FISHING AMENDMENTS.

Another Bill Grows Out of the Deregulation of the kapır.

The fishing bill, in its original form, had never reached the House, and was placed on the calendar.

A house member from the region said:

"When the subject was brought up, it was explained that the measure was one of consolidation, and was a necessity. The committee privileged to consider the matter had been working on it for some time, and had made a study of the subject. The purpose of the bill was to provide for the regulation of the fishing industry in the region, and to protect the rights of the fishermen. The bill was introduced by a representative from the area, and was referred to the committee privileged to consider the matter. The general sentiment of the committee was that the bill was a necessity, and that it should be passed.

However, the house member went on to say:

"The amendment, which was introduced by a member from another region, was a distinct departure from the original bill. It sought to eliminate the consolidation of the fishing industry, and to place it under the control of the state. The member from the other region explained that the amendment was introduced to protect the rights of the fishermen, and to prevent the consolidation of the fishing industry.

"The amendment was referred to the committee privileged to consider the matter, and was discussed at length. The general sentiment of the committee was that the amendment was a good one, and that it should be passed.

However, the house member went on to say:

"The amendment was passed by the committee, and was referred to the house for consideration. The house voted on the amendment, and it was passed.

"The amendment was then referred to the state senate for consideration. The senate voted on the amendment, and it was passed. The amendment was then sent to the governor, who signed it into law.

"The amendment was a distinct departure from the original bill, but it was passed by both houses of the legislature, and signed into law by the governor. It was a good measure, and it was a necessity. The state of Oregon is rich in fishing resources, and it is necessary to protect the rights of the fishermen. The amendment was a good measure, and it was a necessity.
