The work of making awards at the Lewis and Clark Livestock show attracted fully 15.000 people yesterday. The great grandstand was well filled by noon and at o'clock there were no vacant seats. Keen interest was displayed by the thou-sands in the operations of the judges. Last night there was much enthusiasm among stockmen as the attendance. Ex-hibitors who have attended the various livestock exhibitions of the past decade declare they have never before met with such heavy attendance or such general

Amusement Concession at Exposition Destroyed.

TRAIL HAS NARROW ESCAPE

Loss Is Five Thousand Dollars, With No Insurance - Flames Consume the Building Before Alarm Is Given.

In the burning of the Blue-Grotto, a concession at the Lewis and Clark Exposition, the Trail had a very narrow escape from fire late yesterday afternoon. Pire started in the Blue Grotto about 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon, and within a very few minutes it was set. within a very few minutes it was gutted by the flames, rendering it useless for the remainder of the season. The loss is placed at $5000, as there was no insurance on the building. It was owned by the Blue Grotto Company, of which H. R. Small is the manager. While the Blue Grotto is an amusement concession, it is not on the Trail proper, being situated at the foot of

So many flowers were distributed that it seemed as though every visitor at the Exposition was wearing the flower gift from the Tacoma women. Besides the red dahllas, 1600 souvenir posters were distributed among the visitors to the Washington building yesterday. The posters, reproduced in several colors and reality a work of art, show a magnificent view of Stount Tacoma, and of the city of Tacoma, with the words of the city of Tacoma, with the words "The Lewis and Clark Exposition" printed at the bottom. These souvenirs alone cost the Tacoma women more than $500. Hundreds of postal cards, showing views of Tacoma and the surrounding country, are distributed daily. All who call at the building are wrest to busy receiving guests. Mrs. T. B. Wal-lace, the official hostess, received the guests at the head of the stairs, being assisted by Mrs. P. J. Fransioli. Mrs. Benjamin Grosscup, one of the most prominent women of Tacoms, presided at the souvenir table and strategies. at the souvenir table, and gracio at the souvenir table, and graciously pre-sented the gifts to the visitors. Light re-freshments, consisting of punch and

It has not been decided yet whether there will be any formal exercises, but there will be music during the afternoon by Schmitz's orchestra, and refreshments

For a Gift to H. B. Hardt.

Several scores of exhibitors and commisioners of the Lewis and Clark Exposition met at the Massachusetts building, yesterday afternoon, and discussed the mat-ter of presenting H. B. Hardt, assistant in the division of exhibits, with a memo-rial fund. Colonel Henry E. Dosch, di-rector of exhibits, at the request of the exhibitors, called the meeting to order, all parts of the grounds the people flocked to the scene of the fire every minute expecting to see the flames leap to the adjoining Trail buildings.

Chief McDowell, of the Exposition Pire Department, says the building had to take the matter in hand.

PLANNING FOR DECORATIONS

Prepare Displays.

"We'll be there at the Fair, Portland day," is the phrase which will appear on placards in the windows of the Board of Trade office in the Chamber of Commerce building Monday morning, and which Act-ing Secretary J. B. Laber suggests should find liberal use in windows throughout Portland during the intervening time until Portland day at the Exposition, Sat-urday of next week.

Monday morning the Board of Trade will also begin decorating with bunting of the Exposition colors, and efforts will be put forth to arouse enthusiasm and lively competition among merchants gen-erally, as well as residents, to make Port-land more attractive than ever before to Exposition visitors, since large numbers will be entertained from local territory, many of whom have not before visited the exhibit palaces of the Dream City. The spirit of Portland pride is aroused and there is reason to expect that the street decorations of the week will surpass anything previously attempted, just as the day is expected to far exceed in attendance any other day of the entire Exposition.

The motto Mr. Laber has suggested will probably become popular with print-ers and sign-writers of the big mercantile-houses, and it is also probable that ar-rangemnts will be made to spread the work for the most notable occasion of the year by displaying thousands of the signs along all the main traveled streets and along streetcar lines.

For Agricultural Days.

Plans are rapidly being formulated for the celebration of Agricultural days at the Lewis and Clark Exposition, Septemer 28 and 29. The features of the Agricultural days will be grand parade and the distribution of fruit and gifts. Several thousand dollars' worth of premiums and prizes will be awarded to visitors, and at least five carloads of fresh fruit will be distributed during the two days. There w be two parades, one on the forenoon of September 28, and the other on the night of September 29.

Visitors to the Falke.

Visitors will be received on board the Jerman cruiser Falke today between the hours of 12:30 and 2 and 5:30 and 7 P. M. hours of 12:30 and 2 and 5:30 and 7 P. M. The vessel is a novelty in many respects, and a large number of people will avail themselves of this opportunity to inspect her. Launches plying from the several boathouses will carry passengers to and from the Falke. The local Deutcher Tag Society will give a dance at the Arion Hall this evening in honor of the officers and crew of the visiting warship.

Saturday Was Chosen, Mr. Goode Says, Because It Was the Best Day for the Greatest Number of People.

ADMISSIONS, 23,420.

Admissions at the Lewis and Clark Exposition yesterday were 23,439.

Portland day at the Lewis and Clark Exposition will be Saturday, September 30. This has been finally and positively settled, the reasons for which are given in a letter from President Goode, which follows:

PORTLAND, Sept. 20.—When the schod-ule of events for the Exposition was arranged last Spring, due consideration was given to the fact that Saturday is the best fay of the week for celebrations of all kinds, and particularly for city days. In fay of the week for celebrations of all kinds, and particularly for city days. In following out this idea, Saturday, June 10, was given to Astoria; Saturday, June 24, to Seattle, Saturday, July 12, to Butte, Saturday, July 29, to Los Angeles; Saturday, August 5, to Saturday, July 29, to Los Angeles; Saturday, August 22, to San Francisco; Saturday, August 25, to Satt Lake City: Saturday, September 9, to the State of California, and Saturday, September 18, to Fortland. In fixing Portland day, the aim was to get as near as practicable to the closing of the Exposition, and still keep as close as circumstances would permit to the period of good weather. As what is regarded as the equinox, with its attendant rains, comes on September 21, it was rains, comes on September 21, it was naturally destrable that Portland day should be on the Saturday preceding this period or on a later Saturday. In this way Septem ber 16 was the first chosen. The rea of the subsequent change to September will be stated further on.

Why Saturday Was Chosen.

In the selection of Saturday for Portland day, the guilding facts were the following:

that Portland day had been changed from Saturday, September 16, to Saturday, September 20. After the copy for this edition had been prepared, and before it had been delivered to the printer, it was learned that Saturday, September 30, would be Jewish New Year, a holiday when Jewish manufacturers, merchants and professional men are compelled to close their factories, stores and offices. Not only do they close their stores, but their employes of all classes and grades are exempt from employment on that day. but their employes of all classes and grades are exempt from employment on that day. It seemed to the Exposition management that as this holiday released from their usual vocations several thousand people, it would be good business policy to change Portland day to September 30, and to attract to the Exposition grounds the large number of people who would be taking a holiday. The reasons that governed the selection of reasons that governed the selection September 18 as Portland day in the first instance, applied with equal force to Sep-tember 30, and with the additional fact that September 30 is a holiday for thousands of persons, there was no question but that the day selected was the best one for the Exposition. Impossible to Change.

Impossible to Change.

In the selection of September 39 as Portland day, we have made the best possible arrangement for the Exposition and for all interests concerned. They who are now objecting to a Saturday for Fortland day should bear in mind that a Saturday has been decided upon for five months and that no complaint was made until within two weeks. They who complain of September 30 as the particular Saturday should remember that the announcement therefor was made on July 15, and that no objection was made until within the past two weeks. If the day chosen was not satisfactory there was plenty 15, and that no objection was made until within the past two weeks. If the day chosen was not satisfactory there was plenty of time for the filing of objections and we could have given consideration to them. The subject has been formally before our executive committee and board of directors for consideration and both of these bodies have acquiesced in the adoption of September 30 as Portland day. It is now no time for fault-finding, as the day has been definitely fixed for Saturday, September 30, and all arrangements have been made, the souvenir tickets printed, etc., and we could not change, even if we desired to, without endangering the success of the day. The co-operation and pairconage of every resident and interest of the city are needed to make Portland day the great day of the Exposition, and I have sufficient confidence in the loyalty and patriotism of the people of Portland to say that we shall have that co-operation and patronage and that our business houses will uniformly close in order to permit their proprietors and employes to visit the Exposition. The test of public Spirit and loyalty in Portland the year will be the support given the Exposition on Portland day.

100,000 Admissions Wanted.

100,000 Admissions Wanted.

We want 100,000 admissions on that day, an dif Portland turns out and enthuses as of admissions that the Exposition will have on Portland day will be heralded all over the world, and will, without doubt, prove an effective and enduring advertisement of the genius and enterprise of Oregon and Portland.
