Mountain is his name, but he is not so large as this would indicate. In fact, he is so small of stature that he is em-ployed as a jockey, although he is out of work just now. He was charged with being drunk, using profane and abusive language and being disorderly in the Creamerie restaurant Thursday night. He pleaded guilty to being drunk and disorderly, but not to using bad language. He admitted, however, that he had so his committee next winter, much liquor aboard that he hardly knew what he said. He was fined a grand total of $35. . . .

"Did that man fall out of the airship and strike the Oregonian tower as he came down?" inquired a policeman, when John Cary was brought out and ar-raigned on charges of being drunk and destroying property not his own. "No," answered another, "he merely tried to put a saloon out of business and got the worst of it." Cary's face was scratched and covered with blood and he presented a bad spec-tacle. While intoxicated, he threw a stone through a large window in Walter Rochelle's saloon, 314 First street, Thurs-ady night. His case will be heard Mon-
