Oregon and the surrounding states. These lates or more persons are impatient for the advent of tomorrow, Portland day at the Lewis and Clark Exposition, and are the Lewis and Clark Exposition, and are a little anxious regarding the weather on the day of days. If the weather forecaster is to be relied upon, the sun will shine down upon the Exposition tomorrow from a clear sky, with starcely a cloud to darken the horizon. Still more, the forecast premises that there will be just enough wind to temper the rays of the sun, all points to make a perfect day for Portland's celebration. Nature has been unusually kind to the Lewis and Clark Exposition, and it is not thought that at the last sequent it will go back on the Fair. ent it will go back on the Fair.

ADMISSIONS, 23,814.

The turnstiles recorded 23,814 admissions vesterday.

From up at Hood River where apples grow as big as ordinary pumpkins there came yesterday morning the greatest exursion that has ever reached the Lewis and Clark Exposition. The enterprising city of Hood River and the surroundin agricultural districts were practically populated. Some say there were five invalids and two infants left behind, but others deny this report, claiming that the seven members of the population referred to could not stand the strain and joined the excursion party at the last moment, Be that as it may, 1015 people reached Portland on the morning train and that figure is the actual count made by Rinaldo Hall, of the O. R. & N. Company, which transported the population to Portland About 300 additional came on a second train, and a couple of hundred or more started earlier in the week in order to be on hand early. By heavy odds the excursion takes the record for the Ex-position period in the matter of size. Hood River day at the Exposition proved a big occasion. Everyone of the excur sionists was at the grounds by 10 o'clock and everyone else at the Pair knew Hood River was in evidence. Not by noisy dem onstrations or gaudy banners or ades, music and speechmaking. through a display of unstituted liberality and hospitality. Exactly 800 fine apples were given away, and there is no eloquence that reaches Exposition crowds quite so readily or quite so fully as depresents of time fruit.

Apples Are Popular.

It had been intended to hold exercise at the Wasen County booth, and a programme had been prepared, but at the last moment this was done away with in order to expedite the distribution of fauned Hood River apples. From 11 A. M. until well along in the afternoon three attendants, were busy handles out apples. The crowd that cialined this offering was The crowd that cialined this offering was built on the order of a phalanx. No sooner would the front of the line drop out burdened with apples than others would immediately take their place. The distribution was supervised by E. L. Smith and E. W. Skepard, of Hood River.

While the excursion was organized by the Hood River Commercial Club, every citizen c. the place and every resident of Hood Ziver Valley seemed to consider himself a part of the promotion committee. DISTRIBUTION OF Four Carloads of Apples, Grapes, Melons, Pears and Prunes Are Given Away to the Swarm of Visitors.

There were more than 20,000 persons at the Lewis and Clark Exposition, yester-day, and nearly all of these visitors were given fresh, juscious and beautiful fruit such as is only grown in Oregon. The wholesale distribution of fruit is the great feature of Agricultural days, which began with yesterday and end tonight. Three or four carloads of Oregon's spiendid fruit was distributed among the visitors who called at the Agricultural building. It seemed as though every visitor on the grounds was eating fruit all day yes-terday. Some could be seen enjoying a delicious bunch of grapes, and others were biting huge chunks out of glossy red and yellow apples. Great hig, julcy and mellow pears were in great demand, and were eaten by hundreds. Even cantaloupes and watermelons were given away, so great was the generosity of the agri-

Fruit Is Distributed.

This wholesale distribution of fruit took place in the Agricultural building. Near-ly all of the county booths gave away fruit of all descriptions, but the principal distribution took place near the center of the building. Here three or four men were busy all day handing out apples, ears, peaches, grapes, prunes, etc. Visitors from all parts of the Exposition flocked to the Agricultural building but sithough the building was crowded from early morning until the doors closed at night, all who desired were given fruit. The exhibitors and County Comfruit. The exhibitors and County Com-missioners had anticipated a rush and had made such careful calculations of the ap-petites of the Exposition visitors, that they had enough to supply all. The small boy was in his prime at the Fair yesterday. Although the youthful Americans called at the Agricultural building again and again they were al-ways given as much fruit as they desired.
