TELLS OF MURDER

Jen Yen Relates How Mah Sue Was Slain.

LEE CHUNG IS THE ACCUSED

He and Two Other Chinese, It Is Said, Are the Ones Who Killed Lee Mick in San Francisco.

Not only is Lee Chung charged with the murder of Mah Sue, whom he shot Monday night in this city, but he and Lin Duck and Yo Gom have been identified by prominent Chinese here as highbinders who killed Lee Mick in San Francisco some time ago. The two last men arrested are in the custody of the police, accused of being implicated in the taking of Sue's life.

When Lin Duck and Yo Gom were arrested late Tuesday afternoon, they had concealed in their shoes and socks loaded cartridges. Each also possessed a revolver of the heaviest caliber, fully loaded.

A jury empaneled by Deputy Coroner Arthur L. Finley yesterday afternoon listened to the evidence regarding the murder of Mah Sue, and quickly returned a verdict of "death by a gunshot wound, inflicted by Lee Chung with murderous intent."

Jen Yen, the woman who was with Mah Sue when he was shot, and who was herself stabbed by the assassin, was the only Chinese witness called by Deputy District Attorney Moser. She explained that while she and Mah Sue were chatting in his apartments, Lee Chung entered and demanded $150. Upon being refused, she swore, he drew a revolver and began shooting. He fired two shots at Mah, who fell dead in the doorway.

"I screamed for help," testified Jen Yen, speaking through an interpreter, "and then Lee Chung pointed his revolver at my head. As he pulled the trigger, I struck his hand and when he fired the bullet went past my head. I ran to the adjoining room with Lee Chung in pursuit, and he knocked me down and began stabbing me. He then ran down to Second street, and I followed him, crying for help. Quong Gee joined in the chase and they ran after the fleeing murderer until he was stopped and placed under arrest at First and Stark streets by Nightwatchman Childress."

Jen Yen swore that on several occasions Lee Chung and the two Chinese now under arrest with him, called upon her and also upon Mah Sue, demanding money. They were repeatedly refused, she said.

Watchman Childress was next called, and told of capturing Lee Chung. Dr. Ray Matson, who performed the autopsy on the body of the murdered Chinese, submitted the report upon which the verdict of the jury was based.

Mah Sue was prominent in Chinese circles, and was well liked. He was a member of the American-born society, and by that organization will be given a fitting funeral and burial, perhaps this afternoon. This has not yet been definitely decided.
