ORDERS VAGRANTS TO LEAVE TOWN

Three Shiftless Men Sternly Rebuked by Judge Cameron.

FOUND IN THE NORTH END

Record of a Day in the Municipal Court With Punishments Meted Out to Petty Offenders There.

SHIFTLESSNESS PERSONIFIED.

"I worked in Tacoma and made $14 during December," said Martin Lamb to Judge Cameron. "I am 'broke'

"I have been in Portland a few days. and was in the Burnelde Exchange saloon because I wanted free soup,"

"I shoveled coal from Roy, Wash. to Portland to pay my way, and I asked for money here to get a bite to est," said M. F. Moore.

Judge Cameron Lectures, The three men quoted were among many other vagrants picked up in the North End by the police Thursday riight. Judge Cameron lectured each to be ashamed of themselves to be having no money or decent clothing to be had at good wages almost any 25 Burnside street, narrowly escaped ar rest yesterday morning, when four young men swore in the Municipal Court that they were, frequenters of the resort, which is one of three North End dives now under the police ban. Deputy City Attorney Fitzgerald was about to issue had purchased drinks in the place

Patrolman Galbraith and Acting Detec-tives Kay and Jones rounded up a dozen tough characters Thursday night, all of whom were before Judge Cameron on vagrancy charges yesterday. Never did a more shiftless crowd face His Honor. Not one were clean or next clothing, not one was cleanly in appearance and all resembled the cheapest and toughest element of Judge Cameron was particularly gusted with Mariin Lamb, aged 23, and halling from Tacoma, according to his story. He was pressed for some history regarding his recent movements, and said he worked through December in Tacoma and earned $14.

"Do you think $14 is enough for a mouth's work?" asked Judge Cameron.

"Well, it helps some," replied Lamb.
"It is disgusting to see a man like you," said Judge Cameron, as he sternly faced "Your clothing is dirty and you A. Freeman, to secure money from it's in-rty; you have no money, no am. surance policies. are dirty, you have no money, no am. surance policies.
bition to get any. There is work Springfield, Ill.—Attorneys for Johann Hoch for 90 days, but we have none. As we cannot use you here, and you will not work if permitted to remain, I will give Austin, a cuburb. A cathedral will be among the cannot use you here, and you will not immense seminary for Cathelic priests. you two hours in which to leave Portland, the buildings, which will cost about $5,000 and if you are found here after that you will have to serve to days in jall." That finished Lamb, and he lost no time

J. Fitzgerald was another type of hoho exceedingly displeasing to Judge Cam-eron. He was only 19 years old, had been hanging around the Burnside Exchange several days, and was so shiftless that he leaned against a table while talking. He said he had been here a few days, seeing about work, but had found none; he had no money, and dropped into the saloon to get some free soup.

"I guess you haven't made as much money as Lamb did in the past month." suggested Judge Cameron.

"I have made some," replied Fitzgerald,
"Why do you not join the Army, or Navy?" asked Judge Cameron. "You fellows could make more money in either branch of the service than you make now, and besides keep looking respectable. The only thing to do with you is to make you leave town at once. Don't linger around here, or I will impose a heavy sentence if you come in again."

M. F. Moore was older than Lamb and Pitagerald. He shoveled coal for a fire-man from Roy, Wash., to Portland for his passage. After reaching here, he wan-dered to South Portland, where he called at the home of Polceman Mike Lillis for money. He asked for Z cents, saying he was hungry. Lillis, who has to pay gas bills, was in no mood to accommodate Moore, and sent him to jail.

Inasmuch as Lillis said he found fingerprints on the front windows of his home, and footprints in the earth underneath, and as there was a considerable quantity of valuable silverware on a table within, Moore was held for further investigation. In explanation of how he came to have just been married, and received many presents. It was his suspicion that Moore was prowling for these goods.

B. F. Jones placed the muzzle of a revolver to the head of Charles Asper in the latter's home, Seventeenth and North-rup, late Wednesday night, and said he would "blow his head off," but when the weapon-wielder was arraigned in court, yesterday morning, on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon, Asper swore that he knew nothing about the matter as he was too drunk. The arrest was made by Patrolman Thompson, of the second relief, who chanced to pass the house the night of the trouble, and was directed to the scene by the testimony of Patrolman Thompson being sufficient to convict. The charge of highway robbery against

Thomas Russell, Jr., probably will never be pressed. Paul C. Ayelsworth, the complaining witness, is in California, and it is doubtful if he will return to Portland to press the case against the young man swears saudbagged him in the yards ly. The case has been continued repeatedly, and yesterday morning was again set shead, this time for January 10. It is believed that Ayelsworth will fall to appear,

The positive statement has been made that no additional cars will be placed on the train as more persons would necessitate the train being divided into two sections.

HEARD IN THE ROTUNDAS Fortification of Halifax Discussed by Travelers From That City.

"H ALIFAX, N. S., is one of the most formidable fortresses in the world, and I believe it would be impossible for a besieging army to capture it other than by means of starving out the garrison, said Louis Archibald, a merchant of Hal-ifax, at the Imperial, Hotel, yesterday afternoon. "Halifax itself is a town of about 60,000 inhabitants, and it is surrounded in all directions by mighty forts, in which are mounted the most modern cannon. As a citadel, Halifax is second to Gibraltar only.

"Halifax has one of the finest harbors in the world, the entrances of which are protected by several large forts several niles from the town proper. Close to the city is another fort on an island in the middle of the harbor. Then rising out of the very middle of the town is an immense hill, on which stands still another fort. With the exception of the fortifications on the top, the hill is vacant. The town entirely surrounds it. In the fortifications are mounted dozens of disappearing cannons, which can shoot miles and miles. Even should an army capture the forts surrounding the city and the entrances to the harbors, the defenders on top of the hill could hold out for many months. The gons are so high that they can sweep the country for miles around.

"The garrison is composed exclusively of Canadians, and there are practically no more regular British soldiers in Canada. Most of them have been taken back to England and the Canadian troops left in charge. The Canadians make splendid soldiers, and the English place great reflance in them."

"O NCE a freighter, always a freight, er." Among the old-time plainsmen of the West it is often remarked that If a man becomes a freighter he will never change his occupation. Men who follow this business say they never knew a freighter to gult and take up some other occupation who did not eventually return to his horses and his wagons. They cite of men who have wealthy and independent still working out

"Once a traveling man, always a traveling man." This saying does not always hold true, but it does in the case of Billy Meek, of Denver, one of the best-knows wealthy, having made several fortune through mining investments in Colorado, but he will not give up the road. It is said that his income from his mines is far greater than that of his salary.

But for many years "- was a traveling man, and he has acquired dozens of friends in nearly every town on the Coast. It is said that he tried to give the busi-ness up once, but when he had been away from his old customers and friends he became restless and once more took up the grip. His greatest pleasure in life, it is said, is in selling goods, and he becomes as jubilant as a schoolboy at the close of school when he makes a big sale

Mr. Meek is now in Portland. He comes here several times a year, and any night now can be seen in the tobby of the Hotel Portland, with a crowd of his friends around him.

Taggart, after be secured a divorce, which aroused general interest, has been posi-tively located in Campbell County, Kg., where she can probably remain as long as she wishes, according to a statement made in Newport today. Mrs. Taggart and her sons were reported as being with friends at Alexandria. Ky., but her friends pre-at Alexandria. Ky., but her friends prevented attempts to verify the report today, when Judge Albert Berry, of the Campbell County Circuit Court. In Newport, whose daughter is one of Mrs. Taggart's close friends, said:

"I have positively refused to give the location of Mrs. Taggart and her children. They are within the Jurisdiction of my court, and I propose to protect them. The manner in which Mrs. Taggart has been treated and is being hounded is worse than would be meted out to a dangerous criminal, instead of a mother, who, through love for her children, seeks to keep possession of them."
