

MARION BIGGS ILL; CASE IS DEFERRED

Defense Moves for Postponement, but District Attorney Heney Objects.

JURY NOT YET SWORN IN

Government Is Willing to Try Representative Williamson and Gesner Together Rather Than Consent to Delay.

Marion R. Biggs is ill, and uncertainty reigns in land-fraud circles. The jury, though still kept together, has not been sworn. Judge Hunt has not passed upon the eligibility of E. Presmall, the Salem fruitgrower, and no one knows whether or not the trial of Williamson, Gesner and Biggs will be carried on as has been done twice already in the Federal Court.

Yesterday morning when the Federal Court was convened and small amount of extra business had been disposed of, H. S. Wilson, attorney for the defense, arose and stated that Mr. Biggs was not in the courtroom, being confined to his room by a serious illness, which, in the estimation of Dr. Harry McKay, who had attended him, might necessitate a severe operation and consequent extended convalescence.

Mr. Heney suggested that as the crime charged was a misdemeanor and not a felony, the defendant could be represented by his attorney and need not be present in person. Therefore, the true condition of Mr. Biggs should be determined to the satisfaction of the Government, and if he was as sick as a man as it was thought, the jury could be discharged and the trial continued until the defendant recovered.

The District Attorney demurred to this, however, stating that there was no need to discharge the jury, that if the case could not go on without Mr. Biggs, he would move for a severance and try Gesner and Williamson, leaving Biggs to be tried alone.

Judge Adjoins Court.

Judge Hunt did not like to force the trial without the presence of Mr. Biggs, since the attorneys objected, and therefore adjourned the court until 11 o'clock in order that an examination might be made of the patient. At the time set the attorneys reported that the physician could not determine the exact condition of the patient, and whether or not he would have to undergo an operation. A few hours would tell, so the report stated, and court was adjourned until this morning at 10 o'clock, in order to allow the physicians opportunity to be definite in their diagnosis.

This new and unexpected development casts an uncertain light over the future of the Williamson case. If Biggs is so sick that an operation is necessary, and the case is continued as against Williamson and Gesner alone, conditions will be materially different from those prevailing at the first and second trials.

If Mr. Biggs is not present in the case, much of the evidence of the Government, connecting all three of the defendants with the allegations of the indictment, will have to be left out by the prosecution. On the other hand the defense will lose the testimony of the defendant which was a direct and positive confession of the Government's case and evidence. What the effect will be in such a case is hard to guess.

The sickness of Biggs comes at an opportune time for the defense, which had moved for a continuance, though the motion had been denied. The Government is now between two horns of a dilemma; it must either continue the case as desired by the defense, or by a severance deprive itself of some of its most important evidence.

A little more sickness in the camp of the defense and the continuance of Mr. Heney's plan to have an immediate trial in any event would lead to the consummation of the desires of the defense, which moved, prior to the opening of the third trial, for a separate hearing for Mr. Williamson. If Dr. Gesner were to be taken with a serious illness just at this time, Mr. Williamson alone would remain to be tried, in that event, if Mr. Heney still insisted upon an immediate trial and no delays, he would have either to try Mr. Williamson alone, as moved by the defense, or continue the hearing for an indefinite period, as desired in the motion for a continuance. Either move would be according to the expressed preference of the attorneys for the defense.

The angle will be either straightened out or further complicated today when the physicians make their report upon the condition of Mr. Biggs.

Given Time to Plead.

Yesterday morning when court was opened, Willard N. Jones and Thaddeus Potter appeared before the bar and, through their attorney, M. L. Piper, asked to be given until Saturday morning in which to plead. They waived the reading of the indictment and stipulated that if a demurrer was interposed it would be argued on Saturday. The court therefore allowed them until the time mentioned to enter their plea. H. Finch and Thaddeus Potter, principals in the second indictment, also asked until Saturday to enter their plea, which order was made.

By the order of the court all of those jurors who had been called but not selected upon the Williamson jury, were dismissed until Friday, September 15, at 10 o'clock in the morning.

Dan R. Murphy, attorney for Claud Thayer, in the last land-fraud indictment returned by the Federal grand jury which charged the defendant with conspiracy to defraud the Government out of land in the Sitka reserve, asked the court that an order be made authorizing copies of the indictment to be made for the use of the defense at the expense of the Government. The court was of the opinion that such orders could be made, provided the defense filed affidavit that it was financially unable to pay such costs. Judge Hunt took the matter under consideration in order to satisfy himself upon the point.
