SUPERIORITY OF DANE ADMITTED

Californians Agree Nelson Is Best Man at 133 Pounds in Boxing Game.

APPARENTLY IS UNSCATHED

Nelson Shows Very Little Sign of Terrible Fight_Britt Is Badly Scarred About the Face and Hands Swollen.

By W. G. MacRae. SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 10 .- (Special.)-This is the day after-the day after James Edward Britt, the pride of Callfornia, fell bleeding and beaten before the terrific blows of Battling Nelson, the Dane whose head is made of boiler iron and whose chest and stomach are of castiron. Naturally, yesterday afternoon's fight was the sole subject of conversation on the street and in the clubs today, and while there are some of the Britt admirers who believe that Britt can yet whip the Hegewisch boy, there are hundreds who saw the battle who are willing to stake their all that Britt never saw the day he could strike the colors of the Chicago ind.

Few of the case-hardened fight-followers ever saw a more terrific battle than that of yesterday, and while it hurts the majority of the Californians to sumit it, they agree that Nelson has it on any boy at 133 pounds in the boxing game today. Jimmy Britt is among those who do not believe that Nelson is the king of the lightweights. I saw him this afternoon, and while he is willing to give all the credit in the world to Nelson for defeating him, he still thinks he can beat "I'm not going to hound Nelson for a match." he said to me, "but I will want another fight with him. Other fighters have been knocked out, and they have come again, and I think I can do the Nelson is at the top of the ladder and is entitled to all the money he can make before he fights again for the title. When that time comes he will find me ready to meet him, and I feel confident that I can give a better account of myself. My hands went back on me, and at the end I was unable to hit him without causing myself great pain. You can say that I'm not out of the game, and will fight many times before I ouit the ring."

Condition of Fighters.

Nelson was around last night and today showing very little indications that he had gone through 18 rounds of tremendous fighting. Aside from the flattened mose and the cabbage-like ear, which are His nose is peeled and swollen, and his left hand is done up with bandages, but aside from this he is in splendid Britt, on the other hand, has a pair of painfully swollen hands, and, in addition to his face being puffed and swollen, his upper lip protrudes as if he had been stung by a bee. It is Nelson's intention even with the cor to rest up for a time, and in view of taking this rest, he has gope to Larkspur. After he has rested there, he will make a tour of the East.

Points of the Battle.

A day's view of the fight has brought out many things. It has shown that the man who is constantly coming forward is going much faster than the man who is backing up. In his battle with the Dane Britt was always breaking ground, and he never got a chance to set himself for a punch, while Nelson was forever coming forward and behind his ability to deliver a terrific punch was the for-ward movement of his body. Britt cutscienced Nelson and outclevered him, but the best of his work was done at long range, and there never was a time when his blows had enough steam behind them to stop the Hegewisch lad. The Dane simply would not be stopped. Nothing but an explosion of dynamite would have kept him from going for-

Perhaps in the memory of the present generation there will be another such battle, but I doubt it. All the hate, all the bitter rancor that can accumulate in the human breast, surged in the bosoms of both fighters. The handshaking they indulged in at the beginning was a farce—they were looking they are the surger of t thoused in at the beginning was a large they were looking over each other's shoulders as they clutched with their clumsy gloves, which later were to be-come an outlet to their feelings as they smote. There was hatred in each blow, in every feint, in every jab. It was well that the gloves were not keen-edged blades. Yet they might as well have been, for the blows severed the skin and brought almost as much blood. Punishment Severe.

Both boys fought as you would expect the prehistoric animals to have fought, with a blind fury for mere existence. Britt was the more intelligent animal of the two, and for that reason the blows that fell upon his jaw and stomach caused him to show quicker signs of dis-

Nelson, with his animal ability to absorb punishment, seemed to gloat on it, and the more punishment he received the more he wanted. He was callous to pain and shock, and though at times his senses seemed to reel and falter. there was always concealed behind those supple shoulders that awful punch that has sent all of the men he has faced to the canvas. He is a modern savage, with a tremendous capacity to move forward in spite of a punishing opposition.

Briti was more sensitive. If Nelson has a seat of sensation, Britt could not find it, and I don't believe there is a fighter today who, at 132 pounds, ringside, can find the spot that will stop this "Terrible

This fight will end the fighting in this This light will end the fighting in this place for some time to come. Fight promoters are incided to lay off for a while, in spite of the fact that this fight has given the game a great boom. Naturally, if Nelson fights another big battle, it will be held here, for there is no other place where such crowds can be gathered and such money offered to the fighters.

MUST UNITE TO WIN. Republicans and Democrats to Oppose Schmitz.

Hugo K. Aber, of San Francisco, grand resident of District Grand Lodge No. 4. Independent Order B'nai B'rith, who has been making a tour of the Northwest In the interest of his order, and who is considered well informed in matters pertaining to local politics of the California metropolis, spoke freely yesterday concern ing the efforts of Republicans and Democrats to unite upon a candidate with a view of encompassing the defeat of Mayor Eugene E. Schmitz, the labor union nominee. Incidentally Mr. Asher had considerable to may relative to the motives that have inspired political history leading up to the present chaotic sitpation.

"To give you a fairly correct conception of the political outlook of San Francisco, it would be necessary to go back almost ten years. I would have to show. you a boss-ridden and boss-governed municipality, with all its shortcomings, its corruption and shame. A governmen In which the Mayor was the figure-head, and the boss owned the Board of Supervisors, the seat of governmental power, I speak, of course, of the rule, for clean government was the exception.

Compliments James D. Phelan.

"Then came the administration of James Phelan, and the adoption of a new organic law for the municipality, the ew charter of the city. It gave great too much power, as future events proved, to the Mayor, which made him the absolute and responsible head of the

"It is a charter that proceeds upon the impossible for anyone but a man of the highest type of civic virtue and civic shillty to attain the office of Mayor. The charter worked satisfactorily while we had that type of man in Mr. Phelan, but just at the end of Phelan's administration there came the great teamsters strike of San Francisco, which resulted in the formation of a new political party, the Labor Union party. This brought about the election of our present Mayor, Eugene E. Schmitz, and his course in office has quite changed the views of the average citizen with reference to the vest-ing of almost autocratic power in one in-

Administration Is Corrupt.

"All who know, and are not personally interested in the present regime of San Francisco will admit that Mr. Schmitz's first administration was poor and tainted by public scandal and that his second ad-inistration is corrupt.

"During both of the elections that re sulted in the return of Mr. Schmitz, the old parties had each a candidate and between the two Mr. Schmitz had little trouble in being elected. Of course, when we of San Francisco say Schmitz, we mean Mr. Ruef, and when we say Ruef, we mean Mr. Schmitz; they are inter-changeable terms, but Mr. Ruef's name should really be placed first, for he does marks of his previous battles, he has not only the campaigning for his can-hardly a sign to indicate yesterday's didate, but much of his governing afterwards.

"The best intentioned in the two old are anxious for a combination be ween them that may result in sweeping Mr. Schmitz and his administration of office, and they are trying to shape their course in that direction. Those who know the game of politics are quite sure that unless such a combination is made. Mr. Schmitz will again be reelected and such a combination will be made is still thoroughly healed, captured Hildebrand's problematical.

Talks of Ruef.

"As Mr. Ruef, who, two years ago, was no small factor in the Republican con-vention, while absolutely dominating the labor convention, will have less voice in the former by reason of his recent defeat in the primaries; it is likely that a mer-zer of the Schmitz opposition may be achieved. At any rate, matters are shap-ing themselves in that direction.

"The labor convention has already met and renominated Mr. Schmitz. The Dem-ocratic and Republican conventions are not likely to meet until towards the end of this month, and if the expected takes place, San Francisco will present the for years. "These of course are only the views of one whose very active political interest is a matter of the past, for while I am a member of the present Democratic con-

Marse Garvin made his reappearance at the Vaughn-street grounds yesterday afternoon, and just to show the Seals that his week of rest had no ill effects upon his pitching ability, the long fellow ment them to their train with the third shutout of the week tagged on their baggage, The final glance at the scoreboard told the tale of the fifth whitewash victory of McCredie's men of the past week, for the sum total of the acores registered yesterday was two for the Giants and naught for "Protestations" Wilson and his crew from down 'Frisco way, Essick and Corbett blanked the Oakland team in two games last Monday, and Jones, Cates and Garvin came through with the hencoop wash on the San Francisco club, and the other two games during the series were undecided extra inning contests which were called on account of darkness. From the above summary of the Portland club's performances it may be readily seen that they smashed a few records, and in addition, have climbed back to the 500 per cent mark, which has been so difficult of attainment during the past two days, when they battled seven extra innings in two games without success.

Garvin was pretty much the whole enagerle in the final contest, although McHale and McLean ably easisted him in preventing the scoring of a ran by the Seals. With Hildebrand on third and Irwin on second in the fourth, by virtue of a pass and a hit by pitcher and the double steal, executed because Perrine falled to notice that Spencer had fouled the ball, of which they took advantage, McHale captured Spencer's long fly and by one of the prettiest and most perfect throws ever seen at the local park, caught Hildebrand at the plate, completing a double play and retired the side. It was a great play, and Hildy was so surprised that he could hardly believe the ball had reached McLean's mits before he slid into the register. Waldron and Mohler started trouble in the eighth by leading off with a single aplece, but diever work on the part of McLean again prevented them from getting within hailing distance of the plate. bination they do not The big fellow, who went into the game arrength. STORY OF HOO HOO.

Bolling Arthur Johnson Tells It at Auditorium.

Hoo Hoo, the Concatenated Order of carried away. Hoo Hoo, in all its mysticism, was dissected and its precious history divulged last night by Boiling Arthur Johnson Seer of the House of Ancients, before un intensely interested sudience, which filled the Auditorium at the Lewis and Clark originator of Hoo Hoo, this mysterious name which savors of the Orient. The son last night, was illustrated with many beautiful stereopticon views. This entertainment was extended to the members and friends of the Concatenated Order of

To say that the story of Hoo Hoo, as rendered by Mr. Johnson, is intensely in-teresting is hardly half enough. It was absorbingly interesting, and those who attended in the Auditorium last night were given a treat which they will always remember whenever the word Hoo Hoo is mentioned., To begin with, Mr. Johnson is an orator of note, and is en. dowed with a strong and pronounced sense of the richest and most wholesome humor. He has a personality which cap-tivates his audience and leaves a lasting impression. Mr. Johnson is a natural as well as cultivated speaker, and has a charming delivery, distinct pronunciation, and a concise manner of expression, which never falls to hold the rapt attan-

As told last night, the words Hoo Hoo came to Mr. Johnson one morning, in the year of 1892, when he was arising from his bed in the Hotel Midland, Kansas City, Mo. They came to him in a sort of a revelation, as described by Mr. John-son, as never before had he heard of the son, as never before had he heard of the words Hoo Hoo. They preyed upon his mind and later, while delayed in a railroad wreck in Gurdon, Ark., the idea occurred to him and a party of lumbermen to form an order and name it after Hoo Hoo. The idea of using the black cat as an emblem of the order was taken from the ancient history of Egypt.

Mr. Johnson last night told the story of Hoo Hoo from the events leading up of Hoo Hoo from the events leading up of Hoo Hoo from the events leading up to its beginning to the present day. The illustrations showed the scenes connected with the history of the order, starting with a riew of the room in which the with a riew of the room in which the words Hoo Hoo first came to Mr. Johnson. Nearly all the important events in the history of the order are illustrated. Mr. Johnson preceded his lecture by reading a translation of a poem, supposed to have been written in China 1800 years.

Makes Down Trip From the Locks to 617 Passengers.

With the two splendid bands of the letter-carriers on board, one at either end of the vessel, discoursing their best airs, with banners and flags streaming out to the wind, and the jolly, good-natured let-ter-carriers and their friends to the number of 617 on board, the steamer Tele-phone made her initial run as an excursion boat up the Columbia to the Locks and back yesterday. It had been planned to leave at $:15, but on account of the slow arrival of some of the excursion party, the steamer did not get away until 5:44, at which time she steamed away from the dock for her first trip on the waters of the Columbia. At Cape Horn, a three-minute stop was just some of the pins. At Bonneville, a stop of one hour and a half was made, to give the carriers a chance to eat their plenic lunches on shore. All the other up-river boats passed her at this time on their way to the Locks. At 2:45 P. M., she left Bonneville for the Locks, passing the other boats on their way back at Moffatt's, about two miles below the Locks; this was at 3 P. M. She continued on to the Locks, and, turning around for home at 3:18, arrived at the Oak-street dock at 6:45 P. M., making the run down in three hours and thirty minutes. The carriers and their friends seemed to be pleased, and were profuse in their craise of the new steamer. Both Captain Cochran and Captain E. W. Baughman are delighted with her, and both expect great things of her. Captain Cochran has not as yet made any definite plans for her run, but expects to do so soon. The boat is the largest excursion steam-er on the river, and is allowed to carry.
