MUSIC IN GREAT VARIETY

Symphony Fills Air at Exposition From Morning Until Midnight. Best Vocalists of the Northwest Divide Honors.

FAIR AND WARMER TODAY. The weather forecast for Portland says: "Fair and warmer. Easterly winds." Edward A. Beats, District Forecaster, predicts:

A high pressure area is central this vening over Eastern Washington. It has caused clear weather in the North Pacific States with slightly higher temperatures. The indications are for fair and warmer weather in this district Tuesday. Sharp frosts will occur in the early morning.

Music filled the whole Exposition yesterday until the very leaves of the foliage vibrated with its enchanting, delightful strains. Go where you might, morning, afternoon or evening, melody flooded into the cars. Here one might catch a fleeting impression of "William Tell," or "I Pag-Hacci," or "Carmen," or "The Tannhauser March"; thence came the familiar notes of "Old Black Joe," or "Dixle" or "The Star-Spangied Banner."

There was music for every ear. Chopin was there, and Mendelssohn and Liszt and Verdl and Wagner and Rossini. And so were Gimbel and Foster and De Koven and Hastings. In short, there was a little of everything, from Rubinstein's "Melody in F" to "Yankee Doodle." In every building there was a varied programme.

Nor was any of it "wasted on the desert air." People came early and came late. They came in twos and threes and in droves, filling every building at every concert-and there were 24 of these concerts in all. It was a musical triumph: It was a day that tended to a higher appreciation not only of esthetics but of ethics; and thus the day represented one of the most important celebrations the Exposition; for which too much credit may not be given to Frederick W. Goodrich, of Portland, who planned and carried the day to a successful termination

Great credit, too, is due those who volunteered to participate in the various programmes. Many of those who took part are well known in local music circles; others come from different points in the Baker; instrumental solos, Miss Jessie Ken-Northwest. Hull Does Not Believe Senate Will Tamely Yield to Roosevelt.

West Virginia Senator at Old Tricks Dalzell Denies Existence of Tariff Revision Sentiment Among Republicans.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington. Oct. 9 .- "There is going to be a lively fight at the coming session of Congress over the railroad rate problem, and the House will go with the President." That is the view of Representative Hull, of lows, chairman of the committee on railitary affairs, and a man well posted on legislative matters.

Mr. Hull is one of those men who take little stock in the declarations of such very promptly pass a railroad rate bill. He knows, as other practical men know, that the Senate is not apt to do any such thing; he knows Mr. Elkins well enough to be aware that this is his method of campaign. In his own state, where other Republicans are seeking to wrest the Senatorship from Mr. Elkins, the sen. ior West Virginia Senator has cleverly thrown out a sop to every faction in his party; he has endeavored to make it appear that he is in sympathy with every party leader, and is working for his interests. At the same time, Mr. Elkins is manipulating affairs in West Virginia in a manner that will undoubtedly result in his own re-election, and the overthrow of every insurgent who takes sides

So it is with the rate bill, Mr. Elkins professes to fauor rate legislation and gives assurance that a satisfactory bill vill soon pass the Senate. That is to allay the prevailing fear; it is a clever move on the part of Mr. Elkins, who at heart is as anxious as any man in Con. gress to prevent the passage of such a bill

ment Because He Baren't. OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, Oct. 9.-Representative Dalzell of Pennsylvania, the most radical stand-pat Republican in the House of Representatives, and the man who is supposed to steel trust than any other in the lower branch of Congress, on a recent visit to Washington relterated the statement he has several times made that he "has been unable to find in this country any important sentiment in favor of tariff revision." Mr. Dalzell is going to adhere to his stand-net doctrine, but it is perhaps natural that he should.

Without the support of the steel trust, or, more accurately speaking, in the face of the opposition of the steel trust, Mr. Dalzell could never come to Congress. To that extent he owes his position to that mighty corporation, which has its stronghold in his home city, Pittsburg. The steel trust makes and unmakes men in Pittsburg; it can make or unmake not going to launch forth on any campaign which would be disapproved by friends, the steel trust. It would be ungrateful, for one thing; it would be political suicide, for another,

The steel trust is going to feel the first effect of tariff revision when it comes, whether it be this year or next, or a decade hence. The steel schedule is regarded as the most unjust of all the Dingley rates, and there is a greater de mand for its reduction or absolute abolitien than for that of any other schedule. in the Dingley law. The tariff on steel was imposed to protect an "infant indusin that class. It no longer needs protection, and the rate on sheel is today doing greater injustice to American business than any other one tariff schedule.

It is fortunate for the steel trust that Mr. Dazell has attained a place of considerable prominence and influence in Congress. He is a man of great ability; he is bright and ready; he is well placed on amittees, being not only a member of the committee on rules, which very largely shapes the work of the House, but is next to the chairman of ways and means, which frames all tariff legislation. those positions Mr. Dalzell is able to do more than any other man, save Speaker Cannon himself, to block unfavorable tariff legislation; that is, legislation which is regarded unfavorable by his friends.

Mr. Dalzell does not openly pose as the representative of the steel trust; no Seninterests give him his seat and hold him there. But as a consistent member and a friend of the trust, Mr. Delgell must, from time to time, give reasons why he takes his stand on the tariff question, and that Mr. Hull, being an experienced law- is why he repeats at intervals that he finds no important sentiment in favor of friends of the girl saying her sudden in-

> FAIRBANKS PLAYS ABRAHAM Sacrifices His Son to Public Protest Against Nepotism.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington. Oct. 8.-The campaign against nepotism, which has been carried on by the newspapers for the past month or two, has borne results in one conspicuous instance. Vice-President Tairbanka, who was criticised for appointing his son his private secretary almost immediately after he himself took the oath as Vice-President, now announces that the "temporary appointment of his son" will termfnate when Congress convenes in December, and that someone else will then be chosen for this position.

PEORIA, III., Oct. 9 .- (Special.)-A new sensation came in the N. C. Dougherty scandal tonight, when Annie Wald, aged 20, a widow employed as housekeeper in the Dougherty home, suddenly became violently insane. The uncle of the young woman telephoned the Chief of Police demanding that Dougherty be closely guarded as he believes him responsible for her condition. The story has been kept quiet, sanity was due to religious enthusiasm. She was taken to a hospital, but the nurses advised that she be removed to her old home in Tremont, Ill., and her mother will take charge of her. This new and sensational phase of the affair will be rigidly investigated, as it bears out the hints that Dougherty was dent last November. Mr. Dalzell says an accomplished hypnotist, something that the country is overwhelmingly in favor has been whispered among the schoolteachers here for years. At a special meeting of the members of the School Board this evening it was announced that attachment papers had been procured for a large amount of Dougherty's property. The amount will reach

In addition to latest developments in the manipulation of school funds, Dougherty's enemies have revived a 2-year-old murder case and linked his name with the mystery. The case referred to is the mystery surrounding the murder of John Porter, janitor of the Peoria High School, April 3, 1965. Porter was found in the basement of the school building at 1 A. M. with two bullet hoies near his heart. His murderer has never been caught, it was rumored at the time that the janitor surprised a prominent business man in the negro accused of complicity in the murder of the Conditt family at Edns. has been captured and lodged in the Edns jail. PRESIDENT GOODE URGES ALL TO ATTEND THE CLOSING DAYS OF THE FAIR

The Lewis and Clark Centennial Exposition has entered upon the last week of its existence. After four and a half months of phenomenal, unprecedented success, the greatest enterprise in the history of the Northwest will terminate next Saturday evening.

Great exhibit and state palaces, marvels of architectural peauty and splendor, will be razed to the ground, having served the useful purpose for which they were constructed. Exhibits from the ends of the earth will be sent back to the distant lands whence they were brought. Portland will cease to be the host of a world.

While the people of Portland and Oregon and of the entire Pacific Coast may look with pride upon the wonderful success they have combined to make of the Exposition, they have yet a duty to perform. That is to make even greater the results that have already been achieved. Since there are only five days for this, all should act promptly. The Exposition should have a larger attendance this week than during any similar period since its opening day.

No one can look upon it as an unpleasant duty to visit the Exposition again and again this week. There are very few people, possibly not any, who have reaped the full benefits of the Fair, who have seen intelgently all that is represented of the world's arts, sciences, crafts, governments, institutions, in short, of all the products of mind, of hand and of earth. Artist and artisan alike can yet find many things of deep and practical interest. And at the same time every admission raises the score of victory achieved by Portland. by Oregon, and the Coast at large.

Aside from the things of practicable interest, the programme for the week has been drawn to a liberal scale. Six band concerts a day, special daily airship flights, lifesaving exhibitions, musicales, daily receptions to the public in all state buildings, fireworks, and the hundred and one incidental attractions of a nature appealing to all fancies, are announced by President H. W. Goode.

The weather, which invariably plays so prominent a part in shaping the destinies of such enterprises, showed up at its best y sterday. It was an ideal Autumn day, with a bright October sun, and just enough crispness in the air to make sightseeing pleasant. The clear atmosphere and steady sun had an air of permanency, and it is probable that similar days of ideal weather may be expected through the week. "Atmospheric conditions," says the weather man, "Indicate that such will be the case." "People who wish to see the Exposition must come this week or never," said President Goode vesterday.

"I feel that every one should come and bring the children. We want the children to get all they can of this Exposition. To them its educational value is greater than a few days in school, and I would favor several half-holidays in all schools this week. First the schools should let the children free and then parents should see to it that they attend the Exposition. I am afraid there are many who do not appreciate or stop to consider how long it may be again before they have a similar opportunity of seeing so much. Portland will probably never have another Exposition. There is no record of any city or state having held two fairs of international scope.

"People ought to make it their business this week to gain a comprehensive understanding of the exhibits throughout the Pair. Especially, I say again, does this apply to the children. While Portland has scored a tremendous success, the people should make it even greater."

cannot be learned today. It is said, however, that Dougherty at that time either used his influence to hush up an investigation or that he appeared indifferent in the matter. His attitude at that time is now being freely censured by persons who kept still until Dougherty's presen difficulty.

Dead Man Still on Payroll. His only connection with the case that ow can be shown is the fact that the Porter family still appears to be on the payrolls of the school board. State's Attorney Scholes, in going over Dougherty's account today, discovered that as late as last June a check had been drawn by Dougherty to the order of John Porter. who has been dead more than two years With the shadow of the jall within sight, Dougherty today showed the first signs of collapse. For the first time since the expose, Dougherty remained at his home today. It is said on good authority that he will not confess, but will plead not guilty and put up as a defense insan ity, caused by a fall from a horse sev eral years ago.

It is shown in the investigation of the life insurance companies, in the Milwaukee graft investigation and similar investigations in other cities, and in some instances these investigations have accomplished a great deal of good." Reverting to his dealings with the Peoria National Bank, Dougherty declared that he had no personal knowledge of the bank's affairs. Dougherty, It would appear, was practically a "dummy" president. As the head of the banking institution, he received a nominal salary, less than $1036 a year.

He merely attended the directors'
meetings and concurred in anything his fellow-officers placed before him for approval.

"I am a teacher and not a banker, was the way he expressed his position. "and I left the management of the bank in the hands of experienced men." It may be said that the experience as a banker of one of the other officials was limited to the management of a jewelry store before his connection with the bank.

Hopes for Co-Operation Between Faculty and Athletic Advisers in Reforming Game.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9 .- President Roosevelt entertained at luncheon today Dr. D. H. Nichols and W. T. Reid, of Harvard, Arthur T. Hillebrand and John B. Fine, of Princeton, and Walter Camp and Mr. Owsley, of Yale. six guests of the President constitute the athletic advisers of the respective colleges named. The President desired to consider with them particularly the morale of the game of football, with a view to eliminating much of the brutality, if possible. A general discussion of col-lege athletics was had, but the talk centered around the game of football. It is hoped by the President that, with the cooperation of the college autherities and the athletic advisers, the rules of the game may be so amended as practically to do away with much of the brutality which makes the game objectionable.
