EFFICIENT SERVICE

Away back East, in Providence, R. I., there used to live a certain Professor Williams, who occupied a seat at Brown University. He was noted for never being "stumped" for a reply to any query ever put to him. He had a habit of walking about town with members of his class discussing the architecture of different buildings. When, at one of these out-of-door sessions, the class halted before the old Providence station, which had two towers, with a clock in each, one of the students remarked, rather innocently, "I wonder why they put a clock on each tower, Professor?" "Oh," came the reply instantly, "that is so that if anyone happened to be looking at one, the next person wouldn't have to wait until he got through."

We've such a host of bargains awaiting you here today that no one will have to wait for a turn at them; they spread out over every section of the great store. The full complement of helpers for the Autumn season is made up, and best service is assured. If we're not on your visiting list, 'tis a mighty timely time to get acquainted. To old friends we would say, let's renew old acquaintance—no better time than at the beginning of a new season. Stocks are full, fresh, bright and new. You know the QUALITY standard here; STYLES are correct and authoritative; PRICES speak for themselves. Hear their story:
