Columbia's Decision to Abolish Game Final—Dishonesty and Unsportsmanlike Conduct the Cause. Views of Dr. Wheeler.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—The council of New York University at a special meeting today unanimously committed itself to the abolition of football. Final action will not be taken until the next regular meeting of the council three weeks from Monday. The meeting was called to consider the following memorials passed by the faculty, which the committee adopted: "The faculty of the college and the faculty of the School of Science of New York University respectfully request the council of the university to call a conference of 20 colleges and universities under the following invitation: "Upon the unanimous recommendation of the faculty of the College of Arts and of the faculty of the School of Applied Science, New York University invites each of the 19 colleges and universities whose football team has played with the team of this university in any year since its organization in 1885 to a conference to consider such questions as follow: "First—Ought the present game of football to be abolished? "Second—If not, what steps should be taken to secure its thorough reform? "Third—If abolished, what game or games may be possible in its place in the opinion of the athletic representatives in conference. "Each college or university is invited to send a representative of its faculty and a representative of its athletic organization, making a possible membership of 40. "It is deemed proper to add that the delegate of New York University on the unanimous recommendation of the student organization is instructed to support the first resolution that the present game of football ought to be abolished." It was also voted to hold the conference on December 8. The invitations were sent out tonight.

Columbia Professor Says Revision of Rules Won't Save It.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—To dispose of rumors that the action of the Columbia faculty committee on undergraduate organizations in abolishing football at Columbia was taken merely to force the rules committee to reform the game and that the game may be revived at Columbia when such a result is attained, Dean George W. Kitchin, of the University Law School, made the following statement today:

DOES NOT FAVOR ABOLITION

Elliot Declines Invitation to Conference on Football.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 29.—President Elliot of Harvard University, declined today to comment upon the action of the committee of Columbia University in abolishing football. He permitted it to be known that he had declined the proposition of Chancellor McCracken, of New York University, to call a meeting of college presidents to consider the question of football, because he thought that college presidents were not a competent body to deal with reform in the game.

ARRAIGNS FOOTBALL KINGS

President Wheeler Denounces Rules Committee, Especially Dashed.

BERKELEY, Cal., Nov. 29.—At noon today, President Wheeler, of the University of California, called together the football players and delivered a scathing arraignment of the National Football Association. He said that Walter Camp was the only member of the so-called "rules committee" who could be of any use in making over the game so that brutality may be eliminated. President Wheeler said that the other members of the committee were inefficient, and that Paul Dashiell was "the curse of the game in America."

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 29.—Midshipman Meriwether today took the witness stand in his own behalf. His story of the trouble between himself and Midshipman Branch did not differ substantially from the testimony of previous witnesses. He told of having had a fight with Midshipman Humphreys, in 1901, in which the latter "knocked out" the witness.

Torpedo-Boat Runs Down Launch in Effort to Kill Komura—Rescued From Drowning.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 29.—The attempt to murder the peace delegates and destroy the treaty between Japan and Russia, which was drawn up by the plenipotentiaries in Portsmouth, and which was being sent to the Mikado, was witnessed by officers and passengers on board the Dakota, on the night of her arrival in Yokohama. Dr. William Lopp, surgeon of the Dakota, in speaking of the incident, said: "The whole thing happened the night of our arrival in Yokohama. We were lying in the harbor, just outside of the breakwater. All the torpedo-boats and war vessels which escorted the peace commission were drawn up in a long line. The launch containing the delegation and the treaty, the warship and started for the landing. Suddenly one of the torpedo-boats, anchored near the end of the line of battleships, slipped her cable and started for the launch. The torpedo-boat made for her at a right-angle course, and the people on the launch saw the torpedo-boat leave the line of craft and they knew what was coming. The launch was slow, and the torpedo-boat rushed on like a comet. Like a shot from a cannon, she rushed on and in a minute struck the launch, cutting her completely in two, and raced on into the darkness. We could see the men struggling in the water and clinging to the pieces of the wrecked boat."

"Launches from the battleships were at once sent to their rescue and saved all but one of the occupants. The treaty was also saved."

Assumes Management of Idaho's Launching at Cramps.
OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, Nov. 29.—The Washington Post quotes Henry Heyburn, of Boise, as making interesting comment on the arrangements for launching the battleship Idaho at Cramps on December 3. Among other things he says: "Cramps evidently intended the senior Senator from Idaho should make arrangements for assigning a sponsor for the Idaho at the launching and notified him accordingly. But the Junior Senator, Mr. Heyburn, kindly has taken charge of these minor details and has requested Governor Gooding to select a sponsor and to be major dome of the social functions pertaining to the launching. Naturally we expected the Cramps' wishes would prevail, as they are putting up the money for the expenses, but our Junior Senator may decree otherwise and perhaps he will have the launching pulled off to suit himself."
