CIVIL SERVICE RULES VIOLATED

voters of the City of Portland," applies to a captain of police.

Civil Service Rules Violated.

THIRD—Section 213 of the charter provides that "whenever there shall be a vacancy in any position in the classified civil service, the appointing authority shall immediately notify the Commission thereof."

CHARTER CIVIL SERVICE PROVISIONS FLAGRANTLY VIOLATED AND BRUIN HOLDS CAPTAINCY ILLEGALLY, DECLARES COMMITTEE

At a glance, the findings and recommendations of the select committee of the City Council in the recent investigation of Civil Service methods in Portland under Mayor Lane's administration, are as follows:

That Captain Bruin was not a resident of Portland.

That Bruin was not a registered voter, and his appointment violated section 213 of the charter.

That there were five names on the eligible list for Captains, for many months. That the appointing power violated the charter provision by failing to promptly notify the Civil Service Commission of vacancies.

That Bruin was not a citizen of the United States, nor had he resided in Portland a year prior to his examination.

That changes in civil service rules aided Bruin.

That section 311 of the charter was violated in the oral examination that resulted in Bruin's appointment.

That these evasions of charter provisions and the appointment of a stranger discourages honest officers and demoralizes the police force.

That the City Attorney should give an opinion as to remedies for these violations, and the legal remedies should immediately be invoked.

tion was filed, which changes went into effect the day before the examination was held, made Bruin's examination and appointment possible.

SEVENTH—The rules, both old and new, required and provided for the giving of an official notice to each applicant of the time, place and general scope of the examination for the position sought.

EIGHTH—The charter especially requires that all civil service examinations shall be open competitive examinations.

NINTH—These evasions and violations of the civil service provisions of our charter, which culminated in the appointment of Bruin, were based on the following evidence:

Six sessions of the committee were held, at which numerous witnesses were examined, showing:

That Patrick Bruin, later appointed Captain of Police, was examined in a private room, orally, by Postmaster Minto and James Nevins.

That neither of the Civil Service Commissioners personally conducted any portion of the examination.

That credits were marked on papers of applicant by Secretary McPherson, and ratings were made by the examiners accordingly.

That no notice of an oral examination was given, and it was admitted by Secretary McPherson that this was untrue.

That prominent men of Portland had advised policemen that the examination was "cut and dried for Bruin," before it was held.

That Patrick Bruin had not secured his final citizenship papers and had not lived in Portland a year previous to the examination, as required by the charter.

That Patrick Bruin, while still drawing a salary as an officer of the Philippine Constabulary, was Mayor Lane's private detective.

That Mayor Lane connived to change every rule of civil service that stood in Bruin's way.

That in order to "boost" Bruin into a captaincy, a provision of the charter calling for competitive examinations for promotions was abolished, and promotion was destroyed.

That a list of five eligibles for captaincies was wiped out, to make way for Bruin.

That Mayor Lane and Commissioners Brewster and Willis had no confidence in the police force, and wished outside talent.
