TWO SUSPECTS ARRESTED

DICK DE CORDOVA AND SEXTON HIEATT IN TOILS.

Detectives Apprehend Men Believed to Have Picked Pockets of M. Rosenfeld at Marquam.

Suspected of having picked the pocket of Maurice Rosenfeld, of Chicago, and of attempting to extract a purse from the pocket of Thomas W. Younger, mastermechanic of the Southern Pacific, at the Marquam Theater Thursday night, Dick De Cordova and Sexton Hieatt were arrested yesterday afternoon at Fourth and Yamhili streets. While the two were hurrying from a saloon after mingling with the crowd of departing passengers at the Fourth-street depot, they were stopped by Detectives Carpenter and Resing and taken to police headquarters. Hieatt and De Cordova attracted the attention of the detectives by persistently ention of the detectives by personal special passengers in their rush Scattle. 100,00 12 NW Pt. quam Thursday night, and who prevented a thief from robbing Younger, partially identified De Cordova last night as the man be had shoved away from the in-tended victim. Mr. Brady was almost positive that De Cordovs is the man wanted, although his wearing apparel is alightly different from the clothes worn by him Thursday night. Both suspects are beld on a charge of vagrancy until a thorough investigation can be made. In the robbery at the Marquam Rosen day, with but little change in temperature. feld lost $350 and four railroad tickets to St. Paul. Younger did not lose anything, although one of the men succeeded in

LOST NEAR MOUNT HOOD

Portland Preachers Have Thrilling Experience in Big Woods.

Rev. Andrew Montgomery, paster of the Third Presbyterian Church, and Rev. Henry Marcotte, of the Westminster Presbyterian Church, of Portland, during their outing at Mount Hood, had an experience in the timber at night which they will not soon forget. Rev. Mont-gomery was already camped at Mount Hood and his brother paster was to come The former was to meet him about two miles from camp.

It was late in the evening when Dr.

Marcotte arrived, and with 13 miles of tramp ahead of him started out with vigorous stride, but darkness came before he had covered much of his journey. It'was not an ordinary darkness, but one that covered the face of the earth with a gloom that caused every stump and tree to stand out in relief and assume startling shapes, but Rev. Marcotte walked on the best he could, expecting that he should soon meet Rev. Monthe miles and the latter did not appear he began to feel a little creepy, and to look for a tree in which to spend the night beyond the reach of wild beasts. Rev. Montgomery left his end of the II-mile stretch and walked two miles and waited for Mr. Marcotte to come.

By the light of a match he observed the time the latter was due had already passed. He walked down the dim trail two miles and waited but Mr. Marcotte did not appear. As he was about to turn back he called out loudly twice, wher to his relief, his friend answered, and soon they were together. Then began the return trip to camp. The road winds around in the green timber and brush. Sometimes they were on the road and then would miss it again. Finally, after missing and regaining the road at least missing and regaining the road at least 50 times in the extreme darkness, they arrived at camp at a late hour.
