FOR NEBRASKA LAND FRAUD Frank W. Lambert Arrested for Subornation of Perjury.

Thorties heard he was in the city and notified Special Agent, Connell, who is in Portland on the outlook for counterfeiter and other crooks who prey on Exposition visitors. Lambert was followed for several days before he was placed under arrest.

The board of managers of the Oregon State Baptist Committee met yesterday morning at the Y. M. C. A. to discuss the work and lay plans for the convention at Eugene next week. There were about 15 ministers present, all sections of the state being represented. Never in the history of the state has the Baptist church been in such fine attendance as the report of the last year show it to be now. The additions to membership exceed any made in previous years, and the outlook for future work is exceedingly bright. The denomination has grown rapidly and the pastors feel greatly encouraged.

The ministers' conference will be held at Eugene on Monday and Tuesday of next week. The attendance is expected to be large. About $2400 will have to be raised to carry on the general work in Oregon this year and methods for doing this will be thoroughly discussed. Eugene is preparing to entertain its Baptist visitors in fitting manner.

The beautiful and costly exhibits in the Japanese section at the Oriental building are attracting a tremendous amount of attention. This is probably due to the fact that these goods and articles of manufacture and curios of art are to remain on this coast and beautify our homes. The exhibits are the work of an artist market here for their wares and merchandise. They do not wish to reship their exhibits to the Mikado's empire, and will give away free thousands of dollars' worth of the finest articles known in the Lewis and Clark Fair. Thousands are joining the Society of Japanese Art Admirers, who have charge of the exhibits and their disposition.

A number of these veterans have already testified. When the witness was confronted with the appalling proofs that they committed perjury when they swore to the answers demanded by the Government upon making applications for discharge of filing, they shamefacedly admitted the truth and offered in extenuation that they had been led to believe that their military service had in a measure exempted them from the law. From the letter of the law. From the testimony gathered from the witness it appears that J. N. Wells, an agent for Jones and Potter, and also A. J. Connor, was the tempter. He it was who explained to those who have appeared on the witness stand how easy they could get property and also $300. William Feigtmir, Gravel C. Lawrence and James Landfair were the three veterans—all old soldiers—who testified yesterday.

Feigtmir was the first witness called. He is more than 70 years old, with eyesight so bad now that he practically had to be led to and from the witness stand. He was a private in the Eleventh Ohio and fought before Fort Donelson, at Chickamauga and other battles. Feigtmir's testimony was in the nature of a confession. He was contritely sorry for the share he bore in the questionable transaction of obtaining a homestead in Wells, he said, told him how he could get the claim. Wells told him about the improvements. He admitted he had never seen the homestead upon which he had filed. His was a sworn confession of what work on a man who had lived to be three score and ten.

Just Like Finding Money. It was the world-old story of the weak flesh yielding to temptation. In broken English, and occasionally forced to wipe tears of shame from his dim and faded eyes, Feigtmir told the jury he came to take up the homestead. How, when he made application for his final papers, he realized that he was doing wrong and how he protested about it in other battles. Feigtmir's testimony was in the nature of a confession. He was contritely sorry for the share he bore in the questionable transaction of obtaining a homestead in Wells, he said, told him how he could get the claim. Wells told him about the improvements. He admitted he had never seen the homestead upon which he had filed. His was a sworn confession of what work on a man who had lived to be three score and ten.

Mr. Henry pressed him to tell why he had given his residence at Bligh, when for 20 years he had lived in Portland. The witness said that Wells had told him to give the answers. He added: "I knowed I gone wrong. I'm sorry now for the whole business. The witness said that both Jones and Potter were present at Oregon City when the final papers were made, and that when his receipt was handed him Jones asked to see it, and when he got it he gave it to Potter. This angered Feigtmir, who testified that he demanded his papers or his money. Jones asked him to wait a day. He consented. The witness testified that when he came to Jones' office he was asked to sign a mortgage on the claim for $720. Mrs. Feigtmir refused to allow this, and the matter was finally settled by executing a quit claim deed.

The testimony of these soldier witnesses is cumulative. So far they have told the same story—a story of shameless deception, not only on the part of those who were behind the scheme to obtain the Government land, but on the part of the veterans as well. The testimony of James Landfair and Gravel C. Lawrence was the same as that given by Feigtmir, and, like the aged German, they admitted that they had sworn falsely.

Another important witness of the day was W. Hall, postmaster at Siletz. Hall testified that as postmaster he had received letters from the Oregon City Land Office and from Washington, D. C., for a number of the Jones-Potter entries. He had been instructed to forward the mail to the office of Jones, and had done so. In some instances Jones had requested the entries to be sent to him, and they were handed to him. He had given them to the entries to be sent to him, and they were handed to him. He had given them to the entries to be sent to him, and they were handed to him.

Frank W. Lambert, wanted in Omaha, Neb., on a charge of subornation of perjury in connection with a land-fraud case, was arrested yesterday by Special Agent Connell. Lambert was taken before Captain J. A. Sladen, Clerk of the United States Circuit Court and held in $1000 bond. The case was set for hearing on Monday. Since leaving Nebraska, it seems, Lambert has made his home in Portland. The Nebraska au-

DEFENDANTS SINCE HE ASSUMED HIS PRESENT POSITION, AND YESTERDAY HE MADE JOHN HARMON HAPPY BY ASSIGNING ACTING DETECTIVE KAY TO SECURE HIM A JOB AT DISHWASHING IN SOME RESTAURANT.

The young man was caught in the police dragnet during the night, and was charged with vagrancy. He explained to the court that he had just arrived here from the John Day country and aspired to be a dishwasher.

"They're trying to 'job' me," said Fred McCroskey, backdrifter and hotel-keeper, in explaining his side of an assault and battery charge placed against him by R. E. Reed. "I did not hit him at all; you know, we well enough to know that if I had hit him you would not have to put an X on his face to mark the spot."

"You've been 'jobbed' too often since you came to town," said Judge Cameron. "Your fine this time is $15."
