President's Orders for Inquiry About Valencia.

COMMISSION LEAVES TODAY

Action of Officers and of "Rescuing" Steamers and of Owners to Be Inquired Into, Also Provisions For Life Saving.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—Formal directions were issued today by President Roosevelt for an investigation of the Valencia disaster, which occurred recently upon the North Pacific Coast.

Commerce will memorialize Congress to grant the recommendations made by a subcommittee today, the substance of which follows: Beginning at Gray's Harbor, we think that from there up to Cape Flattery a proper road should be built so that the coast may be accessible for life-saving and salvage purposes.

We find there is a distance of more than 10 miles north of Gray's Harbor with no light-house or other aid to navigation, although protection every 20 miles. We recommend that a proper lighthouse be secured at Point Grayville.

In reference to the present telegraph line at Tatoosh, we recommend that it be improved and that such force be maintained that the same may be relied upon at all times that proper communication be made with the Alaska cable to supplement the present service.
