TERMS OF PEACE

Witte's Hour of Triumph.

Not until Mr. Witte arrived at the hotel with Baron Rosen shortly after I o'clock and received one of the most remarkable ovations ever accorded a eigner in this country did the guests in the hotel know the terms of peace. which the Associated Press had bulletined a few minutes after the adjourn ment of the morning session. For half an hour the crowd awaited the arrival of Mr. Witte. Word had come that he and Baron Rosen were returning to their hotel for luncheon, but that the Japanese mission would remain at the Navy-Yard.

By the time the big automobile bringing the Russian peacemakers dashed up to the front of the Russian headquarters the veranda was crowded with hundreds of persons. The crowd met the envoys before they reached the veranda and began the mighty cheer that did not file until Mr. Witte had entered his apartments on the second floor and sunk into an armchair, moved almost to tears and completely overcome by the inspiration of the moment, the conflicting emotions produced by the momentous events at the Navy-Yard and the wildly enthusiastic demonstration which greeted him on Before Mr. Witte had passed up the crowd began crying: "What about indemnity? How much glid Russia pay?" The word "indemnity" brought Mr. Witte to a halt on the first landing of the stairway. Turning to the crowd deliberately and with that commanding force which has made his personality the most potent factor in the peace negotiations, the great man of Russia, with words that seemed to come through his tightly-clenched lips, fairly snapped back to his questioners, with deep feeling: "Pas un sou" (not a cent).

The ring of pride in his voice told the crowd that Mr. Witte had won his victory. He came to Portsmouth declaring stoutly that he would not pay an indemnity in any shape or form. He had made good his word. The words brought another cheer.

Amazed at His Success.

Forcing his way through the crowd. Mr. Witte met the members of the Russian mission, who rushed forward to the joyful tidings. Then as he started who murmured the word indemnity: "We pay not a kopek of indemnity, gir, not a kopek. Japanese Loath to Believe.

The crowd yelled uprouriously, all except the Japanese. In a group the Japanese correspondents returned to the main hotel, anxiously awaiting news from the Japanese mission. They were keenly disappointed that Baron Komura and Mr. Takahira had not were unwilling to cable home much about the agreement until the Japanomcial statement had been received. Until that should come they were unwilling to believe the news.

our plenipotentiaries; they will tell the ments regarding it. whole truth," said one of them, with an emphasis on the adjective.

Japanese Have Demonstration.

The great Japanese demonstration did ing, as the Japanese plenipotentiaries and their official secretaries remained at the yard during the afternoon. When it came it was even more remarkable than that for the Russians, for all present appreclated what sacrifice the heroic little nation had made for peace. The crowd which awaited them as they dashed up in an automobile was even larger than that which greeted Mr. Witte. The cheering came in volleys. Again and again the crowd hurrabed and waved their hats.

As the car came under the portice, both Dividing Line on Sakhalin Agreed plenipotentiaries gravely lifted their hats and held them in their hands as they passed through the line of cheering penple to the elevator. Baron Komura and They felt the full responsibility which had been upon their shoulders. Boiemulty was written upon their faces as not shut from their eyes the home country and the possible effect upon their people of the news of the sacrifice that had been made for peace. Neither plenipo-trattary stopped to shake hands, but, ac-companied by Mr. Sato, they went immediately to their rooms.

Summer Girls to the Front.

"I'll be back in a moment," said Mr. Sato, as the elevator took him to the second floor, where he deposited in Baron second floor, where he deposited in Baron comura's room the precious records of the day's proceedings. When Mr. Sato can be precious a strength in the Pacific. She will entered the lobby a few minutes later and the precious announcement, even the with the official announcement, even the with the official announcement, even the Summer girls crowded in and pushed and fought to get on the inner circle. Mr. Sate fairly fought his way to the rear verands and, ascending to the bandstand, send the Japanese statement in the same monotone in which all of his previous announcements have been made.

Near him in a group stood the still incredulous Japanese correspondents. They waited for the last word to be read. It confirmed Mr. Witte's announcement that Japan received no part of the cost of the war and gave up half of Sakhalin.

We did not believe it this morning." said Mr. Fukotomi, correspondent for the Osaka Asahi, as he walked away shaking his head. "Japan expected a great deal more than this. Division of Sakhalin was not to be thought of. It was ours by the blood of our soldiers and we should have kept it. Russia brought on this war; she should have paid for it." He was injer-

"The Emperor has acted," said one, "not only for the interest of Japan, but for the whole world. He has responded to the earnest appeals of President Roosevelt; he has again shown how merciful is his country; he declines further to sacrifice the lives of his people now that Japan's honor has been defended and avenged. The Emperor has spoken; stimas on sea, but the Japanese have Japan will obey his summons to peace. as she obeyed his call to battle-solidly and with an unbroken front."

WITTE AMAZED AT SUCCESS

Reviews Points Gained for Russia in Peace Conference.

Associated Press correspondent accompanied M. Witte to his room. The envoy had been quite overcome by great ovation he had received and the intense strain he had been under. He threw himself into his arm chair and.

to himself. "It seems incredible," he said. "I don't have dared to hope for the possibility of peace on the conditions to which we have just agreed. From all sides, from President Roosevelt down to my own friends in Russia, I received up to the last moment, even this morning, urgent representations that something should be paid to Japan."

At this point, M. Witte, who was still laboring under excitement, almost lost control of himself. He paused a moment. Then he went on:

"The Japanese wanted to take our interned warships and I have not consented. The Japanese wanted to limit our stairway leading to his apartments, the naval power in the Far East, and I have not consented. The Japanese wanted war indemnity or reimbursement of the cost of the war, aye, demanded it, and I have not concented. The Japanese wanted the Chinese Eastern Railway south of Harbin, but I gave them only the railroad in the possession of their troops south of Changtufu. The Japanese wanted Sakhalin and I refused it, agreeing at the last moment to cede the southern half, and then only because I was commanded by my sovereign to yield. Not only do we not pay so much as a kopek, but we obtain half of Sakhalin, now in their possession.

"At this morning's meeting I presented a written proposition, which was the Rus. sian ultimatum. It was accepted by the Japanese. I was amazed. Until I was in the conference room I did not think that by would happen. I could not anticipate such a great and happy issue.

Was Psychological Crisis.

"It was a psychological crisis. I had made up my mind not to strike out any of the ultimatum I submitted. So far as shake his hands. Briefly he gave them I was concerned it was ended. But I could not tell how it would work on the up the stairs he said to another inquirer, Japanese mind. It was complete victory for us. "At this afternoon's session, all the delegates will participate. Now that the general lines of the peace have been agreed upon, the details will have to be considered and discussed by the competent persons who have accompanied the plenipotentiaries. Although a question of detail, they include matters of great importance. Chief among them is the armlerice which Baron Komura and myself have already proposed to our Emperors. returned to the hotel for luncheon, and The release of prisoners will come up im mediately."

M. Witte, continuing, said that he would The unwilling to believe the news.

Mikado in Spirit of Conciliation Removes Stumbling Blocks.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 29 .- The ollowing staement was issued by Mr. Sato on behalf of the Japanese envoys: "The questions of the final disposition of the Island of Sakhalin and the reimbursement to Japan of her war expenses have from the first been issues on which absolute divergence of views existed. The difference of opinion on these points has frequently threatened the existence of the conference. But His Majesty, the Emperor of Japan, PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 29.—The responding to the dictates of humanity and civilization, has, in a spirit of perfect conciliation and in the interest of peace, authorized his plenipotentiaries to waive the question of reimbursement of war expenses and has consented to a division of Sakhalin upon terms which are mutually acceptable, after a few minutes to "pull himself together." he began to speak, slowly and thus making it possible to bring the deliberately—almost as if he were talking important work of the conference to a successful issue."

"Fourth-To play the enviable role of a chivalrous Prince in releasing the Chinese and Corean Princes from the power of the sorcerer's spell, and in helping Europe and the civilized world to rights too long withheld.

"Russia, on the other hand, naturally aimed at proving that she had intended all along to restore what was not her own, but had resented the attempt on the part of Japan to humiliate her compelling her to do so. She declined to allow the wording of the treaty clauses to convey the impression that Japan was dictating her while she was obeying. Hence, the Russian envoys insisted that their Jap-anese colleagues should expressly adopt identical ordinances, which, according to the original clauses of the draft of the treaty, Russia, and only Russia was to sign.

'Instead of allowing Japan to ap-propriate for herself the honor of championing China and Corea, Russia openly took their part, insisting that their international status should be fairly reckoned with.

'Lastly, whenever in dealing with any clause Russia made up her mind not to dispute the substance of the de-mand preferred, she still insisted on the proposal being so worded that she should not appear to sign away rights other than her own, nor connive at a future policy of absorption waich she was unable to indorse."

WITTE TO CORRESPONDENTS

Thanks Them for Impartiality and Speaks of His Work.

PORTSMOUTH, Aug. 29.-Mr. Witte, at 10:30 o'clock tonight, received the news-paper correspondents. His reception was simply a continuation of the ovation he had been receiving all day. He addressed them as follows: Gentlemen: Having heart that some you are leaving Portsmouth tomorrow; I asked you to meet me here tonight in order that I might have the pleasure of shaking hands with you all and thanking you cordially for with you all and thanking you cordially for your kind cu-operation. If punctuality be the politices of monarcha, impartiality is the courtesy of newspaper men, and, to my thinking, one of the most valuable qualities they could possess. And if you will allow me to say so, you gentlemen have manifested it—and when I say you. I mean all here. American and foreign correspondents—in a degree which provokes my unfeigned admiration. I belong to the ever-increasing number of statesmen who recognize the vast power of the newspaper press in general and of the Amer-lean branch of it in particular. I am quali-fied therefore to guage aright the value of the services you have rendered to the cause of peace and humanity in presenting to the world the various stages of evolution through which the peace negotiations passed before they attained the wished-for result.

Under conditions in which your co-operation formed a certain part, a work has been ac-complished which I am not qualified to esti-mate. An actor is seldom a good self-critic, I should like however, to state that my ac-tion was in complete harmony with the instructions which I received from my imperial master, was, in fact, the direct outcome of these instructions. The primary duty of a man who undertakes any task is to discharge that task honorably and well, and that is what I set myself to accomplish. Whatever judgment the historian may pass upon the concrete result, I shall comfort myself with the reflection that I endeavored to fulfill to the best of my ability the mission confided to me by His Majesty, the Char, and sought to further the highest interest of my country and my people. From whatever angle of vision men may look upon passing events, all people are one in holding that honesty in the discharge of one's duty and the love of one's country are, so to speak, the sait of human sovereignty. Now, gentlemen, that we are about to part.
