Prince Attacks Policy With Regard to Brigadiers.

LAYS BLAME ON PRESIDENT

House Spends Lively Day on Army Appropriation Bill-Gilbert Stirs Up Grosvenor by Assault on Ship Subsidy Bill.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.-The House today refused to adjourn in celebration of Washington's birthday, and its members participated in a general field day of debate on the Army appropriation bill. The apeeches took a wide range. First the peeches took a wide range, system of promoting and retiring Army officers was attacked by Prince of Illi-nois, who elicited many comments from nois, who elicited many comments from nois, who elicited many comments from members in disapproval of the methods for which he said the President and Senate were responsible and which have re-sulted in a retired list costing yearly $2,700,000, consisting of officers who, he said, were holding the flag with one band, while the other was in the Treas-ury for money that had never been was made by Gilbert, of Kentucky, who declared the American merchant marine is now the finest of any nation, and included 136 Morgan ships under the Brit-ish and German flags. In case of war, he said, their only protection would be the United States, wherein belonged their owners and the capital invested. General debate on the Army bill was exhausted and that measure will be read for adopwhen the House meets tomorrow.

Great Army of Appointees.

Prince was the first speaker. He menmillion persons under the direct control of the President—300,000 in the civil serv-ice, 60,000 in the army, 6,000 in the Navy and Marine Corps, 70,000 Postmasters and fully 25,000 not classified. All estimates for appropriations on which Congress from this great army of em ployes. It was too much to expect the President to make personal scrutiny of

Referring to the question of the retiregrade of Lieutenant-General, Prince criticized the system by which it was possible to have a large number of officers on the retired list. With an Army of $0,000, he said, there were now 900 officers on the retired list, drawing an average of $2000 a year, or a total of $2,700,000. There had been & Brigadier-Generals who served for one day in that rank and were then retired, from January 1, 1902, to January have to do is to mark time, knowing they will be retired at higher rank."

"The gentleman, it seems to me, has shown a very outrageous abuse of power and privilege on the part of some one," said Mr. Lawrence, of Massachusetts. Who is it that makes the promotions?

The President has the right and is the only one who has the right to make promotions, and the Senate confirms them," replied Mr. Prince.

Blast at Ship Subsidy.

Ship subsidy was discussed for an hour by Gilbert, who took the position that ships could be built as cheaply in this country as abroad. He asserted that the United States possessed the finest merchant marine fleet of any nation. In this he included the 136 ships of the Morgan Company, American-owned ships, sailed under the British and German flags. Asked to explain this, he quoted English and German law to the effect that shipping was not entitled to the protection of those countries unless con pletely owned by their subjects. Should trouble come, the Morgan ships would have to be protected by the American flag. Such bills as the ship subsidy bill, he said, were always drawn in the interest of the shipping trust or the million smilingly remarked Grosvenor. He then proceeded first to pay his respects to Gilbert. "There never have been com-presed into an hour so many erroneous statements as were made by the gentleman from Kentucky." declared Gr who announced that some time later he would reply in detail.

Grosvenor concluded his speech with a group protest against the provision of the Army bill abolishing the grade of Lieutenant-General. He declared he should make a point of order against the provision, for the reason that it would shut out General Corbin, whose services as a soldier he reviewed at some length It would also bar General MacArthur.

In his prepared speech, Mr. Lawson, after thanking the club for the happy way in which it had smoothed away the misunderstanding which arose between him and the club, led up to his familiar subject of the insurance companies and "system," with a review of the present upheaval in various parts of the United States. He went on:

CONSTITUTION AT FAULT

TINKERING OF BANKING LAWS WOULD DO NO GOOD.

J. H. Albert, of Salem, Admits That There Is Great Need of State Control.

SALEM. Or., Feb. 22.-(Special.)-President John H. Albert, of the Capital National Bank, of this city, is opposed to a state law for the regulation of state banks, for the reason that under our constitutional provisions it is, in his opinion impossible to devise a sound banking sys-tem. That there is great need of state control of banks he admits, but he thinks that before effective laws can be en-acted the constitution must be amended so as to permit of the enactment of a statute similar to the National banking Legislative tinkering under the present constitutional provisions would, he thinks, do more harm than good, for it would hoodwink and mislead the public, by giving the sanction of the state to a sys-tem which affords no adequate security to the depositor. When asked for his opinion upon the subject of a state banking law, Mr. Albert said:

It is impossible to devise a sound state banking system in Oregon without first amend-ing the constitution. Article II of that instru-

1. The Legislative Assembly shall not have the power to establish or incorporate any bank or banking company or moneyed insticial laws, except for municipal purposes.

"Sec. 3. The stockholders of all corpora tions and joint stock companies shall be li-able for the indebtedness of said corporation to the amount of their stock subscribed and unpaid, and no more."

Aside from the question of the power of the state to regulate a corporation which it is denied the power to create, it is clear that a bank can be incorporated only under the gen-eral law and that its stockholders are "lia-ble for the indebtedness of said corporation to the amount of their stock subscribed and paid, and no more." Now the great bulwark of the National banking system and of these of the states who have sound banking laws is the personal liability of every stockholder for all indebe-edness to depositors and other creditors for the full par value of their stock, in addition to Its original value.

It being impossible to devise a sound system.

I believe that legislative tinkering in the premises will do much more harm than good.

It will hoodwink and mislead the public by giving the sanction of the state to a system which affords no adequate security to the depositor. To this feature of the National banking law (personal liability of the stock-holders) is chiefly due the unparalleled suc-cess of this system, evidenced by the fact that of all the banks organized since its inception depositors in these insolvent banks of only 22 per cent and without the loss of a dollar to billhoiders.

The system has other safeguards, but this reserve of $500,000,000 personal liability of its stockholders in addition to its $500,000,000 of pald-up capital, is the solid foundation with out which the structure could not have been reared—remove it and the fabric will totter and fall.

The remedy for promiscuous banking in Oregon is a question of education rather than legislation. The present agitation is along that line and will emphasize to the public the fact that deports in National banks are se-cured by the personal liability of its stock-holders for the full amount of their stock in addition to the original amount paid in, while stockholders in the so-called "state" and other incorporated banks are wholly exempt from such liability. The reduction of the limit of required carital for the organization of a National bank to $25,000 makes that system available to all banking associations in the state. The provision of the United States banking law make the conversion of such banks an easy matter; many have already become nationalized, others, yielding to the persuasive influence of their intelligent clientage, will doubtless follow.

While the volume of business transacted by these incorporated banks is inconsiderable, there is a class of so-called savings and trust banks, transacting under the guise of a fiduciary title quite an extensive general banking business—some of them in the hands of wealthy stockholders, but being in the same category as to their nonliability to depositors as the so-called state banks,

In either case in the event of their fail-ure by reason of loss or impairment of capital the loss would fall upon its depositors and other creditors and its wealthy shareholder be wholly exempt from liability.

The peculiar constitutional provisions qui above are due to these facts: First, at time of the framing and adoption of the con-stitution, the business of the old states was in the threes of one of the worst financial panics in the history of the Nation, in which panics in the history of the Nation, in which both builthiolders and depositors lost heavily. Oregon had no incorporated banks and no hankbills in circulation, only silver and gold. From that distance banks seemed to be good for nething but to produce panics, hence were prohibited as quoted above. Next a number of industrial enterprises in the new state needed combined capital. Stock in these enterprises was widely scattered among many stockholders, but the management was neces-sarily in the hands of a few. To protect the stockholder, article I, above quoted, was inserted. The phrase "And no more" went in as an amendment to emphasize the provision and remove any possible ambiguity.

As a side issue to the case, a bitter war has broken out between the two detective agencies which have been at work on the assassination. They are at swords' points. Captain Swain, who was appointed chief of detectives by Governor Gooding, has taken exception to the glory that Major McParland has claimed for running down the criminals.

The detectives say they are able to prove that during the Fall and imme-diately preceding the meeting of the executive board of the Western Federation of Miners, which took place in the Pioneer building, in this city, in the middle of December, several mem-bers of the board visited the Coeur d'Alene district in Idaho. At that time the members of the executive board gave it out that their visit was for the purpose of familiarizing themselves with the district, for the purpose of placing the Federation on its feet again. This, the detectives declars, was nothing but a blind, the real purpose being the perfecting of plans for the Steunenberg assassination. CHAINED TO A CORPSE.

Doleful Punishment of the Ancients Dupli-cated in Our Modern Life.

The Romans used to punish a murderer by chaining to his body the corpse of his victim. Wherever he went he dragged behind him the debris of his crime, deaxy cadaver, revolting thing that was once a man. Every day you see people dragging around with them the corpse of their sins. They can't get away from them. And many of them have become so inti-mate with these corpses that they be-come corpses themselves. The misery of these poor unfortunates has become con-stitutional with them. It fits them like an old shoe. They have become accustomed to it.

And there are thousands of humans who are walking the earth today with corpses attached to them-dyspeptic stomachs they can't get rid of. They have to get along the hest they can with the ston achs they have. And the owners of said dyspeptic stomachs are to be found in every walk in life, suffering from some form of indigestion, first cousin to dyspepsia. They wear that forlorn appearance, their energy is at zero, nothing interests them, and they interest no one, their faces are shrunk, their nerves are wilted and their shoulders sag. Are you one of the myriads who dandle and gratify their palates at the sacrifice of their stomachs? Are you one of those who allow their senses to run riot, eating too much, drink ing too much, eating at the wrong time, eating the half-cooked, the queer and the impossible?

Are you bloated after eating, and imagine that it is your food that fills you?
Do you have causes when you look upon this or that rebel at one thing and be hungry for it, too, at the same time? And have you got a whole lot of other things the matter with your stomach that you know about but nobody else does, and can't explain? If so, you have dyspepsla, real dyspepsia. And the chances are you have had it a long time. Your stomach is overworked, abused, fagged out. The gastric and digestive juices are weak, the muscles of the stom-ach are jaded, and the whole business needs new life. It seeds something which will take hold of the food as it comes in and do the digesting, and let your stom-

"During the past winter I had twe attacks of LaGrippe which left me very weak, and in bad condition. I was so nervous I could not sleep. My wife, after trying different remedies, went for a doctor. The doctor was cut, and a neighbor recommended Dr. Miles' Nervine, and she brought home a bottle. I had not sleept for some time, and had terrible pains in my head. After taking a few doses of Nervins the pain was not so severe, and I sleept. I am now taking the second bottle, and am very much improved."
