THE MORNING OREGONIAN, SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 24, 1906.

dealings and collusions, the two great necessities of modern life-coal and oll-are made more expensive to the endent owners and dealers using these products are injured, if not ruined. "It is alleged that hundreds of own-ers of coal and oil mines and fields are prevented from operating for the rea-son that the roads which under the iaw should serve them either fail entirely in furnishing the means of transportation or else furnish them se uately as to make operation unprofitable

All in Power of Monopoly.

"The result of this can only be that every consumer of coal and oll is sub-ject to the prices of a monopoly which are those of extortion and injustice. It is possible that existing law may not be adequate to reach these evils if they are found to exist, but there can be no doubt that the Government is strong enough to protect its citizens against any of its law-made creatures, and when publicity reveals an evil Congress will be able and willing to apply a remedy.

resolution as originally presented to the House contemplated only an investigation in relation to bitumi-neus coal. The Senate resolution included all other products. The gentle-man from Kansas (Campbell) most ably presented resolutions backed by facts showing that oil should be in-cluded. The committee believes that carriers of all kinds of coal and oil should be the subject of investigation should be the subject of investigation, and that the Interstate Commerce Commission should make it.

"This investigation should be prompt, fearless and well made." Grosvenor briefly indersed the reso-

pport to the resolution was made by lams, the minority leader, in a brief peech.

Gillespie, as a joint author of the reso-lution, said that since its introduction he had received many letters, from both Democrats and Republicans, and if half that he had heard was true, there was a system of commercial brigandage pre-valling compared to which the desperado er days was child's play.

Bill for Alaska Miners.

Proceeding under call of committee, bills were passed to require $75 worth of work work on roads and trails for each minng claim in Alaska; allowing foreign s to clear from American ports with-examination certificates when the atries to which they belong recognize American certificates of insp to g in the United States, except dredges now at work in the United States

MAKE ALASKA A TERRITORY

Swineford Recommends Valdez o

Seward as Capital.

WASHINGTON, Peb. 22.-Ex-Governor A. P. Swineford, of Alaska, appeared be-fore the House committee on territories today to urge the granting of territorial government to Alaska. He said that, under the court government which now ex-ists, the system of invation is unsatisfac-tory. In response to questions as to where the capital of Alaska should be, he where the capital of Antoin should be needed. When asked if it would be possible for members of a Territorial Legislature from remote parts of the territory to reach the capital. Mr. Swineford said water travel was possible for persons in nearly all tically all of the Philippine sugar to the United States. He now believed, he said, that even if the bill became law, much of the sugar produced in the islands would continue to go to China

Protest Against Prohibition.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23 .-- Representatives of the National German-American Alliance, one of the great German organi-sations of the country, called on the President today to protest against the Hepburn-Dolliver bill now pending before as convenient and possible.

Congress. The measure is practically a Federal recognition of prohibition.

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL.

Senate, but the report would simply transmit the action to the Senate, together with a synopsis of the testimony taken before the committee. He has not yet taken into consideration the question of bringing the bill before the Senate, but said he would press it with the view of having the discussion commenced as soon

Solecism, Says Elkins.

Solecism, Says Elkins. Elkins characterized it as a "soleciam" to have a Democrai report from a Re-publican committee to a Republican Sen-ate a bill which had been reported by a Republican committee in the House and passed by a Republican House. He be-leved that the bill should have been in charge of Dolliver, who had insisted that it be reported as it came from the House, and this especially as it was finally re-ported in that shape. Elkins said that he would have voted for the bill if the com-mittee would allow one amendment which he had proposed and which vitally affect-ed the interests of his state, West Vir-ginia. This amendment was as follows: ginia. This amendment was as follows:

Square Deal for Connections.

That carriers of interstate commerce shall, that carries of interestic commerce shall, upon application, put in all necessary awitches to meet wants of shippers, make prompt con-nections and optraling arrangements with connecting branches or lateral lines, make rea-sonable and tust division of through rates and make reasonable and just allowances to con-necting interator branch just allowances to connecting lateral or branch lines for originating freight. In case of the refusal or failure on the part of such carrier to provide proper switches for shippers and to make proper and suitable connections with connecting, interst branch lines, through rates and divisions the same and just and fair allowance for originating freight, operating and running ar-rangements, the differences between the par-ties shall be determined by the Interstate Commerce Commission, and said carrier shall abode by and carry into effect the decision or de-termination of the Commission, and, failing to do so, the Commission is authorized to com-pel said carrier to comply with its orders in the premises by proper proceedings in the Circuit Court of the United States in the judicial district through which the railroad

Elkins declared that he would offer this amendingent in the Senate and secure a record vote, in the hope that it will be adopted. He believed that the coal ques-tion had been settled to a large extent by the recent decision of the Supreme Court. He pointed out that, while he was car-nestly in favor of a provision for a court review and would have supported the bill if that amendment had been added to it, at the same time he believed good results would have been achieved by the adop-tion of his amendment relating to interal lines.
