Street's sculp was laid open to the bon in two places, his nose cut half in two and his kneecap split with a sharp knife. He managed to hit his assailant one blow with the hatchet and the thug ran away, leaving his hat with a hole cut through it. A trail of blood was visible for two blocks, but the thug escaped in the darkness, as the electric light engine broke down at this time, leaving the town in utter darkness.

Street caused the arrest of four saloon keepers last Monday for violation of the Sunday-closing law, and each pleaded guilty and paid a fine of $60 and costs Street announced he would demand of the City Council at tomorrow night's meeting that licenses of these saloons be revoked, in compliance with the city ordinance believed the attempt to murder him is a result of this threat.

All saloons rigidly obeyed the state law and city ordinance in regard to closing today for the first time in many Sundays. Street bought a revolver and a box of cartridges last week, having heard threats against his life when he caused * the arrest of the saloonkeepers, and was promptly arrested and fined $50 for car-13'ing concealed deadly weapons

WOODMAN FINDS HUMAN BONES

Relics of a Frontier Tragedy Discovered Near Aberdeen.

ABERDEEN, Wash., Aug. 20 .- (Special.) -With several human bones, an old rusty rifle and knife, Robert Fordeney, a woodsman, came to this city today bearing this mute evidence of what was undoubtedly a woodland tragedy. Mr. Johnson stated that the permanent survey was completed to the lower end of Lower Klamath Lake Friday. This is to a point within a distance of 23 miles of Klamath Falls and the work of surveying and locating the line for the road is to be pushed to completion this Fall.
In the meantime 375 men are busy on the extension work of the road from its present terminus as Bartle this way. Mr. Johnson stated that this work would be completed and ready for the running of trains over the line to the lower end of the lake by Christmas. Here the new road will connect with the recently constructed steamboat Klamath, which is to ply on Lake Ewanna and Lower Klamath, and will give Klamath Falls direct communicawith the outside world the coming winter, without being compelled to make the 25-mile stage ride to Pokegama. Messers, Johnson and Quest are here to confer with the business men of Klamath Falls regarding future business for their road. They today made the as-sertion that Klamath Falls would hear the whistle of the railroad locomotive by the Fourth of next July and they even promise to have the road completed be fore that time.

The McCloud railroad connects with the Southern Pacific at Upton, From there it now extends 57 miles on its way toward this city to Bartle from whence the extension work, according to the road officials, is to be pushed at utmost speed. JAPS BALK AT SIXTY CENTS
