FIRST DAY OF

Its Star Witness a Man of Unsavory Family, C. L. Brandon.

GESNER IN OWN BEHALF

Takes the Stand and Denies That He Has Done Anything Contrary to Law, and Undergoes Cross-Examination.

The first day of the defense in the Williamson case was a trying one-for the it started with an ill-selected witness chosen to tell of the motives and the intentions of Dr. Gesner and Mr. Williamson. It placed a man, shifting of eye and unsavery of reputation, upon the stand to relate the fact that no contract had been made and no law had been broken. It added to the habitual smile worn by Mr. Heney, but did not give any brilliant radiance to the circle across the table. Some who watched the trial, lis-tened to the evidence and noted its effect, say that the selection of Clarence L. Brandon to lend the cause of the defense was a mistake, in tactics, at least.

Barnes Recalled by Heney.

When the seasion of the court was opened in the morning, George W. Barnes the lawyer from Prineville, was recalled by Mr. Heney for a short questioning before the main work of the defense was taken up for the day. Mr. Hency elicited from Barnes the fact that he was related to Gesner by marriage. He asked him if he had not told Knox Houston, in Princville, a short time before the second trial of the case, that he was only waiting for $600 to be given him by the defendants before he started for Portland to assist in the trial of the case. This the witness

Brandon Witness for Defense.

Then Clarence L. Brandon, the halfbrother of the murderer, Claud Brandon, was called by the defense to tell his story, which proved not to be strong, and which was hampered by the hang-dog look and uneasy manner of the witness, once he was brought under the range of cross-

Brandon said, in brief, that he was a resident of Sisters, Crook County, where he had a homestead, upon which he had cultivated is acres of land, and where he was at present making his home. He stated that in 1902 he had goffe to Prine-ville on his way to Vale, Eastern Oregon, and that here he had met Campbell Dun-can, who had told him that Gesner was looking for 100 men to take timber claims for him. Following the suggestion of Dun-can, the witness had gone to the shearing camp, where he had met a crowd waiting to see Genner. Duncan had asked Gesner he would buy the claims of those who filed upon them, but Geener had told him such a course was against the law. The defendant had also warned Duncan that he could not sell his claim or contract for its sale. Gesner, however, had told them all that after the patents had been secured the claims would be worth $500 to him. He had further said that he could loan them the money for the fees, for which he would take a mortgage and would take the grass as interest.

Cross-Examination Severe. On the cross-examination the witness spent some very unpleasant minutes in spite of the objections of Mr. Bennett, who argued that the misfortune of Bran-nos been with Claud Brandon when and a companion murdered John A. Linn near Eugene and burned his body to hide He had been with the party and had gone as far as Sisters with them, when he had stopped, allowing the other three to go on. Asked where John Brandon, another brother, was at the pr time, the witness stated that he sorry to say he was in the penitentlary. This brother is the man who killed John Fietcher, near Cottage Grove, about a year ago in order to get the insurance noney from a policy made in favor of the

He had been promised the same fee that would be paid a Government witness. He had been in the office of M. R. Elliott at Princville, where he had read in The Oregonian of Campbell Duncan's testimony and had noted its falsity. He had told Elliott of his being on the trip and through this conversation. an the trip and through this conversation had become a witness for the defense.

Gesner in His Own Behalf.

Following Brandon, Dr. Gesner went upon the stand in his own defense, and told the same story which he has twice related to as many juries. He had gone to Biggs and Barnes asking for advice to how he could protect his range. He had then been told that he could loan money on the claims and take a mortgage and he had done so. He had not intended to violate the law and did not now think he had done so, inasmuch as he had made no contract with any of those who had taken

A point was made by the defense of the dates of payment of the checks given Wilford J. Crain and George N. Gaylord. These checks had been given on December while the witnesses testified to having received them a day sooner.

Dr. Gesner was on the stand during all of the afternoon, Mr. Heney finishing his when the court was adjourned until this when the court was ad morning at 9:30 o'clock,

WOULD QUASH INDICTMENTS

Attorney for Defendants in Federal Court Makes Argument.

S. B. Huston, attorney for the defend-ants in the Jones, Potter, Wade and Jones-Finch cases before the Federal the hearing of the Mitchell plea in abatement.

Mr. Huston appeared in argument in the Pederal Court for a short time in defense of his cilents. The crime alleged in the indictments against them is that they entered into a conspiracy to defraud the Sovernment of land. The attorney stated that one of his reasons for the motion to quash was that the names of the wit-nesses examined before the grand jury were not affixed to the indictment, acwere not affixed to the indictment, according to the provisions of the scate law. Mr. Huston argued that during the hearing of the Mitchell pica in abatement, Mr. Heney had contended, and Judge Beilinger had susained him, that Federal Courts followed the state law of procedure. In that event, since the state law expressly provided that the names of the witnesses before a grand jury should be on the indictment, then his contention was right and the motion should be granted. Mr. Heney argued that Mr. Huston had misunderstood his meaning. The court took the question under advisement.

WOULD OUST THE COUNCIL

Business Men Organize to Accomplish This Result.

At a meeting of citizens and taxpayers of St. Johns, who had become tired of the deadlock in the St. Johns Council, held in Blekner's Hall last evening, a movement was started to oust the whole of the St. Johns Council. A committee was ap-pointed to find out the legal possibilities thereof, and instructed to report at a meeting soon to be held. While this meeting was being held the Council was in session and got busy for the first time in many weeks, grinding out many petitions for street work and transacting other business. The members seem to have had their ears to ground and heard some-

Chief Gritzmacher Inclined to Doubt Bailey.

REPORT PECULIAR

As Turned In by Policemen It Quotes Erickson's Son-in-Law as Saying Saloon Could "Open on the Quiet."

Acting Chief of Police Gritzmacher is said to be of the opinion that Captain Balley, commanding the second relief, is after his scalp, and to that end is trying to "Job" him.

The Acting Chief, it is amderstood, bases his beilef upon the report published in The Oregonian yesterday. This was a report handed to Captain Bailey by Policemen Anderson and O'Brien, who said that when they en-tered August Erickson's saloon at 2:30 A. M. and ordered the manager to close up, Erickson's son-in-law replied by saying that Gritzmacher had told him could run after hours "on the rant issued, the arrest was made, and the case is to be heard before Municipal Judge Cameron this week.

Although the report is said to have come to Captain Bailey through reguiar channels, without any personal in structions from him, it is said that Acting Chief Gritzmacher is inclined to the belief that the celebrated "on to the belief that the celebrated "on the quiet" clause was wormed into it in some most peculiar manner, and so cautiously coupled with the name of the head of the department as to make a combination sentence, detrimental to Captain Balley's immediate superior.

When asked the direct question yesterday as to whether he suspected Captain Balley of "jobbery," Acting Chief Gritzmacher said he had never mentioned Railey's name to sny one.

"Do you now think Captain Balley may have attempted to 'job' you in the Erickson matter?" was asked.

"Well, I don't know," was the only reply.

In police circles it is known, or at least it is thought, that Mayor Lane will appoint a permanent Chief shortly after the close of the Lewis and Clark Exposition. It is also known that Captain Bailey is a formidable candidate, that he worked hard for the Lane forces in the recent campaign, and sought the position now held temporarily by Mr. Gritzmacher. It is supposed that upon these known facts is based the belief of the department head that there may the department head that there may have been an object of peculiar interest in the sensational report turned in to Captain Balley by two of the latter's subordinates.
