In step with the music of crashing bands, with banners waving and cheers ringing from thousands of spectators, who occupied every possible vantage on the curbs and in the windows along the line of parade, the assembled Elks of a dozen states marched through the streets of Portland yesterday and had the time of their lives. There must have been 2000 of them; mostly on foot, many on horseback and a large number in automobiles and carriages. They were garbed in all manner of fantastic costumes, and presented a striking spectacle.

The parade was led by General Owen Summers, as grand marshal, accompanied by his staff, they being preceded by a platoon of police. There were four divisions, the first headed by De Caprio's band, was led by Exalted Ruler Charles E. McDonnell and his staff, and consisted of 600 Portland Elks in white caps, Japanese kimonos, carrying Japanese parasols and fans.

The second division kept time to the music of The Dallas band, and was in command of T. H. McDowell. It comprised lodges from The Dallas and Salem, and a large number of visiting brothers from other states.

Lodges in Third Division.

The third division was commanded by W. J. Riley, with the Third Regiment band setting the pace. Those who marched in this division were members of Astoria lodge, with white hats and purple shirts, as their distinguishing uniform. Others who were marshaled in this division were members of the lodges at Eugene, Albany, Roseburg, Ashland and Pendleton.

The fourth section was directed by E. House, with the band playing its bravest, followed by the ladies of the reception committee in carriages. Baker City lodge also in carriages, infirm members in automobiles, Seattle and Tacoma lodges in automobiles, and Vancouver, Wash. lodge on foot.

Elks Draw Rickshaws.

Perhaps the prettiest things in the pageant were a dozen rickshaws drawn by brother Elks, in each of which rode a little girl dressed in white. Representatives of the lodges at Grand Junction, Colo., and Salt Lake also occupied important places in the parade.

The Salem delegation in broad-brimmed straw hats, the "Western hand" variety, drew much attention. Each contingent bore distinctive banners bearing devices touching on some local matter of interest.

The parade moved at 11:30 o'clock from the Armory, and its route traversed 36 blocks. More than half an hour was required for it to pass a given point, and thousands of spectators thronged the line of march. It was the most picturesque parade ever given here, and was admirably handled. After it was over, the Elks adjourned to the Exposition grounds, where the set events of the day took place. The day was an ideal one for marching and nothing occurred to mar its success.

Came With a Rush.

It was trying hard to rain when the antlered herd reached the Exposition grounds but after they were all there the weather didn't get much of a chance and had to content itself all afternoon with trowling clouds and an occasional shower. Such a run of people as struck the entrance shortly after noon has seldom been witnessed in Lewis and Clark annals. Every turnstile clicked rapidly, sounding not unlike the drumming of a gong as the throng poured in. Between the hours of 12 and 2 o'clock it was estimated that there were more than 6000 admissions.

To all parts of the Exposition the Elks and their friends scattered. All collected, however, under the colonnades to attend the exercises which were held at 3 o'clock. The exercises were to have been held at the Oregon building, but there was not sufficient shelter on the broad veranda of that building and as rain was expected every moment the colonnades were assembled and a speaker's stand hurriedly constructed and decorated.

Exercises Are Entertaining.

The exercises were entertaining and there was nothing tiresome or stereotyped about them. Music made up most of the programme. There were but two speakers and neither waded seriously or eloquently. President Goode spoke in a light vein in welcoming the "Best People on Earth" to the Fair and said he wished to turn over the grounds to them without reservation, a courtesy that had never before been extended, having been saved expressly for the Elks.

Governor Chamberlain, who welcomed the visitors on behalf of the state was brief and facetious. He referred to President Goode's proffer of the grounds and advised that good care be taken of them.

Several pieces by the Administration Band were followed by the singing of several numbers by Louis Hanvey, tenor, who was repeatedly encored. For a time it appeared as if Mr. Hanvey had an afternoon's job on his hands. The Casino Comely Quartet also sang several very pretty selections, closing with "Auld Lang Syne." In the chorus of which the assemblage was requested to join.

Reception in Oregon Building.

The exercises at an end, adjournment was made to the Oregon State building where an informal reception was given in honor of the Elks and ladies. At 5 o'clock a light reception was concluded, and a procession was formed for an invasion of the land of the clambake. Over on the Government peninsula claims and many good things had been treated to that process which produces such toothsome morsels and which is known as a clambake. Headed by the band, a thousand or more Elks and guests marched across the Bridge of Nations, where the time was pleasantly spent until 7 o'clock.

Now, along about this time, some people would have been thinking about home when their appetites were vanquished and a delightful six hours had been spent. But not so with the Elks. They were just commencing. Their next move was to hit the Trail and the Trail had not been so hard hit for many a night before. At 9 o'clock special fireworks were displayed for their benefit. Until a late hour the crowds remained at the Fair. Elks' day finally closed when the Exposition did.

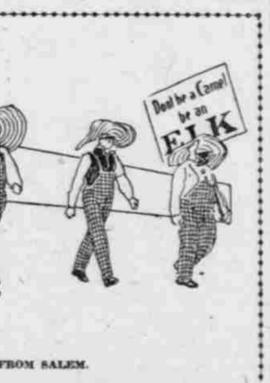

Two Thousand Visiting Elks.

At least 2000 visiting Elks were in the city for the day, according to estimates made by local members. Delegations came from Eastern and Western Oregon, Astoria, Seattle, Tacoma, Olympia and other Washington points. Some came from as far as San Francisco and intermediate points. From Eastern Oregon the La Grande and Baker City delegations made a particularly good showing and received many high compliments during the day and evening for the fine appearance they made in Captain Riley's division of the parade.

LAWN FETE IS GIVEN.

Reception in Honor of Governor and Mrs. David R. Francis.

The lawn fete and reception given Governor and Mrs. David R. Francis, of Missouri, by President and Mrs. Goode last night was more of a success than the threatening weather gave promise of in the early afternoon. Centennial Park just west of the California building, was just what the aid of innumerable Japanese lanterns and electric lights, and the refreshment tables on the lawn added to the scene of festivity. About 600 invitations were issued and the acceptances were many. President and Mrs. Goode received and presented the guests to Governor and Mrs. Francis unassisted.

DeCaprio's Administration Band played on the lawn during the evening and a short programme provided for the entertainment of the guests included solos by M. and Mrs. Regue, of the Metropolitan Grand Opera Company, of New York. Several trail features were also much enjoyed. The air was not nearly so chilly at the Exposition grounds as it was in town last night, nor did as much rain fall, making it quite possible to enjoy an outdoor affair without any danger of being uncomfortable. All the state commissioners and their families were present and Governor and Mrs. Francis renewed many pleasant acquaintances of last year made at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition.

SAN FRANCISCO DAY

Large Body of Excursionists Arrive in Portland.

FINE PROGRAMME PLANNED

Citizens of the Bay City Will Have One of the Biggest Demonstrations of Any Municipality at the Centennial.

ADMISSIONS, TRAIL.

Attendance of Elks and members of the congresses swelled the admissions to the Exposition yesterday to 23,819, as shown by the records of the turnstiles.

San Francisco has a representation on hand for its day at the Exposition tomorrow commensurate with the greatness of that city. More than 400 San Franciscans have already registered at the California building, and still more are due this morning. All week they have been coming in private parties and organized excursions.

The Oregonian Francisco special train with 125 people aboard got in yesterday morning. The excursion is that organized by the various trade organizations of the Bay City, and is made up of representative citizens and their families, including Governor and Mrs. George C. Pardee.

The first thing the excursionists did upon reaching the city was to take cars for the Exposition. Nearly all registered inside the grounds at the American Inn and spent the day seeing the Fair. From expressions made by various of the visitors, they find the Portland Fair even brighter than the bright colors in which it has been painted.

Today's programme includes exercises and a big reception in the California building. The exercises will begin at 2 o'clock, when Colonel Henry E. Dosch will welcome the visitors to the Exposition. Response will be made by J. P. Currier, vice-president of the Merchants' Association of California. F. J. Coster, director of the Merchants' Association of California, will make an address on the subject, "Benefits of This Exposition to the Pacific Coast."

There is no programme after today. Most of the excursionists will remain for about ten days before returning homeward. The personnel of the San Francisco special is as follows:

MUST STAND TRIAL

Forfeiture of Cash Bond Not Permitted by Court.

TUXEDO CASE TO BE HEARD

McGlinn and Johnson Required to Appear in Municipal Court on Charge of Keeping Open After Closing Hours.

Municipal Judge Cameron and Deputy City Attorney Fitzgerald spotted a neat game of McGlinn & Johnson, proprietors of the notorious Tuxedo saloon, yesterday morning by deciding to permit them to forfeit bail in the sum of $25. The case was continued, and notification will be sent the defendants that they must appear in court and stand trial, or suffer a heavy fine. They are charged with keeping their establishment open after hours.

When the case was called, neither McGlinn or Johnson answered to their names, and a search of the premises by Bailiff Goitz failed to reveal them. Three other similar cases had been called, and in each bail of $25 was forfeited.

"I don't want to forfeit bail of $25 in the Tuxedo case," remarked Judge Cameron. "That is far too small, I think."

"I thoroughly agree with Your Honor regarding the matter," replied Mr. Fitzgerald. "McGlinn and Johnson are persistent violators of the law. To them the law is nothing but a thing to be evaded. They have been here repeatedly for this offense, and I do not propose to permit this case to go by the forfeiture of any such trifling sum as $25."

"I think the case too flagrant to permit of bail forfeiture when there is but $25 up," said Judge Cameron. "I think these defendants have a right in breaking this law too frequently, showing an utter disregard for it, and I am going to mark it continued. Notification will be sent McGlinn and Johnson, and they must appear here."

There are said to be reasons why McGlinn and Johnson were not required to put up heavier bail by the police. The complaint against the house was not signed by Captain Bailey until August 14, although the alleged violation of law occurred on the morning of August 4. At the time of discovery of the alleged violation, a man prominently identified with city affairs was present in a rear room, at 2 A. M. Although the police deny the statement, it is said that this man requested that great care be made. No arrest followed, it is alleged, until developments made further delay inadvisable.

McGlinn and Johnson have been repeatedly fined by the Municipal Court for violations of the ordinance, and even now have cases on appeal to the Circuit Court. It was in their establishment some time recently that several women, including some society folk, were found by the police and removed to headquarters. A young girl was picked up from the floor, too intoxicated to stand.

John E. Blaser, Fred Sechtman and R. Hager, charged with keeping their saloons open after closing hours, forfeited $25 bail each. Their cases were not nearly so flagrant as that of the Tuxedo.

Charles Lockyer, charged by Cashier Fred Smith, of the Oregon Savings Bank, with larceny of $150, was arraigned, and his case set for hearing tomorrow. He is the man who claims to be unable to remember anything in connection with the money transaction. He is able, however, to remember other things.

Gee Kee was fined $25 for being caught by Sergeant of Police Hogboom at 130 Second street, Monday night, with lottery tickets in his possession.

Rosa Gordon is charged by Mrs. M. S. Schwartz with pouring a pailful of hot water from a window, covering the complaint with it. This occurred in South Portland and is said to be the outcome of trouble originating on account of children of the two families. The case will be heard tomorrow.

THREE STATES HONORED

EXERCISES WILL BE HELD IN THEIR CELEBRATION.

Illinois, Louisiana and Tennessee Select Today as the Occasion

Select Today as the Occasion for the Centennial.

Three great states will divide honors at the Lewis and Clark Exposition today. They are Illinois, Louisiana and Tennessee. From each state there will be many representatives on hand. Most of those who will participate are former residents of one of the great commonwealths. Representatives are here, however, direct from each state, and the Illinois representatives in Illinois will be held in the Illinois building. Louisiana and Tennessee will hold exercises jointly at the Oregon State building. The Illinois exercises are to be held at 10:30 o'clock in the morning, and the other exercises at 2:30 P. M. so that there is no conflict in time.

Illinois exercises will open with an address of welcome by Governor George Chamberlain. President Goode will welcome the visitors on behalf of the Exposition. The other speakers on the program are: Fred S. Biss, Illinois Governor Deneen; James F. O'Donnell, an eloquent Illinoisan; and W. T. Vaughn, president of the Illinois Society of Oregon. In the evening the state building will be the scene of a pretty reception. The reception committee is composed of Fred H. Hand, R. H. Tiffany and P. A. Peterson.

The Louisiana and Tennessee exercises will be held under the auspices of the Dixie Society. J. G. Moreland, vice-president of the Dixie Society of Tennessee, will preside. Governor Chamberlain, Jefferson Myers and Colonel H. E. Dosch, of the Exposition, will make addresses of welcome. Tom Richardson, of the Portland Commercial Club, will speak on "Louisiana," and Colonel W. H. Washington, of Nashville, will deliver an address on "Tennessee." An address will also be made by the Rev. J. Whitcomb Broughton, on the subject, "Tennessee, From a William Redfield."

Selections by a quartet, composed of Meadames Hamilton and Pickett and Messrs. Rowland and Miller, a violin solo by Miss Anna Bellinger, a vocal solo by Mrs. W. Boyd Hamilton, of Portland, will be among the musical numbers of the programme.

CLARENCE EDDY TONIGHT

Greatest Living Organist to Play Finest Organ in West.

Don't overlook it. This evening at 8:15, Opening recital of Trinity's fine new organ. A limited number of tickets for sale at J. K. Gill's, Woodard, Clarke & Co. and Eilers Plano House.
