UNTANGLE STREET COMPLICATION .- The Milwaukie Council is trying to disentangle the street complications in that ploneer town. Sometime ago the Council undertook to open a street parallel with the main thoroughfare. It had been fenced years ago. The marshal was ordered to pull down these fences, and then came trouble. It was ascertained that while an old plat seems to show that the streets were platted, no record of the dedication could be found. An attorney is probing into the records to ascertain just what the situation is. Milwaukie is one of the oldest towns in Oregon, and the records are musty with the dust of more than half a century. The Council wants to clear up the complications. Some think the plat found is sufficient, but others itend there must be a formal dedication to the public.

MUST STAND TRIAL FOR ASSAULT .- J. L. Patterson was placed under $50 cash bonds yesterday by Justice Waldemar Seton, on the East Side, to appear for trial Septhey directed their efforts toward saving the home, which is a fine new building of a modern type. Other costly dwellings close by would have been burned with this one, had the firemen been unable to tember 2 on charge of committing an assault on Mrs. Sophia L. Witzel. The warrant for Patterson's arrest was sworn out by C. E. Witzel, husband of the woman, as she is said to be too ill from the injuries received to come to the courtroom. All live near the Oatman road, in the vicinity of Woodstock. It is alleged that the assault on Mrs. Witzel was most outrageous. They lived in the same premises, it is related, when a dispute arose over the product of a peach tree, each claiming it. Patterson is charged with kicking Mrs. Witzel, who is naturally a frail woman. He has made no statement of his side of the controversy, but will await the trial.

NON-RESIDENTS NOT TO BLAME.-Nonresident property-owners have been charged with holding up street improvements on the East Side, especially the improvement of Grand avenue, which has been closed up for several months. J. L. Wells and others who represent some of the non-residents, deny most emphatically that it is they who are holding up the repairs on Grand avenue, or the improve-ment of other streets. Mr. Wells says that as sgent for much East Side property, he knows that the absent propertyowners are not to be blamed, but the cen-sure, if any be deserved, should rather be given the resident property-owners.

ESTACADA SCHOOL BONDS APPROVED. The voters of the Estacada school district approved of the issue of $4000 bonds with which to start a modern schoolhouse. Thirty-eight votes were cast in favor of the bonds, and none were cast against the issue. Clerk Lovelace has already taken steps to place the bonds, which will run 29 years. They will first be offered to the state, but it is thought that a lower rate of interest than 6 per cent which the state requires, may be obtained. Work on the new building will be started shortly after the bonds have been placed.

COMPLETING HANDSOME CHURCH.-The new Methodist Episcopal church at University Park is nearing completion. While the old building was utilized in rebuilding, the church is practically new. and entirely modern in arrangement. It will seat about 500 people. Rev. D. A. Wattera. D. D., is the pastor. The new church and furniture will cost about $600. Dedication of the completed structure will take place next month, when Bishop David H. Moore and some other disth guished Methodists will be present to assist in the ceremonies.

WILL LET CONTRACT NEXT WEEK-J. L. Wright, head clerk of the Women of Woodcraft, at the temporary headquarters on East Morrison street, yesterday ters on East Morrison street, yesterday said that bids for the headquarters building had been received and opened, and that the contracts for the new building will be let next week. Mr. Wright has fairly comfortable quarters at 360 East Morrison street, where a room is occupied by his assistant clerks.

Police and Bank Think It a Bunco Trick.

MONEY DRAWN BY ANOTHER

One Who Had the Bank Deposit Is Required to Furnish Cash Bail for His Appearance in Court.

When Tony Esser was placed under cash bonds of $250 in the case of the state against Charles Lockyer in the Municipal Court yesterday morning, it became known that the officials of the Oregon Savings Bank and the police authorities believe they had a brace of bunco artists of no mean ability and cunning in custody. Lockyer is charged with forgery. He is positively identified as the man wao drew from the bank $160, by writing a check to which as signed the name of Esser. The money he withdrew was the balance of Es-ser's account. After hearing the testimony of Cashier Lloyd Smith and Paying Teller H. L. Hays, of the bank, Judge Cam-eron held Lockyer to the grand jury. fixing bail at $2300. Afterwards Esser was called to the stand. He was shown the check said to have been presented at the bank by Lockyer, and Esser said he did not draw it, that it was not his writing, and that he had never authorized any one to draw out his balance, or sign his name to checks.

Lockyer, Esser and Martin Walker have been working at the Tavern, as waiters. Esser said he and Lockyer were roommates; were on very friendly terms, and that Lockyer knew of the account at the bank. Esser carried his bankbook in his coat pocket, and he thought it probable that Lockyer reintendent at the furniture factory, was in great danger for several hours, it being the nearest building to the flames. As moved it from there and ascertained the exact sum on deposit. He never au-thorized Lockyer, he said, to withdraw the money After Esser concluded his testimony, Deputy District Attorney Haney addressed Judge Cameron. "There are some very strange features to this case," said Mr. Haney. Under the circumstances, I ask that Esser be placed under bonds, as it may be very important to have him when this case comes to trial. I am told he have been given that all employes in is able to put up some ball, and it will all lines of trade, will be given a holi-

Esser, although occupying the num-ble position of a waiter in the Tavern, promptly deposited the $250. This, too, in spite of the fact that he had, sup-posedly, just lost $160 through the alleged crime of Lockyer.
From the very first, Chief of Police Milton Brown, of Buffalo, N. Y., chief special agent in charge of the Treasury exhibit at the Government building at Gritzmacher was inclined to the be-lief that a bunco game was worked on the bank officials, and developments since are said practically to have made clear that such is the case. what part, if any, Baser and of his death and was one of the Lockyer's partners, played Walker, and are playing, is yet to be decided by investigation. Their records are re-ceiving attention at the hands of the ury Department in the capacity of a special agent at the time of the Buffalo exposition and was sent with the ex-hibit made by the department to the expositions at Charleston, St. Louis Lockyer as the man who called at the bank last week, signed the name of Es-Seven weeks ago Mr. Brown was attacked by typhoid fever but it was not ser to a check, presented it and drew out to a cent Esser's balance. Cashier Smith testified that he asked Lockyer if his at first thought that the illness would prove to be of a serious nature. The past few days, however, the fever so name was Esser, to which an affirmative reply was made. He asked Lockyer, who represented himself to be Esser, if he undermined the strength of the patient that he was unable to withstand the were going to leave town. Lockyer gave

When arrested Lockyer had a story ready to tell the police. He feigned lapse of memory. He said he could not recall a thing about the money transaction, if he ever had any, and cisimed he was under some kind of a spell. His story was never credited by any member of fraternity. Was the water thrown of to the boiling point, or lukewarm? HE FAVORS GRAND AVENUE Did one woman ever drag the other back and forth across the floor of the house? These momentous questions were up for solution before Judge Cameron, when the case of Lena Schwartz, 271 Baker strret, against Rosa Gordon, next-door neighbor, of erection of a suitable bridge across Sullivan's Guich as soon as it can be was called. The defendant was charged with immersing her neighbor in boiling water because of a quarrel. That the a bridge built on Grand avenue would water was thrown was admitted by the defense, but that it was hot and burned the back and face of Mrs. Schwartz was accommodate more people than if it were built on Union avenue, and he stands ready to support a measure for emphatically denied. Dishwater, thrown from a pan unintentionally, is what the defense said.

"There is a wooden roadway on Union avenue now," he said, "which The defense claimed that Mrs. Schwarts was niot burned at all, but that her friends, immediately after the immersion, was recently repaired and put in good condition. It will stand for some time. A permanent bridge ought now to be built on Grand avenue. It is over this took off her kimone, applied salt to her back and rubbed it briskly to cause the skin to blister. This, it was explained, was done in order to make out a good case against Mrs. Gordon.

The kimono worn by Mrs. Schwartz was a faded one, which at one time was red. At least this was the evidence adduced. Some claimed that lukewarm water would Snarkey's project to erect two steel bridges on Union and Grand avenues, and cause the garment to fade some, and that the coloring would assist the application of the salt in making a sad-looking spectacle of Mrs. Schwarts's back. Others denied these theories.

Among the was to the stand was purmoned to the scene immediately after the sensational affair at the Gordon home. From him Deputy City Attorney Fitzgerald sought to obtain a correct version of the affair, and a statement as to the exact injuries to Mrs Schwarts's back. The officer said, however, that although he was present shortly after the water was thrown, he was in a hurry and did not stop to make a minute examination. Therefore, he said, he was unable to tell Judge Cameron finally continued the case and a charge of using abusive lan-guage was filed against Mrs. Schwartz.

John E. Blazier was charged with keeping his saloon open after hours for clon-ing, but the evidence was too vague, and he was discharged.

MYSTERY WHATEVER

Maude Rust Went to Seattle and Is in That City.

While certain people in Portland are ncerning themselves regarding mysterious disappearance" of Miss Maude stories is enjoying herself in Seattle, laughing at the Porlland-spun yarns that have appeared. As the police have known for several days, the young woman, who is aged is 22 years, and has before figured in police affairs, left the city for Puget Sound for a visit.

Prior to leaving, Miss Rust wrote a letter to a friend, who considered himself her sweetheart. She explained to him that she was going to Seattle, in company with another man, and asked that he keep composed, as she would be

The following Saturday, as was mentioned in Miss Rust's letter, she left Portland for Seattle. She has been there ever since, and no mystery whatever exists, or has existed, for more than a week regarding her leaving home. Her mother first reported her daughter missing, but it required but very little time for the police to ascertain where she had gone and why. Certain reports have placed Miss Rusts's age at 16 years, but

Edward Campbell, an aged cattleman, reported to be worth at least $200,000, has been mixed up in certain reports regard-ing the affair. To Chief of Police Gritzmacher, he declares that he knows nothing about the presence of the young woman, and that the mention of his name in connection with the case is for purposes of blackmail. Mrs. Rust has engaged B. M. Smith, an attorney, to look after ly to business, it is said.

HALF-HOLIDAY PROGRAMME

Consumers' League Works in the Interest of the Employes.

Portland retail merchants, especially those connected with large department stores have agreed to give their em-ployes a half holiday Saturday after-noons. Owing to the great number of visitors in the city merchants are unable to agree to close their places of business this year, but say that during the Summer months next year, all em-ployes will be given a half holiday on Saturday during the hot weather. Through solicitations of a committee of the Consumers' League promises

Sentiment is constantly increasing in favor of the Saturday half holiday, and through the efforts of the committee of the Consumers' League the desire of the employes will be realized.

Mrs. C. C. Chapman, president of the ommittee, said yesterday: "The retail merchants have given me their promises that a Saturday half holiday will be given their employes next year, and they would have consented to the request tals ear if it had not been for the number of visitors in the city. Public sentiment is constantly growing in favor of the half holiday, and it will be only a matter of a short time until merchants will have to follow the apested in the working people.
