NEW ORLEANS, AUG. 28.—The decision of the Foreign Office to send a special minister to the United States to settle the boundary question with Mexico, and to hold an interview with the Mexican government, will leave a strong impression on the public mind here. The news came as a shock to many people, who had been looking forward to an early conclusion of the treaty.

The government has placed a heavy burden on the shoulders of the new minister, and it is difficult to see how he can make any progress without the cooperation of the Mexican government. The latter, however, is likely to resist any proposal that may be made, and the treaty may remain un signed for many years to come.
