a law, and in the discussion that followed they undoubtedly had the best of the argument, although it is evident that Councilman Rushlight scored an important advantage by getting the ordinance before the Council in any shape, on account of its likelicll in any shape, on account of its likeli-hood of interfering with the Federal stat-

BROTHER AND SISTER MEET ! AFTER 61 YEARS,

An element of pathos cropped out in the meeting on Oregon soil the other day of a brother and sister who had been separated more than three-score There have been numerous years. cases since the opening of the Lewis and Clark Exposition where relatives long parted have come together unexpectedly, and in many instances fiction has been clearly outdone in connection with some of the romantic features of the situation; but it has remained for Charles H. Cox and his stater to break all records up to date in the matter of long periods between meetings.

In June, 1844, Mrs. Susan H. Meldrum parted from her brother in Des Moines County, Iowa, and a year later, with husband and children, journeyed across the plains towards the setting sun until she reached Oregon City. in this state, where the family decided to locate permanently, and here Mrs. Meldrum has abided ever since, paying little heed to the cycle of years, until now, at the dawn, almost of a century, the one whom she left as a rosy-checked youth upon the old mestead in what was then one of the far "Western States," comes into her life again like the visitation of Father Time, and the one whom he remembered in the winsomeness of early matronly grace is found surrounded by great-grandchildren older than the brother whom she had left 61 years before.

While the brother and sister have maintained an intermittent communication sufficient to keep them in touch with each other's whereabouts, they have never met since the day they parted until a short time ago, when he decided to leave his home near Platteville, Grant County, Wisconsin, and take a trip to Oregon, where he could visit the Fair and hunt up some of his relatives at the same time. Alday, he looks 20 years younger, and told his story in The Oregonian office tast night with a clearness that indicated the possession of his full mental faculties.

He has one son residing near Corvallis, Or., whom he has been visiting for the past four weeks, and another residing at White Salmon, Wash., under whose roof he expects to pass a like period before returning his home is Wisconsin.

Mrs. Susan B. Meldrum is the grandmother of State Treasurer Charles S. Moore, while one of her grand-daughters is the wife of David Thompson. rominently identified with the political history of Gregon, and another is Mrs. Sarah McCown, president of the Woman's Relief Corps of the G. A. R.

said there has never yet been a launch sunk on the Willamette River, and sugsunk on the Willamette River, and sug-gested that instead of life-preservers, which 19 per cent of the people did not know how to use, lifebuoys should be provided the different kinds of craft, according to size, each buoy to be equipped with 75 feet of rope, and he thought they would be capable of holding up four or five persons until relief should come, in the event of a collision with small boats. He seemed to think the greatest danger on the river arose from the miscellaneous number of small boats and private number of small boats and private launches, having on board inexperienced crews, and this view of the situation was coincided in by Mike Merrill, Captain Mc-Kee, of the Gazelile, and Harbormaster Ben Biglin.

Relative to the question of carrying lights, there was considerable difference of opinion, all the boatmen holding that lights at either end of the rowboats would interfere with the safety of things by blinding those navigating the craft, and that this theory was recognized by the Government, whose regulations prohibited any lights from shining in the face of the man at the wheel. Mr. Kellogg stated that he was a licensed captain, and the Federal regulations prescribe that no navigator shall be placed in a position where the rays shall affect the vision. He contended that the late drowning accident was the result of a collision between the launch Fox and the boat at a bend in the river, and was not caused by a lack of lights, as it occurred at 8:29 P. M., when it was not yet dark, According to Kellogg, there have been but three lives lost through collisions in the past 12 years, Captain Mc-Kee said that if 132 life-preservers had been on the boat that was upset the other night it would not have saved any lives. As amended, the ordinance provides that boats of all kinds under 15 tons burden, whether run for hire or owned by private parties, shall have on board life-preservers of any kind and charactor prescribed by the narbormaster, in number sufficient to supply one for every four persons carried, and shall have on board, and kept burning at all times so as to be plainly seen, at least one light. Provision is made also for one life buoy on boats of less than 25 feet; 2 for boats of from 25 to 40 feet, and 3 for boats of from 40 feet to 15 It is believed the boatmen will not raise any question of jurisdiction, all apparently evincing a disposition to obey whatever laws the city may see st to adopt in the matter rather than have their busines injured by any further unnecessary discussion of the matter. They all seem satisfied with the situation in consideration of the fact that the owners of small boats and private launches are brought in the same category with them, and there is no discrimination in that respect. GARBAGE QUESTION DELAYED

Right to Gather Waste and Operate

Crematory Not Decided.

It was expected that the health and poommittee of the City Council would take some definite action yesterday after-noon with reference to the ordinance in-troduced at the last meeting of the Council, granting to the Northwest Civic Im-provement Company the exclusive right, privilege and authority to collect, remove and dispose of all garbage and waste matter in the City of Portland, and to operate the garbage crematory or crematories under the provision and inspection of the local health authorities, but the committee adjourned until 1 o'clock today after listening to short addresses by Mark Schlussel and R. T. Platt, both of whom argued in favor of granting the 25-year franchise as provided in the ordi-

Although considerable notoriety had attached to the measure, scarrely anybody was present outside of one or two directly interested. The City Board of Health had been invited to be on hand, but only Dr. Esther C. Pohl responded, and she became weary of waiting and went away before the committee got ready to take up the garbage matter. Councidman Shepherd, chairman of the committee, stated that the members thereof were in accord with the idea that the present conditions were intolerable, but he refused to indicate what decision the committee would reach in the matter of recommendation. The chairman stat-ed also that the garbage crematory as now conducted was costing the city fully $40 a day for salaries and incidental expenses, and that the service was very unsatisfactory.

It is understood, however, that some important amendments will take place in the ordinance before it reaches the Coun-cll chambers this afternoon. It is be-lieved that Mayor Lane intends to veto it, as he expressed surprise when told that the committee had adjourned without taking definite action.

TELLS OF ITS OPERATIONS

Transportation at Low Rates Essential to Greatest Possible Growth of American Export Trade. Speaks Thursday.

"It isn't what you have got, but where you have got it, that constitutes real value," said Hon. F. B. Thurber last evening. Mr. Thurber is president of the United States Export Association of New fork, member of the National Board of Trade, member of the Trans-Mississippi Cougress and life member of the New York Press Club. He is scheduled for an address before the congress Thursday af ternoon. Continuing, Mr. Thurber said

'The organization of which I am presi-dent consists of 220 of the leading man-ufacturers of the United States, represent ing 86 lines of industry and situated in 3 different states. Its headquarters are in New York and we have over 300 corres pondents in the principal ports of the world. Our purpose is to widen world's markets for American pro tions and during the ten years of the association's existence we have been em-inently successful. The organization was first conceived when I was chairman of the committee on foreign commerce of the New York Chamber of Commerce, and is now a leading factor in world's busies transaction

Honorary Member of Congress.

"I was made an honorary member of Trans-Mississippi Congress at the Wichita meeting and each year since then have been asked to present a paper upon the subject of commerce. This year I have chosen the theme of "The Future Markets of the Orient," so largely in the public mind. It will deal with the opportunities and the necessities of our reaching these markets and a prominent feature of it is the question of transpo tation, both on land and sea. The chief factor in our rapidly increasing foreign trade is transportation. No man amons our great captains of industry appreciates this more than Mr. James J. Hill, and in my opinion he has done more than any other man in the United States to create values by making it possible to market the products of this country both abroad and at home, when he transported the lumber of Oregon and Washington to the East and the cotton of the South to Japan; the steel of Pennsylvania to all the far eastern markets with the miscelaneous manufactures of our great country, by practically cutting in two exist-ing rates of transportation.

'We must have cheap transportation on both land and sea, because the field is now the whole world in commerce as well as religion, and if we will protect our transportation on the sea as we have upon the land so as to meet the difference in the cost of labor and also meet the subsidies that Japan and other nati neet the competition of the world. we do not do this then our profits will be forced to bear a higher land transpertation and be crippled to that extent in competing with other nations in the marcets of the world.

The next two under the irrigation act, which think one of the most important pieces legislation ever enacted in this cour try, will give the Trans-Mississippi re a productive power which will make absolutely necessary to have wider markets. No narrow national policy will suffice. Sectional views must give way to a great world policy."

PIANO POINTERS

Three things should be considered in the selection of a piano. They are the "SCALE," the "MATERIAL," and the "WAY IN WHICH THE INSTRUMENT IS PUT TOGETHER."

If you choose a piano made throughout of the finest material—one with a true scale—and one which embodies the most advanced ideas of piano construction, you are SURE TO GET A GOOD ONE. Never mind the name if everything else is all right. It has been said of some pianos that their exploitation has cost more than their actual construction.
