Linn Republican Aspirants for Office Are Many.

DEMOCRATS AGREE ON PLAN

In Almost Every-Instance but One Candidate Has Been Agreed Upon and Put Forward to Represent the Party.

ALBANY, Or., March Z.-(Special.)-With the final time for filling petitions for nomination to office but two weeks distant, Linn County had a full quota of candidates for every county office. with the exception of the office of Coromer, for which the only aspirant is a Republican, who has held the office for eisme years. The Democrats are also shy one candidate for the Lower House in the Oregon Legislature, but several while this week.

Republicans have an abundance of can-cidates for most of the offices, seeming to have more faith in their prospects of nucress, or not having the system of manipulating the direct primary law so well in hand. The impression seems to prevail here that where there is but one man of a party on the primary bal-let for a particular office, that man will have much the best of it in the election, if his opponent had gone through a warmly contested primary campaign in occuring his nomination, It is possible that this feeling has something to do with the scarcity of candidates in the Democratic ranks, the varace having gotten together and agreed upon who should be the candidate. In some instances, notably that of Sheriff. this seems to have been the system, for after much skirmishing, I. A. Munkers hied his notice of candidacy, and then when friends of other aspirants became Smith, an ex-Sheriff, filed his notice as Democrat, and it was announced that Munkers would not complete his petition. For the Legislature there will certainly be a hard fight in the primaries. C. E. Sex and George W. Wright, of Albany, have both filed their notices of candidacy for the Republican nomination for State Sengtor. Sox signing nothing and Wright taking Statement No. 1. The Democrats are putting forward Milt A. Miller, seemingly without opposition, in accordance with their other candidactes. It is noteworthy that Miller, a Democrat, did not take Statement No. 1.

For the Lower House the Republicans have nike candidates, from which number they must nominate three. Of the nike, five have signed nothing, and four have taken Statement No. 1. This fact will not, however, take any place in the primary campaign. If the opinions ex-pressed by Linn County people are cor-The complete list of men who have INDEPENDENCE. March 2i.—The Polk County Republican (lub of Independence, is arranging for a mass meeting and every candidate before the people has been invited to attend. Invitations have been sent to the five candidates for linked States Senator, three candidates for linked States Senator, three candidates for linked States Senator, three candidates for Congress, five for Governor, four for Secretary of State, five for Treasurer, two for Astorney-General, four for State Printer, one for Superintendent of Public Instruction, one for Labor Commissioner and all Polk County candidates for county offices. The prespects are the Polk County meeting will bring together in a general meeting all the Republican candidates.

The G. A. R. Auditorium, said to be the second in size of any hall in the state, is located here and the mass meeting which is to be held on Thursday, April 2, will be in this auditorium. No hanguet will be apread, but a brass band has been employed and a programme of addresses by such candidates as care INDEPENDENCE, March 3.-The Polk various candidates. En ough candidates have been through the county to acquaint Republicans with the tendency of the individual canvas. There is revealed a disposition in the candidate going it alone to point to the political hide of his rivals nafled to the barndoor. One after another pointing out the weaknesses of the other fellow and strength of himself has not proved satisfying to voters in this locality. Furthermore, comment is made on the effect a continuation of this method of campaigning until primaries may have.

Some think it sime for another "love feast." The Polk County Club agrees without a dissenting vote that it is time for a mass meeting here, with an invitation extended to all candidates to be present. Such a meeting is intended to serve the double purpose of giving all the people a chance to see all the candidates and learn first-hand what they stand for rather than listen to ex parte statements one at a time concerning our canments, one at a time, concerning our can-didate's chances and the other's utter hopelessness; also to give the candidates opportunity to come in contact with the mass of voters, saving them the time and expense of cushion-footing it all over

Negotiations are now making for re-duced rates over the motor line which affords a convenient way for the entire population of Polk County to turn out.

AS THEY APPEAR TO GARFIELD CARTOONIST.

GARFIELD. Wash., March 24.-Last Saturday the editors of Whitman County held their first association at this place, and organized permanently. In the evening they were hanqueted at the Hotel Carter by the Garfield Commercial Club. Senator R. C. McCroskey, the wheat king of the Palouse country, acted as toasimaster at the banquet. The address of welcome was delivered by Mayor McClure, and Editor Goodyear, of the Colfax Commoner, responded on behalf of the visiting editors. Then followed addresses by many of the townspeople and visitors. Toastmaste McCroskey furnished ample food for friendly repartee, and the company got "busy" at once.

O. H. Johnson had drawn with a lead pencil souvenirs of the occasion, and had them placed under each plate. It being St. Patrick's day, the souvenirs were a picture of an Irishman on a slip of paper, with a green ribbon attached. No two drawings were alike. Mr. Johnson also drew a cartoon of the editors, with Senator McCroskey as toastmaster.

Said Mr. Bryson tonight: "Mr. Baker's resignation came as a sur-prise to me. I regret very much his re-tirement from the leadership of the party in Oregon, and am certain his action will cause universal regret on the part of the Republicans of the state, as well as on the part of leaders of the party elsewhere. "Mr. Baker has served the party faithfully, enthusiastically and successfully. Under his leadership two great victories were achieved, first in the state election of 1994, with its greatly increased Republican majority, and second, in the last Presidential election, in which, I believe. Presidential election, in which, I believe, Oregon returned a greater majority for Roosevelt and Fairbanks in proportion to the vote cast, than any other state in the Union. It will be remembered that in this campaign Mr. Baker was instrumental in greatly increasing the vote of Oregon by urging the registration of Democrats as well as Republicans.

"Mr. Baker is credited by the National Committee with having given to Vice-President Fairbanks and Secretary Shaw, on the occasion of their respective visits to Oregon, two of the greatest ovations of the Presidential campaign.

Given Too Much Liberty.

At Grace Methodist Episcopal Church last night, Judge A. L. Frazer, of the Juvense Court, spoke on "The Relation of Child-Training to the State." His observations were largely based upon his experience in dealing with the children brought before him in his court work. He pointed out the necessity for carefully guiding and keeping those of immature years from temptation and cautioned parents not to give too much liberty to their children.

MAN AND WIFE PARTNERS

Rob Department Store of $30,000 Before Girl Detects Them-Advance Agents of Burglars. Furniture Stolen.

NEW YORK, March 3.-(Special.)-New and improved methods are not only popular among business men, but are en thusiastically adopted by the crooks of New York, who evolve something novel every few days. The latest scheme cost a big department store nearly $50,000 be fore the criminals, a man and his wife were arrested.

The man, whose name was John Shaw, secured a position in the shipping de partment of the store at a salary of $12 week and attracted favorable comment secause of his good habits and strict attention to business. After he had been installed. Mrs. Shaw made her appearance as a customer. She was refined in appearance, well dressed and wore diamonds and expensive furs. Mrs. Shaw visited many departments and looked at costly goods. Invariably, she selected articles and ordered them sent C. O. D., giving names and addresses in the fashionable ections of the city.

When the goods reached the shipping department, Shaw, who was on the look would recognize his wife's purchases from the false name and address she had given, which, of course, had been mutually agreed upon between them. It was then comparatively easy for him to paste over the address and C. O. D. slip a "sold" check, with the name of John Henderson and his own address.

Detected by Bright Girl.

The woman with whom the couple boarded had been asked to receive the Henderson parcels, which she was told had been ordered by the woman's brother. And so the game progressed with great success for several months.

A bright salesgiri gave the clew that led to the couple's arrest. She remembered Mrs. Shaw as having given another name on a previous visit to the store and quietly informed one of the private detectives. The woman was shadowed, her identity ascertained, and it did not take long to connect the humbard with ong to connect the husband with the Novelty Among Burglars.

Another novelty was introduced in Brooklyn. It requires at least two per-sons for its successful operation, one of whom obtains admittance at the basement door, and, when the attention of the servant is distracted, lets his confederate in through the front door,

The plan was worked at the residence of Henry Sarver, in the aristocratic Clin-ton-avenue section. The belt downstairs and the one in the basement rang simultaneously, and the girl went to the base-ment first. There she found a well-dressed young man, breathless with excitement. "Excuse me," he said, "but do you happen to know that one of your rear windows on the second floor is ablaze? Let me go up with you and assist in putting it out."

The girl let him in and preceded him upstairs. As they passed the front door be managed to open it unseen, and his confederate slipped in. While the servant and the young man were hunting for the fire that did not exist, the other man made a rapid raid and es-caped with a quantity of plunder.

Advance Agent's Notes Found.

Another man was noticed loitering about the corridom of a fashionable apartment-house on the Upper West Side. He tried to gain admission to several on various pleas and finally went away. The master of one apartment, on returning nome that evening, chanced to notice some writing on the wall, just without the door. Looking at it closely, he discovered that the word "yes" had been scrawled on the wallpaper. This aroused his interest. and he proceeded to make a careful examination of the balls. Near every examination of the balls. Near every door he found that the word "yes" or "no" had been traced in lead penell. In some instances the writing was so faint it could hardly be deciphered.

The case was reported to the police, who quickly decided that a gang of burglars had planned a raid on the house, and had sent a confederate ahead. A close watch was kept on the place, but the burglars apparently found out what was going on, for they never appeared.

"Key Game" at Hotels.

Many hotel robberies take place in New York but are seldom reported to the police, the managers in most cases preferring to settle with the victims rather than to receive undesirable notoriety. One favorite method is the "key game." A crook walts in the of-fice until some man arrives who outwardly appears to be worth robbing. and whose baggage has a prosperous look. Mr. Victim is assigned to say room 545, and this fact can easily be ascertained by an inspection of the register.

When the guest leaves his room, he turns his key over to the key clerk, who is seldom able to remember all the guests. Then the first crook or a con-federate walks up and demands the key of his room, No. 545, and if the clerk has any doubts the mention of Houseful of Furniture Stolen.

Families which go to the country leaving their houses empty generally notify the police of the precinct station, so that their residences can be the more carefully guarded. A family on the Upper West Side took this precaution, but ten days later the police were notified over the telephone by a man claiming to be the head of the house that he had returned and intended to put his belongings in storage. And thieves moved all the furniture out while the policeman on the beat never worried a bit. He had been told that the family had returned. The bulk of the property was recovered by the police, and the police captain's friends made up a purse of $2000 to keep the matter from becoming public. They were also aided by the fact that the victim expected to be nominated for Alderman (this occurred nearly a year ago) and was told that "If you make any trouble for Tammany, you can't expect any favors from the organiza-
