State Printer Says His Job Is Not So Fat—Government Clerks Not to Be Moved—Life in India Not All Joy

"SALEM people are pretty confident that within a year they will be connected with Portland by an electric road," said State Printer J. R. Whitney, at the Imperial Hotel, yesterday afternoon.

"PORTLAND is the best market for dairy products in the United States," said Dr. James Withycombe, of the Oregon Agricultural College, at the Imperial Hotel last night.

"I made a statement last week that the Eastern Oregon farms would be converted into a desert waste unless the farmers changed their system of farming. In certain portions of Eastern Oregon in a few instances the shifting sands have put in their appearance already before the present crop of wheat was grown at the present rate, certain lands in Morrow, Sherman and several other counties will be worthless within a score or more of years.

"MEDFORD is destined to be the metropolis of Southern Oregon, and it has a great future in store for it," remarked Captain Leavenworth, formerly of Portland but now of Gold Hill, at the Imperial Hotel last night.

"Every indication points toward Medford being the biggest town of Southern Oregon. It is in the center of the Rogue River Valley, which is renowned for its abundance of gold, silver, its agricultural and horticultural products, its surrounding of a good mining country, and immense tracts of timber land are contiguous to it. MME. EMMA EAMES.

Italian Customs Officials' Carelessness Almost Ruined Case, but Tone and Tune Remain Perfect—Mme. Eames' Letter: 'A Joy and a Wonder.' She Says:

Like other eminent artists such as the De Reszkes, Nordica, Sembrich, Patti, De Lussan, Gadski and many others, Mme. Emma Eames, the world-renowned singer, who, in connection with a brilliant company of artists, appears at the Marquam Grand Theater on the night of October 30, under the direction of Lois Steers-Wynn Coman, prefers and heartily indorses the Kimball Piano.

Italian Customs Officials' Carelessness Almost Ruined Case, but Tone and Tune Remain Perfect—Mme. Eames' Letter: 'A Joy and a Wonder.' She Says:

Dear Sirs—I write not only to acknowledge the receipt of the piano I chose at your warehouse when in Chicago last November, but to state a fact in connection therewith which cannot fail to be of interest to you.

When I received my first Kimball piano for my Paris house, and found that after an ocean journey it did not require tuning, I was, as I wrote you then, much surprised and delighted, but the facts concerning this new piano for my Italian home are even more astonishing.

Either the agent in whose care we had sent the piano, or the customs officials, were guilty of criminal carelessness. They wrenched the piano from the board which held it in place in the case after having cut the lead lining which had hermetically sealed it and simply afterwards replaced the piano in the case with both locks unlocked, floated about in its case unlocked from Genoa to Florence and from Florence to Vallombrosa.

It has been a joy to me this Summer and a wonder to all our Italian friends. I studied my new notes for the coming Winter upon it. Yours very sincerely, (Signed) EMMA EAMES.

Unsolicited letters, of which the above is only one example, should be sufficient evidence that the Kimball Piano is all that is claimed for it, the most perfect and up-to-date Piano in the world.
