What Reclamation Means to State of Oregon.

MORRIS BIEN'S STATEMENT

Work at Klamath Lake Will Soon Begin, as Nearly All Obstacles Have Been Overcome, He Declares.

Morris Bien, who is in charge of the land and legal matters of the Government Reclamation Service, arrived in Portland Thursday, in company with A. E. Chander, who is at the head of the field work in the same department. They are making a tour of the western states, investigating conditions in the sections where irrigation projects are now under consid-

Mr. Blen stated that the situation in the Mr. Blen stated that the situation in the Klamath county was very favorable at present and that it was practically cer-tain that work would soon begin upon this vast project, although developments have not yet reached the stage where a definite announcement can be made. The Kla-math project will affect more than M6,-

Most Difficulties in Northwest.

"We have met more difficulties in our work in Oregon and Washington than in any other states," said Mr. Bien. "How-ever, I am glad to say that conditions look more promising now than at any previous time. Nearly all of the obstacles which impeded progress in the Klamath section have been removed. As both Tule Lake and Lower Klamath Lake extend across the border into California the con-sent of the legislatures of both states, which we obtained, was absolutely es-sential. Congress, too, has authorized the work so that all legal obstacles have been removed with the exception of the claims of some of the land owners along the shores of the lakes. These claims are very doubtful as it is probable that the state has first right, but it is the policy of the Government to make everything ab-solutely clear before proceeding with its work and we are now getting releases from these people.

Big Klamath Project.

"Of course the Klamath project is a big thing and we must go about it grad-ually, but our work is moving along and we expect to take up one section of it soon. The first thing to be done is to dig the main canal from Upper Klamath Lake. This will cover a large extent of Jake. This will cover a large extent of territory and will be a good beginning.

"We are also progessing as rapidly as possible with our other projects in Oregon. We have met with many difficulties in the Maiheur country, but our work there is moving favorably and we hope to have something definite to announce concerning it in the near future."

Mr. Bien is of the online that the near ing it in the near future."

Mr. Blen is of the opinion that the people of the state are not fully aware of the benefit which will result to Oregon from the work to be done here. "If Port-land could get a railroad into the Kla-math region it would mean much to the city when the Government work there is completed," he said. "California is fully awake to the situation and the railroads which are being constructed from the South will take the vast business of this section to San Francisco unless a line is built to Portland, which would be the antural shipping point."

Mr. Bien and Mr. Chandler will leave tonight for North Yakima, Wash., to vestigate conditions in that vicinity.
