SAYS WATER MUST BE CARED FOR.—Counsellman Kellhaber is firmly of the opinion that all the water flowing from Hawthorne Springs must be taken care of permanently by turning it into the Sunnyside sewer at the intersection of East Tenth and Yamhill streets. In order to raise the water high enough to turn it into the sewer a dam will have to be thrown across the ravine at East Yamhill street. Counsellman Kellhaber says that East Stark will be the street to be filled next, and under the roadway of this street most of the water now flows. It must be got rid of entirely. He does not think that wooden culverts, like the one built to carry the water under the Grand-avenue fill, will take care of the water permanently, as it is now doubtful whether or not the Grand-avenue culvert will yet be destroyed by the terrific weight of the embankment. He is sure that the only way to get rid of the water is to turn it into the Sunnyside sewer at East Yamhill street.

THE DEFENDANT WINS DAMAGES.—In the case of Fred Quackenbush to recover possession of a horse valued at $150 and $75 damages from C. H. Lutz, tried yesterday forenoon in the East Side Justice Court, the result was judgment for the defendant and $50 damages besides, rendered by Justice Waldemar Seiden. The papers in the case were filed August 12, 1905, and Constable Keenan got possession of the horse in dispute, which he placed in the hands of a keeper. The horse was spirited away, so it is claimed, by Quackenbush, working in conjunction with the keeper. Constable Keenan was unable to get possession of the horse until a short time ago, when he found the animal in the possession of a farmer in Clackamas County, who said that he had bought him from a stranger. Nevertheless, the Constable took possession and turned him over to Lutz, who gained the case at the trial yesterday. The Clackamas County man wants pay for the horse and threatens to sue Constable Keenan for damages for taking the animal.

MRS. CLARA H. WALDO WILL SPEAK.—A general meeting of members of the different Granges of the county will be held next Saturday with the Pleasant Valley Grange at Sycamore. Delegates will be present from Star, Russellville, Gresham, Rockwood, Fairview and other points, who will be entertained at Sycamore. A drill team from the different Granges will confer the degrees on a class, and a programme will be rendered in the afternoon and evening. Mrs. Clara H. Waldo, state lecturer, will deliver a lecture in the evening on the benefits of the Grange to the farmers. J. J. Johnson and others will make short talks along the same line. This gathering is expected to be one of the largest held in the county, and to promote an interest in the Grange among the farmers of that section.

ELECTED SECRETARY OF ACADEMY OF SCIENTISTS.—At the annual meeting of the Oregon State Academy of Science, held at Portland Saturday, Dr. G. E. Coghill, professor of biology, was re-elected corresponding secretary for next year. Professor Bradley has in his laboratory the piece of Nebelium because of which the Academy wished him to make a chemical analysis and report.

LECTURE ON SHAKESPEARE.—The fifth lecture in the Sellwood Library lecture course will be given this evening at 8 o'clock in the auditorium of the Sellwood Schoolhouse by Rev. Stephen Wise, D. D. His subject is "Shakespeare." Miss Grace Gilbert and Miss Hillman will furnish the musical programme. The lecture is free and all are cordially invited.

FUNERAL OF FLOYD DAILEY.—The funeral of Floyd Dailey, another victim of the East Side fire, will take place tomorrow afternoon from Punnett's undertaking chapel at 2 o'clock, and the interment will be in Lone Pine Cemetery. He died yesterday morning at St. Vincent's Hospital.

IMPROVEMENT CLUB MEETS.—The East Side Improvement Association meets this evening in the Justice of the Peace Court room for general business.

GROCCERS WILL NOMINATE
Want Legislator to Work for Pure Food Laws.

The retail grocers of Portland will choose one from their number to make the race for the Legislature from Multnomah County. Upon whom the mantle shall fall has not yet been determined, but the directors of the Retail Grocers' Association will select the most available candidate within the next two weeks. The retailers of provisions in Multnomah County will this rally in support of a candidate determined to elect him in order to urge legislation for pure food and full-weight packages.

Resolutions to this effect were introduced and carried at the session of the Portland Retail Grocers' Association last night at the regular fortnightly session, in the Russell building. Strong resolutions demanding pure food supplies and full-weight packages were also passed.

The grocers are dissatisfied with what has been done in the matter of securing full weights and unadulterated products, and are determined to do what they can by entering politics themselves and through a representative who will give his attention to their cause, they hope to obtain relief on the much-mooted questions of short-weight packages and adulterated goods.

NOT CHASING A RAINBOW
Descendants of Baron Metzger Know Estate Was Escheated.

GREHAM, Or., Feb. 17.—(To the Editor.)—In today's Oregonian there was an article headed "Chasing a Rainbow." "Metzger Heirs, of Greham, Swindled by Fakers," etc. I would like to see the space in your valued paper, I herewith submit the following for publication:

In almost every state in the Union there exists a branch of a society known as "The United Descendants of Baron Theobald Metzger von Weibnon." It was organized many years ago for the purpose of a benevolent, protective, historical and genealogical society. Recently, since the daily press has given publication to a movement to secure an escheated estate in Holland, it has become current that such organizations have been formed for the prosecution of their claims; but this is only idle talk, and not a matter of fact. There are many thousands members of this society but not one has ever been swindled out of one cent by any clever crook for not one of them has ever given a dollar for the prosecution of any such claim. Nor were they ever asked to do so. It may be true that some rascally lawyer has taken advantage of the present agitation of the matter to "work the simple," but the officers of this society have warned every member to look out for such "grifters."

THE ESTATE IS NOT AN IMAGINARY ONE, but one that Holland would call escheated, as we have documentary evidence to prove. It was in the washbuckling days of the late 18th century that the late Theobald Metzger lived. He was born in Keitheim, Germany, December 21, 1828, but became a resident of Holland at a very early age. His distinguishing characteristics were superabundant energy and an ability to play politics, which soon caused him to burst into prominence. Among the plaid people he was accounted a very man. He entered the army when he was yet a young man, and soon became Lieutenant-General of the cavalry. Shortly afterward he was made Governor of Breda, Brabant, Netherlands, which was a post of great distinction and importance in the latter part of the seventeenth century. He then became a baron. He was a great deal of a politician, and a deft hand at the game of politics. He was the wealthiest man in that country, and left at his death, which occurred at The Hague, February 21, 1891, cause, apoplexy, a vast fortune to be divided equally among the heirs after a given time. The crown took advantage of this and escheated the estate. From time to time this matter has been brought up, but it always has been declared outlawed. Since August, 1905, many of the daily papers have contained articles saying that Holland was at last ready to compromise the matter. This is what started a number of inquiries to the United States Minister at The Hague. He was asked "whether the legation would consider any proposition relative to the investigation of the case," because he was thought to be the proper person to take the matter up if these reports were true; but if today's reports were official, Holland takes the position in it is in 1891. Very truly yours, GEORGE W. METZGER, Secretary T. O. S. U. D., Baron Metzger von Weibnon.

PREDICTS HEAVY TRAVEL
ROSS C. CLINE, OF LOS ANGELES, ON RAILWAY TOURISTS.

Declares That Thousands Who Come to Southern California Will Visit the Northwest.

Ross C. Cline, of Los Angeles, Pacific Coast passenger agent for the Wabash, was the largest territory covered by any traveling railroader in the West, and in looking after the interests of his company he probably makes more mileage than any other railroader in America. He is now on a trip of 2000 miles, and spent yesterday in Portland. He expects to complete this journey in the next 15 days, when he will have a breathing spell, but in a very short time he will be up and on the road again. In the past year he has held his present position. Mr. Cline has traveled far enough to circle the globe many times, but, strange to say, he has never been scratched in a railroad wreck. This record speaks well for Western railroads.

Mr. Cline's territory not only covers the Coast from Mexico to the Canadian boundary, but includes Arizona and British Columbia. He is now making one of his quarterly tours to the North Pacific Coast. That the California tourist travel is bound to come northward in heavier volume is the belief of Mr. Cline. "The representatives of the northern roads in Los Angeles are receiving more inquiries than ever before about the return trip to the East," said he. "This season there will probably be $1000 tourists pass through Los Angeles, and many of them will find their way back through Portland. I notice a great improvement in the Shasta route, where new steel bridges are replacing old wooden structures, and the dining service has been getting better and better. With the addition of observation cars to the equipment, the Shasta route gives magnificent service from Portland to Sacramento, considering the distance and without any opposition in that territory."

"There is considerable railroad building going on at the eastern end of the Wash basin, and there will soon be a new line by the Gorge, connecting the Missouri River to the Atlantic Coast."

DARRACH'S RECITALS.
Noted Shakespearean Scholar Will Begin Series at White Temple.

"Twelfth Night" will be the opening bill at the White Temple on Wednesday evening, when Marshall Darrach, of New York, will present his splendid recitals here under the auspices of the settlement work of the People's Institute. "Twelfth Night" is always the favorite bill at Yale University, and appears there each year; he starts out his course with some new play of the master, but the requests keep coming in and in, until the special bill is arranged which the students desire. At Historic Cooper Institute, in New York, too, before the masses to whom Shakespeare is almost a name unknown, it is one of the strongest favorites, and the great unwashed, as well as the students who make it a business to attend the fine series of free entertainments arranged by the board, give to Marshall Darrach and his Shakespearean recitals the closest attention vouchsafed to any of the noted people who come there to lecture or to talk.

Tickets for the entire course of three recitals are on sale at Allen & Gilbert-Ramaker's, Gill's Woodard, Clarke & Co.'s, the Woman's Exchange, the Y. M. C. and the Y. W. C., and special rates have been made for students and teachers. The first recital is on Wednesday, when "Twelfth Night" will be given. Friday evening the bill will be "Julius Caesar," and Saturday afternoon "Hamlet" will be given.

SHAKESPEARE may come and then may go, but the musical comedy writers go on forever, so far as the favor of the theater-going public of the City of Portland is concerned. There have been a score or more of these catchy, sparkling, dazzling creations of light melody, and we will out this way already this season. The past month has brought no less than half a dozen. But Portland is ready for more last night, and when the curtain went up, every seat, box, stall and loge was occupied, and some dozens of patient enthusiasts were on their feet both upstairs and down.

Well, it was worth standing up for. The music was tuneful and catchy, the scenic effects beautiful, the acting good, and even if a trifle threadbare, and the costumes stunning, novel and effective. It is not exactly of the most modern type; but for that reason its appeal is more general and its success is more certain. The story is a simple one, yet in process, and by no means perfected so far as theater-goers at large are concerned. "Woodland" is built on a delightful land of "woodland," the "babbling brooks and leafy trees." Its people are the birds that twitter and call from forest and hills. There's the wren, the robin, the raven, the canary, the dove, the sparrow—and on the other hand the jay, the owl, the rooster. All are appropriately costumed and in some essentials akin to the birds of the woods. Pixley and Lueders, who worked out this story, have done a very clever thing in subject to work upon, and they made much. There are suggestions, frequent ones, that considerable patchwork has been utilized. There is an old joke about an old man there with but a slight change from the garb in which they were last with us. But this by no means mars the general effect. In fact, some of the airs that brought forth the biggest demonstrations from up there in the gallery were those that have been heard here before. Anyway, they were Lueders' own, and there are few of the catchy things that come from his mine of melody that will not bear repetition.

There are no voices of what could be termed rare quality, though there are fresh and pleasing voices without definite number. Walter Lawrence, the Robin Redbreast, had a lower tenor more than ordinary merit. The Owl, too, Louis Casavant, possessed a basso which was quite pleasing, and the Nightingale, Miss Mauda Dahl, and the Wren, Miss Edna Bieder, were altogether acceptable in their singing. The comedy part of the show centered about the Blue Jay and his associates. The King Redbreast, the Robin, the Dove, the Sparrow, the Owl, the Wren, the Jay we recognize Harry Bulger, a capable comedian of considerable repute. He had but to lift a finger to get a round of laughter; if he lifted two fingers an encore was insisted upon. The "Bottle and the Bird," too, were a laughable twin, and were welcomed with good humored applause as frequently as they appeared.

"Taken through," "Woodland" is one of the most enjoyable musical frolics that has been along this season. It will be repeated again tonight, with the concluding performance Wednesday night.

Has Altercation With Wife.
Tony Deceon, who is proprietor of a saloon at Fifth and Sheridan street, became embroiled in an altercation with his wife, from whom he separated some time ago, and for a short time residents of that vicinity imagined that a riot had broken out. A hurry call was sent to the police station and Detectives Welch, Jones and Murphy were sent to the scene. The atmosphere had quieted down at the time of their arrival, and Deccio informed the authorities that he would appear in the court in the morning and register a complaint against his wife. A loaded revolver was found in the street near the place, where it had been thrown by Deccio on the approach of the officers.

The Leavenworth society woman to whom he was engaged at the time the Filipino woman sued Lieutenant Burbank, stated today that she would marry him upon his release from prison.

Fire Ruins Dwelling.
Fire broke out in a small dwelling occupied by Mrs. Bruner, at 251 Fifth street, about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and almost totally destroyed the building and contents. The loss is estimated at $250.

Petitions for a Sewer.
Edna Pedersen has petitioned the Council for the construction of a sewer on Albin avenue, from 25 feet south of the south line of Hlandena street to a connection with the sewer on Prescott street.

RAID ON LODGING HOUSES

DISORDERLY WOMEN ORDERED TO THE "VICE QUARTER."
Mayor Lane's Policy is Being Enforced by Detectives King and White.

Mayor Lane's policy of driving the disorderly women into a district north of Burnside and east of Fifth street, is being carried into execution by Acting Detectives Kay and White, as rapidly as two men can do so. Yesterday three inmates of the Winfield House, located on Fourth, near Washington street, were arraigned before Municipal Judge Cameron on charges of vagrancy, and given until today to find lodgings in the "vice quarter."

Instead of issuing a general order to the police to instruct all of the unfortunate to move, Mayor Lane has seen fit to deliver to the keepers of the various houses in the uptown districts that they must rid their establishments of all disorderly women at once, and it is said they have agreed to comply.

E. J. Burns, charged with the larceny of towels, and who was arrested by Patrolman Galt, was sentenced to serve five months in the County Jail, upon entering a plea of guilty.

Archie Ray, confirmed morphine-eater, was given the maximum penalty for the offense of having the drug in his possession—30 days in the County Jail and a fine of $100.

Ed Siles, who threatened to burn alive "Liverpool Lads" was "run out of town" on a charge of threatening to kill.

Earl Wood, a soldier from Vancouver Barracks, charged with a statutory offense, will be tried in the Circuit Court. Mrs. Davis, mother of Myrtle Davis, denies that her daughter ever frequented

Reports on Street Widening.
City Engineer Taylor has filed his report with the Council relative to the proposed widening of East Sixth street, from the north line of Division to the center line of Taggart street, in which it appears that the contemplated action will necessitate the appropriation to public use of 24.98 square feet in order to bring the thoroughfare up to the required width of 90 feet.

The City Engineer has also reported as to the proposed widening of Francis avenue by making a lateral extension from the line of East 11th to Kenilworth, extended northerly to the west line of block 1 in Kenilworth extended northward, said street to be 90 feet in width, which will necessitate the appropriation to public use of 78.00 square feet.
