How the Stockholders Feel.

memorial building for the Historical Society as will entitle the Exposition authorities to secure the appropriation of $50,000 under the previsions of the egislative measure creating the Exposition. Both propositions appeal to eason, and each has a strong follow-

Upon the question of devoting the surplus to some public utility, there is no division of sentiment, however, and it seems to rest with the people themselves to devise finally some means of obviating the present difficulties, and ir is believed that the popular discussion that is certain to follow an issueof such local magnitude is sure to develop some Moses who will lead the public out of the builrushes of doubt. Interviews with prominent citizens yesterday afforded a wide range of F. I. FULLER, PRESIDENT hought upon the subject.

Governor Chamberlain's Views.

Governor George E. Chamberlain said: I have not sufficiently examined the statute under which the Fair was created to express any decided opinion as to whether the state has any interest the surplus, but my private opinion is that even if it did it should waive all claim in behalf of some public benefit, and I think nearly every stockholder feels the same way about it. I only subscribed a small amount, but am perfectly willing to surrender whatever dividend is coming to me in conformity with those ideas. am strongly opposed to any plan that contemplates the removal of the Forestry building from this state. Why not use this surplus in purchasing additional ground surrounding the structure, and in putting it upon a cement foundation so as to preserve it from deterioration? I do not favor buying a large tract and making another park. The city already has enough parks, and doesn't half take care of what she has. It would be a good idea to install the Historical Society in the building, too, and use some of this surplus for that purpose also.

Forestry Building His Pride.

"The Foresty building ought to be the pride of the state, and I know that it has attracted more general attention than any other feature of the Exposition. Hundreds of distinguished visitors from all sections have expressed their admiration of the building to me, and it would be an everlasting shame to let it ge."

Jefferson Myers, president of the Lewis and Clark Centennial Exposition lommission, places a new and interesting aspect upon the situation of affairs by the matter of the issue of stock and bonds declaring that the State of Oregon, having been an equal contributor with pri. vate individuals, is as much entitled to Its share of the dividends as anybody else, and hints at litigation over a division of prove and modernize Portland's network the spoils

State Should Have Share.

"I don't see why we shouldn't have a linger in the pie," said Mr. Myers last night. "In fact, the commission and coronsideration, and as soon as we can get any surplus, back into the State Treasury. The whole thing may involve a lawsuit to determine the matter, but under any phase of the situation. I fall to see how the surplus can be devoted to any other purpose than in the construction of a ciety, as distinctly outlined by the people of Oregon when their representatives enacted the law giving authority to hold the Fair.

"So far as the Forestry building is con cerned, its disposition is in the hands of the City of Portland, and I believe it has already made arrangements for the purchase of the ground upon which it stands but the state law creating the Expositio carries with it an appropriation of $50,000 towards the erection of a memorial building for the Historical Society, and there is no reason why we should not endeavor to secure this donation by meeting the requirements of the legislative measure #### making the appropriation." W. D. Fenton's Opinion.

W. D. Fenton, who claims to own but a small number of shares, said: am in favor of applying the surplus, $120,000, in the direction of a m building so as to secure the $50,000 which the Legislature appropriated for the purpose, and have issued an address as president of the Historical s the burning question of the nour Society with that object in view. ### Capitalization of Corporation.

The Portland Railway Company has a total capitalization of $7,000,000, of which The present improvements on Williams $3,000,000 is authorized preferred stock, and $4,600,000 is common stock. Of the preferred stock, only $2,500,000 will be issued, leaving $500,000 in the treasury to devote to the immediate needs in expenses and

The company will now issue $5,000,000 in first and refunding bonds. There is also the assumption of $2,585,000 in bonds now outstanding, making the total bond issue $7,585,000. To provide for future needs in the way of extensions which may be made, a total authorized issue may be made in first and refunding bonds to the extent of $10,000,000. Gradually, the under lying bonds now outstanding will be re-placed by new issues. The first will be nade the first day of next January, when $982,000 of the old bonds will be replaced The papers of incorporation require that bonds may be issued to the extent of covering only 80 per cent of the expense of any improvements which may hereafter be made. The remainder will have to come from the earnings or reserve funds of the company

The men who have taken hold of Portland's system are men of high financial standing, known from one end of the intry to the other. E. W. Clark and H. L. Clark are members of the firm of E. W. Clark & Co., a Philadelphia banking hous that has been established for many years. Frederick Strauss is also a banker, a member of an old New York house, J. & W. Sigelman. Ogden Mills is the son of D. O. Mills, a New Yorker of great wealth, who has already made many investments on the Pacific Coast. A. L. Mills is president of the First Nationa. Bank, of this city, and J. C. Ainsworth is president of the United States National Bank, also of Portland. C. N. Huggins has for the past ten years been the Portland representative of the General Electric Company, of New York City.

with one exception. The act of the Legislative Assembly of the State of Oregon appropriated $450,000 towards this great undertaking, and without this liberal aid and the work of the Oregon State Commission, the Exposition would have been impossible. By section 7 of that act it was distinctly provided that a permanent historical building should be erected, to be known as the "Lewis and Clark Memorial building," and it was to be the permanent home of the Oregon Historical Society, and under its general control. The official records, archives, exhibits, valuable historical library and collections of the society, now in the City Hall, and any future additions thereto, was to be given suitable and safe quarter. Here a museum of an international character was to be created. In this stone structure, a complete and permanent exhibit of the minerals and mineral resources of the Pacific Coast and Intermountain States was to be maintained. Statues of Dr. John McLoughlin, President Jefferson, Senators Benton and Linn, and other distinguished men whose work made the Oregon Country a part of the United States, were to adorn the building. The great explorers. Lewis and Clark, were to be given conspicuous honor and the building was to be named and perpetually maintained, as a memorial to them and the great Exposition just closed. The act provided that the State of Oregon should, by its State Commission, devote not more than $50,000 toward the construction of this building, upon condition that the Exposition Company should devote not less than $50,000 to the same, and provided that a site would not build a suitable building, and the board of directors of the corporation will probably decline to use any surplus for this purpose, without the express approval of the stockholders, and it is doubted whether the board could use any share that may belong to any stockholder without his consent. The corporation, it is now believed, will have a surplus of $120,000 for distribution, and this sum, added to the $50,000 to be given by the state, would create a fund of $170,000, which is amply sufficient to erect a handsome memorial building. The site can be left to the choice of the Revolutionary Demonstration on Removal of Troubetskoy's Body to Station.

CROWDS DO NOT RESIST

St. Petersburg Printers Declare Strike to Last Three Days. Daily Papers Expect to Get Out Single Sheets.

ST, PETERSBURG, Oct. 15 .- For the first time since the advent of M. Trepoff as head of the government of St. Petersburg, demonstrations on a large scale took place here today, the occasion being the removal of the body of Prince Troubetskoy to the Nikolai station for shipment to Moscow. Students, workmen and spectators gathered in thousands in the streets, and demonstrators with red flags paraded through the Nevsky Prospect, the city's main avenue

The crowds and the processions were several times charged and dispersed by mounted police, but fortunately with no grave consequences. The worst injuries reported are those sustained by two men who were slashed with sabers. Pirearms were not employed by the gendarmes or military, and though the first collision was provoked by a shot from the crowd and a few cases of stoning occurred, the crowds manifested no inclination to resist the police and troops!

The students are exasperated over the attacks by the police and the arrest of several members of a coalition committee chosen by a student meeting September 26, and a renewal of the disorders is not improbable.

The serious feature of the situation is that a strike of printers was declared tonight on political grounds, which is to last for a period of three days, but it may be continued longer in case of repressive

A few of the leading daily newspapers hope to be able to issue a single sheet giving telegraphic news, but the others will suspend publication entirely. The employes of several factories are ready to follow the lead of the printers, and the authorities are fully alive to the danger that the strike may become a general one.

The official gotification to the French government, according to the Foreign Office, followed several hours later, when Count Lamedorff had completed the ratification by his signature. The government took no steps to make known to the people of Russia the fact that the Emperor had signed the treaty before the receipt of the official notification that the instrument had been ratified by the signature of the Emperor of Japan, and the first information, therefore, was communicated through the Associated Press dispatches from Washington.

As soon as the treaty had been fully ratified, the Foreign Office communicated the fact to the War, Navy and other Min-istries, and the necessary orders were immediately issued to bring home some of the ships interned in neutral harbors. # LOUD HISSES FOR THE "CLANSMAN

Dixon's Play, Dealing With Reconstruction, Given in South Carolina.

AUTHOR IS THREATENED

Prominent Negro Educator Declares That the Playwright Is Making "Blood Money" Off the Colored Man.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Oct. 15 - (Special.) -The appearance in this city of the "Clausman," Thomas Dixon's new play, which deals with the reconstruction period under negro rule in South Carolina, was the nost largely attended of any play that has been presented here in recent years, That the large attendance was not due to approval of the drama was manifest by the hissing of the audience throughout the performance.

This, however, was more especially emphasized when, at the end of the first scene in the third act, after scattering calls, the author made his appearance in front of the curtain. Immediately there came hisses from all parts of the theater, mingled with hand-clapping, and it was fully two minutes before Dixon could pro-

The manner in which the author conducted himself in the face of the enbarrassing situation made friends for him After referring pleasantly to the fact that there had been friendly criticism of his play, he told of his close ties in South Carolina. He said he would give $1000 to any person who would point out an historical inaccuracy in the play. He is not afraid of the truth. He said:

Defiance for the Hissers.

"God ordained the Southern white man to teach the lessons of Aryan suprem-

In concluding he said that he had aiways observed that there are two divisions in the South-those who would hiss and those who would applaud the ones who are trying to portray the true ideals of the South.

"There were scalawags then and there are scalawags now," he said, very pointedly, amid upcoarous applause

But this was not all. The unusual specacle of prominent young men gathered in front of the author's hotel, with hostile intent, was witnessed at an early hour this morning. The performance being very ong, it was almost midnight before it was concluded. The young men sent to Dixon's room asking him to come down

It cannot be said whether Dixon anticipated trouble with his callers, but their request was refused: As if determined to acquaint the author with their sentiments of his play, the young men prepared a note expressing their opinion, which was sent up to Dixon's room Here the incident was closed.

Few Negroes in Audience.

The audience was composed almost en irely of white people, there being scarcey a dozen negroes in the gallery. From hese there were no demonstrations. The auditors were all Democrats, so there ould be no charge of partisanship.

Rev. Richard Carroll, the most promisent negro educator in South Carolina, witnessed the performance by invitation standing in the rear of the orchestra. Carroll declares that this is one of the most horrible things that has ever visited the South, and will do more toward injuring the prosperity of the South than anything that could be done. In an interview tonight, he said he told Dixon after the performance that be (Dixon) was making "blood money" off the negro.
