WEATHER CONDITIONS.

Fair weather continues in the North Pacific States, but the barometric conditions this evening portend a change to unsettled weather in this district during the next 24 to 36 hours. A moderate disturbance has supersed off the Washington coast, but as yet it is not sufficiently developed to cause rain in this district. It is expected that this storm will advance easiward during Thurs-day and cause increasing cloudiness in this district and probably some rain in the west-ern portion of Oregon and Washington.
