URGES THEM TO REGISTER

Pledge to Be Offered Candidates at Primaries to Insure Harmony After the Nominations Are Made by Popular Vote.

ALBANY, March 1 .- (Special.)-There are many people who do not understand the direct primary nominations election law. Continued and persistent reports are coming to J. S. Van Winkle, chairman of the Linn County Republican Central Committee, that voters are insisting that they will not state their politics, and that if thin is necessary to registration they will not register. Many seem to have the impression that if they register as belonging in any particular political party they will have to vote the ticket of that party straight, and cannot select the candidates they desire to support, regardless of polipression seems to have arisen from the reprement that each man vote for the soice of candidates on the ticket of his party only at the primaries.

As a result of the failure to understand the workings of the direct primary law, registrations are cooring in slowly, and there will be a small percentage of the voters of the county entitled to express their choice of candidates in the primaries. ries if registration does not speed up soon.
To remedy this condition, and if pos-sible secure a full registration and nominstion of candidates that are really the people's choice. Chairman Van Winkle has issued a circular letter to Republicans of Linn County, urging immediate registration. He urges that it is necessary that Republicans register their party affiliations, as to register as an 'independent' will disfranchise a voter in the primaries. Attention has been called to the fact that Democrats in Lane and Marion counties, while following the letter of the direct primary law in the filing of petitions, have arranged for holding so-called mass meetings for selection of andidates and securing signatures, which is virtually an evasion of the law, as the mass meeting will take the place of

Van Winkle has prepared a pledge, which will be presented to every Republican candidate before the primary election is held, concluding as follows:

I being a candidate for the numination for the office of _____ in Linn County, Oregon, at the primary elec-tion to be held April 20, 1906, do hereby en-nage and pledge myself to support and use every honorable means to secure the election on June 4, 1906, of those candidates who shall secure the Republican numination for the several offices in said county at the primary election to be held April 20, 1906, and espe-

Nor will any man who expects to one the Republican ticket, whether he is defeated or is successful in the primaries, refuse to sign such a pledge. And, finally, the knowledge that defeated primary can didates are actively supporting the dates of their party will tend to insure hormony in the campaign and resultant success for the party in the election.

Major McParland was next called. He did not remain before the grand lurors very long, but was called later, and when he was called the second time he carried with him a mysterious-looking brown hand-satchel, which he never allowed to get out of his sight from the time he left Boise till he got into the grand-jury room. It is supposed that this satche contained a copy of Orchard's confession and other evidence. This confession was left with the foreman of the grand jury. During the time between McParland's first and second appearance, Chemist Jones, who made the first analysis of the contents of powders and chemicals found among Orchard's effects and under his bed, was summoned. There were some 15 tests made of this stuff, but what the analysis developed is not known.

The warden was represented in the proceeding by Attorney-General Guehn, County Attorney Van Duyn, James H. Hawley, senior counsel for the prosecution, and W. A. Stone, also re-

The proceedings were the same on the three cases, the returns to the write were made in open court, the full bench being present, it was agreed by the attorneys that the answers to the returns should be filed not later than March 8, and that the arguments in the issues should be heard in the court on March 2 It is expected that Attorney Richardson, of Denver, senior attorney for the defense, will be present at that time and present the principal argument on behalf of the accused men.

In his return Warden Whitney sets up that he is holding the prisoners for Sheriff Nichols, of Canyon County, an order having been entered by the Probate Court in Canyon County that the jail of that county at Caldwell was an unfit place in which to hold them. Being without proper accommodations, the holding of the men in the penitentiary is also alleged to be with the assent of the accused men and their attorneys.

BOMB NEARLY KILLED BRADLEY

Doomed by Inner Circle.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 1.-it developed here tonight that a Sun Francisco mystery of two years ago has been touched upon in the confession made by Harry Orchard, now in prison at Boise, Idaho, on the charge of having murdered Frank M. Steunenberg. According to Orchard's confession, as reported here. "Inper Circle" of the Western Federation of Miners planned the assassina tion of every prominent man connected with the employers' side in the famous Cocur d'Alene mining strike, and one of the attempts to commit murder took place in this city.

November 17, 1996, Frederick W. Bradley, superintendent of the Bunker Hill & Sultivan mines, was living in this city in a flat at 1100 Washington street. He had just returned from a five months' trip of inspection, and on the date named had been home only two days.

On the morning of the 17th, at 7:65 o'clock, Bradley opened his front door to go to the street. As he was opening the door he lighted a match to light a cigar.

or he lighted a match to light a cigar Instantly, a terrific explosion followed. Bradley was huried into the street, badly burned and bruised. He was so severely hurt that for a time it was feared he would die. A gas jet had been leaking in the flat, and the only plausible theory advanced at the time was that the explosion was due to the accumulation of gas.

Orchard, however, in his confession.

says that Bradley was the victim of a bomb outrage. He declares that Bradley was marked to die on account of the firm attitude he had maintained against the miners during the strike. He was closely watched and followed to this city. The members of the "Inner Circle" from a hiding place across the street from his home noted his movements. He saw when the maid opened the door to take in the morning paper, and observed that 7:45 o'clock sharply Bradley came out. On the morning in question a short time after the maid appeared, one of the watches ran across the street and placed bomb in the doorway, so arranged that when the door was opened the infernal machine would explode. The men thought Bradley was killed, Orchard says, and so

ONLY WAY TO GET MONEY

House Members Work for Omnibus Apprepriations.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, March 1.-Local legislation by means of individual bills seems to be out of the question this session-that is to say, legislation that involves appropriations. The House leaders are insisting upon the most rigid economy and have al-ready sidetracked countless bills for individual public buildings, for river and har-bor improvements, fish hatcheries, etc. To circumvent this opposition and get some sort of appropriations, members of the lower House are working steadily with a view to bringing in one or more "omni-bus" bills making appropriations for a Superintendent of Bunker Hill Mine great number of states and in this way compelling the leaders to surrender. This is pure logrolling; it is legislation by might, and it may or may not succeed, according to the number of men who take an active interest in the omnibus bills.

If any omnibus bill goes through, will probably be a public building bill, and even that, it is said, will have to be confined to buildings heretofore authorized. where an increase in cost is demanded, or where money is needed to erect buildings on sites heretofore purchased. It is doubtful if any provision can be made for absolutely new public buildings. However, members who are not interested in increasing the cost of buildings heretofore authorized are insisting that they shall secure a share of the "pork" in the form of appropriations for new buildings, and It is quite possible that an omnibus public building bill may be drawn on such liberal lines that the leaders will have difficulty in defeating it. Before this question is finally decided, there will be a lively scrap in the House of Representatives, aides are now preparing for the fray.

Another omnibus bill that is talked of a great deal is the fish hatchery bill re-cently reported by the House committee. For several sessions attempts have been made to pass a general bill establishing fish hatcheries in those states which have none, or which have fewer than they believe they are entitled to. Some-how this bill has always been sidetracked by the leaders, and there is little reason to believe it can get through this session. Nevertheless, its friends are hopeful and have not given up the fight by any

Early in the session there was talk of an "emergency" river and harbor bill to carry money for a few important projects which will sustain damage if they have to wait until the regular river and harbor bill is passed next Winter. But it became apparent that any such bill would be loaded down with amendments until it became very nearly as large as a regular river and harbor bill. It is absolutely out river and harbor bill. It is absolutely out of the question to pass a general river and harbor bill this session and, rather than open up a contest of this sort, it has been decided to bring in no emergency bill. This means that there will be no money for rivers and harbors beyond what is carried in the sundry civil bill by authority of legislation of the last Congress; that is appropriations to pay for work now under contract.

There are times when legislation by the omnibus method is feasible, but the present session offers little encourage.

ment to advocates of this method, even though the expenditures proposed may be entirely meritorious.
